Office of the Secretary for Scotland,

Whitehall, May 29, 1893.

THE following Address of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland having been transmitted by His Grace the Lord High Commissioner to the Right Honourable Sir George Otto Trevelyan, Bart., Her Majesty's Secretary for Scotland, has been by him laid before the Queen, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:—

May it please Your Majesty,

YOUR Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Church of Scotland, acknowledge with reverent and devoted loyalty Your Majesty's gracious letter:

We rejoice to receive the assurance of Your Majesty's lively interest in the welfare of the Church of Scotland, and of the confidence with which you commit to our charge the important interests and solemn duties of attending to the care and spiritual well-being of the Scottish people.

We dutifully assure Your Majesty that we shall seek so to discharge our duties as to promote the best interests of the people of Scotland. It is our earnest desire and our purpose that the National Church shall encourage and guide the nation in social, benevolent, and religious work, and we venture to submit to Your Majesty that by enquiry into the actual condition of the people, and by devising measures to remedy evils which are thus brought to light, we are with some success endeavouring to fulfil that purpose. We know that in all efforts to lighten the burden of sickness and to brighten the homes of the poor we shall have the sympathy and favour of Your Majesty, and we pray Almighty God to give success to our labours in this field of humanity and religion.
