India Office, November 11, 1895.

THE following General Order, dated 27th September, 1895, with Despatch from Lieutenant-General Sir R. C. Low, K.C.B., regarding the operations of the Chitral Relief Force, has been received from the Government of India :—

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Simla, the 27th September, 1895.

FIELD OPERATIONS.—CHITRAL.

No. 998.—HIS Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the subjoined letter from the Adjutant-General in India, dated the 20th August, 1895, forwarding a Despatch from Lieutenant-General Sir R. C. Low, K.C.B., Commanding the Chitral Relief Force, recapitulating the operations of the force under his command, and bringing to notice the services of officers and men who have been specially distinguished during the operations.

2. The Governor-General in Council takes the opportunity afforded by the return of the Relief Force to British India to signify the cordial recognition of the Government of India of the distinguished manner in which the force has acquitted itself, during the arduous and completely successful operations now brought to a close.

3. The troops were hastily called into the field in March last to undertake the relief of the fort of Chitral, where the British Agent in Gilgit and a small force, mainly composed of the Imperial Service troops of the Kashmir State, were beleaguered by a large body of tribesmen under the direction of Umra Khan, the Chief of Jandol, and of Sher Afzal, an aspirant to the Mehtarship of Chitral. His Excellency in Council observed with satisfaction the rapidity and ease with which the mobilization of the force was carried out, and considers that this reflects credit both on the originators of the mobilisation scheme, and on those by whom it was worked out and carried into effect. The excellent work done by Colonel Boughiey, Royal Engineers, Manager of the North-Western State Railway, and those under him, contributed very largely to the successful mobilization of the force, and merits special acknowledgment.

4. The Governor-General in Council fully concurs with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in the opinions he has expressed regarding the skilful dispositions made by Lieutenant-General Sir R. C. Low, the admirable conduct of the troops, and the excellent spirit displayed by all ranks, not only in their encounters with the enemy, but also in overcoming the exceptional difficulties which presented themselves in the nature of the country. His Excellency in Council desires to express the thanks of the Government of India to Lieutenant-General Sir Robert Low, to the officers Commanding the Brigades of the force under his orders, and to all the officers and men engaged in the operations, for their most valuable services, through which the intentions of the Government have been fully carried out.

5. His Excellency in Council notes with much satisfaction the efficient manner in which the onerous duties of the Commissariat and other departments of the army and of the Telegraph and Postal Departments were performed. His Excellency has specially observed the excellent arrangements made by Major-General Stedman and his staff for the organization of the line of communications after the cessation of active hostilities, and the success with which the difficult task of carrying out the supply of the force has been accomplished. The transport trains placed at the disposal of the Government of India by the Maharajahs of Gwalior and Jeypore proved to be of the greatest value, and their high state of efficiency reflects much credit on the British officers who superintended their training in quarters, and worked them in the field. The Governor-General in Council is specially pleased to notice the terms of praise in which Lieutenant-General Low has spoken of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of these transport trains.

6. The services of the officers of the Royal Engineers, of the companies of Sappers and Miners, and of the battalions of Pioneers have been of special value in this campaign. The Governor-General in Council entirely agrees with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in his high estimate of the work done by the officers of the Royal Engineers. But for the remarkable skill displayed by these officers in constructing and maintaining bridges over the Swat and Panjkora Rivers, the operations would have been greatly retarded.

7. The officers of the Intelligence Branch of the Quartermaster-General's Department, and of the Survey Department of the Government of India, have done work which will be of lasting value. The Governor-General in Council appreciates the ability and energy shown by these officers in carrying out their laborious duties.

8. His Excellency in Council deplores the loss of the officers and men who have bravely fallen in the performance of their duty, or have succumbed to disease brought on by the conditions under which the operations were conducted. A special tribute is due to the memory of Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Batiye, by whose death, at the moment when he had, with great gallantry and skill, brought the battalion under his command out of a position of peculiar difficulty, the Indian service has lost one of its most admirable officers.

9. The mobilisation and advance of the Chitral Relief Force were the signal for very numerous offers of personal service, assistance, and co-operation from Native Chiefs throughout India, including especially those who maintain Imperial Service Troops, and from native noblemen and gentlemen of every station and degree. This widespread evidence of an earnest and vigilant loyalty has afforded the deepest gratification to the Governor-General in Council. Although the circumstances of the expedition did not afford to the British Government an opportunity which could be taken of employing the troops of India's loyal States, the Governor-General in Council none the less cordially tenders his acknowledgments to all who came forward ready to render service and prove their devotion.

No. 1086-G, "Field Operations," dated Simla, 20th August, 1895, from Major-General G. de C. Morton, C.B., Adjutant-General in India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department.

IN continuation of my letter No. 758-G, dated 21st May, 1895, I have the honour, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the accompanying Despatch* from Lieutenant-General Sir R. C. Low, K.C.B., Commanding the Chitral Relief Force.

2. As this is Sir Robert Low's final Despatch on the operations of the Force, it will be desirable to briefly review the operations from the date the Force took the field.

* No. 1174-A, dated 27th July, 1895.

3. Orders for its mobilisation were issued on the 14th March, 1895, and on the 1st April it had crossed the frontier with two of its brigades at Jalala and one at Lundkhwar.

4. The actions of the Malakand Pass, Khar, Chakdarra, Sado (or Panjkora) and Mamugai followed in rapid succession, and the details of each action, together with those of the passage of the Swat and Panjkora rivers, have already been published in the previous Despatches submitted to Government.

5. On the 20th April, a report, received through Brigadier-General Gatacre, of the great straits to which the garrison of Chitral was reduced, led to Sir Robert Low approving of a flying column of 500 men being pushed on in advance to effect the relief of the garrison at all hazards. The support to the Khan of Dir afforded by this small column, added to the prestige gained by the successes of the British arms, emboldened the Khan of Dir to advance with his tribesmen into the Chitral Valley, and his arrival there had a material effect on the raising of the siege and the flight of Sher Afzal—a service of great importance, which is alluded to by Sir Robert Low in paragraph 4 of his present Despatch.

6. In their advance from the Indian frontier, the troops under Sir Robert Low had to cross five mountain passes, three of which—the Malakand (2,900 feet), the Janbatai (7,400 feet) and the Lowarai (10,200 feet)—presented exceptional difficulties to the movement of troops, their baggage and supplies: they had to bridge two rivers which in rain became impassable torrents, and to fight five actions with the enemy, and, when not engaged in fighting or marching, they had to labour incessantly in road-making in order to make the mountain tracks passable for the force. The admirable conduct of, and the spirit displayed by, the troops have already been favourably commented on by Sir George White, and it remains now for His Excellency to bring to the notice of Government the skilful dispositions of their gallant leader, Lieutenant-General Sir Robert Low, K.C.B., and the admirable manner in which the intentions and orders of Government have been carried out by this distinguished officer.

7. His Excellency also concurs in the favourable terms in which Sir Robert Low has spoken of Major-General E. Stedman, C.B., Brigadier-Generals W. F. Gatacre, D.S.O., H. G. Waterfield, A. G. Hammond, C.B., V.C., D.S.O., and Brigadier-General Blood, C.B., and the other officers mentioned by him in his Despatch.

8. Sir George White has in a previous letter alluded to the loss sustained by the service in the premature death of the gallant Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Battye, Corps of Guides, and I am to add that the names of this officer and of the late Captain A. L. Peebles, Devonshire Regiment, would have been prominently brought forward for the favourable consideration of Government had they survived.

9. Although Major-General Stedman joined the Force after the conclusion of active hostilities, the success that has attended his efforts, and the skill he has displayed in the organization of the large transport train required for the provisioning and supply of the troops on so extended a line of communication, entitle him, in His Excellency's opinion, to special recognition by Government. In his important duties he has received material aid from his Staff, Colonel I. S. M. Hamilton, D.S.O., Assistant Adjutant- and Quartermaster-General, and Captain G. V. Kemball, Deputy

Assistant Adjutant- and Quartermaster-General.

10. The physical difficulties of the country traversed have afforded special opportunities of distinction to the officers of Royal Engineers who were selected for appointments in that branch of the service with the Force; that these opportunities were taken the fullest advantage of is apparent on reference to paragraph 10 of Sir Robert Low's Despatch, and the magnitude of the work accomplished can also be judged by the following descriptions of the six bridges thrown over the Swat and the Panjkora rivers and of a few smaller ones over minor streams:

A.—At Chakdarra on the Swat River.

(1.) A trestle bridge thrown over the Swat River by Major Barton, nearly 1,200 feet in total length, erected in the early part of April, which lasted till the end of June, when the suspension bridge was completed.

(2.) A pontoon bridge*, with twelve pontoons which were brought over the Malakand Pass by Captain Heath, and with trestle landing stages, and a trestle bridge over the smaller arm of the Swat River, erected in May and still in use.

(3.) A suspension bridge†, total length 948 feet, with two suspension spans of 250 and 110 feet over two main streams, erected by Captain Williams, and though only commenced in May was completed on 26th June. Total suspended lengths including back stays, are 500 feet and 220 feet.

B.—At Sado on the Panjkora River.

(4.) A bridge on rafts was first made by Major Aylmer on the 12th April; but was carried away by logs coming down the torrent of the swollen river.

(5.) A suspension bridge, telegraph wire being used for the cables, was then erected by Major Aylmer; main span 95 feet; finished on 16th April; only commenced on 13th April.

(6.) A third bridge‡ was afterwards erected by Captain Serjeant and the 1st Company Bengal Sappers and Miners; a suspension bridge with main span of 200 feet at a higher level than the one erected by Major Aylmer.

C.—At Chutiadan on the Panjkora.

(7.) A suspension bridge§ was afterwards erected six miles south of Dir, when it was decided to open out the road on the left bank of the Panjkora. This also was built by the 1st Company Sappers and Miners, under Captain Serjeant. Total span about 78 feet.

D.—Minor Bridges.

Several smaller bridges, chiefly trestle or cantilever bridges, were erected, of which the most important are—

(8.) A trestle bridge erected by Captain Skey and the 6th Company, Bengal Sappers, at Darora, over the Ushiri River.

(9.) A wooden girder bridge at Sakot, between Jalala and the Malakand; two spans of 50 feet; built by Captain Nanton, Royal Engineers.

The Commander-in-Chief considers that the record of work done by Colonels Leach and Shorie, Majors Ellis, Barton, Aylmer, V.C., and Abbott, Captains Tanner, Williams, and Serjeant, and other officers of the Royal Engineers, reflects the highest credit on those officers, and on the corps to which they belong. In the same terms His Excellency would comment on the survey work done by that Department under Captain Bythell, Royal Engineers.

The services of the two Pioneer regiments under Lieutenant-Colonels Gordon and Wilson have also been of a most valuable character, while every regiment in the force has contributed, in the shape of working parties, its quota to the opening out of this mountainous and difficult country by the construction of practicable roads.

11. The administration of the Commissariat-Transport Department could not have been so successfully conducted as it was, had it not been for the careful supervision exercised over all details both before and after the commencement of the campaign by the Commissary-General-in-Chief, Major-General Badcock, C.B., C.S.I., and the late Commissary-General, Punjab Command, Colonel R. Patch; and His Excellency desires me to bring the services of these officers, as well as of those of that Department named by the General Officer Commanding the Force, to the favourable notice of Government.

The transport trains maintained by the Maharajahs of Gwalior and Jeypore, respectively, as part of their quota of Imperial Service troops, have proved of the highest value. The efficiency manifested during a continuous strain could not, I am to observe, have been kept up without the closest attention to every detail in time of peace, and Sir George White cordially endorses the commendatory remarks made in paragraph 8 of the Despatch on Captain H. R. Tate, 15th Bengal Lancers, Captain J. B. Edwards, Central India Horse, and the native subordinates who have done such admirable work under the supervision of those officers.

12. To the careful medical arrangements and to increased sanitary precautions may be ascribed, in Sir George White's opinion, the comparative immunity from disease and the general good health that the troops have enjoyed under very trying conditions. These results could not have been attained without the great forethought and administrative experience of the late Principal Medical Officer, Her Majesty's Forces in India, Surgeon-Major-General Bradshaw, C.B., and of the officer now filling that appointment, Surgeon-Major-General A. A. Gore; and their efforts have been well seconded by Surgeon-Colonel T. Maunsell, Principal Medical Officer with the Force, and the medical officers under his orders.

13. The Veterinary Department, under Veterinary-Lieutenant-Colonel Poyser, Army Veterinary Department, has not only contributed greatly to the efficiency of the transport animals, but has diminished in great measure the heavy mortality that was a marked feature of former campaigns.

14. The Commander-in-Chief endorses the opinion expressed by Sir Robert Low in his paragraph 12 on the valuable services rendered by the officers of the Intelligence Branch.

15. The efficiency of the Army Signalling Staff, under Captain T. E. O'Leary, Royal Irish Fusiliers, has been thoroughly tested during the campaign, and has again proved the great utility of heliograph and flag signalling in the rapid transmission of intelligence and of orders in the field.

16. The services rendered by Major H. A. Deane and his political assistants have no doubt been fully appreciated by the Government of India in the Foreign Department; but Sir George White cannot permit this despatch to go forward without expressing his opinion of the valuable work done by this body of officers, and endorsing the recommendations made by Sir Robert Low on behalf of the Chief Political Officer.

17. I am specially to bring to notice the excellent work done by Colonel Boughey, the Manager of the North-Western Railway, and the officers and staff serving under him. Colonel Boughey has met all the demands of the military authorities to the Commander-in-Chief's entire satisfaction. The concentration of the troops was carried out without a hitch, and the resources of the railway made possible the sudden and unexpected nature of the movement against the tribes.

18. In all the previous despatches that His Excellency has written to the Government of India on former campaigns, it has been an agreeable duty to him to dwell upon the admirable organisation of, and the excellent services rendered by, the Telegraph Department. This expedition gives him yet another opportunity of commending the enterprise with which the telegraph line was so rapidly carried forward with the advance, in the face of all difficulties, under the able and indefatigable direction of Mr. F. E. Dempster, whose services merit the Commander-in-Chief's cordial acknowledgments, and are now brought to the favourable notice of Government. His Excellency here takes the opportunity of expressing his acknowledgments to Mr. C. H. Reynolds, Director-General of Telegraphs, for the ready response he has always made to all military demands upon the Department, and especially in the matter of facilitating the establishment of direct communication between Army Head-Quarters and the General Officer Commanding in the field.

19. His Excellency also commends to the favourable notice of Government the good work done by the Postal Department under Mr. A. F. Ryan, Chief Postal Officer with the Force.

No. 1174-A, "Field Operations," dated Laram Pass, 27th July, 1895, from Lieutenant-General Sir Robert C. Low, K.C.B., Commanding the Chitral Relief Force, to the Adjutant-General in India.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report in continuation of my No. 296-A of the 1st May last.

1. After the capture of Sher Afzal the troops were halted, and it was a question as to whether it was desirable to move up to the Chitral Fort. The British Agent there advised that the troops should not advance, on the ground that the valley, already devastated by Umra Khan, could not give supplies.

2. The Government of India, however, decided that British troops should be shown at Chitral.

Brigadier-General Gatacre, D.S.C., Commanding the 3rd Brigade, was ordered to move on the three marches from Ashreth to Chitral.

He found the track up the Kunar River quite as bad as, if not worse than, the defiles on each side of the Lowarai Pass, and, as before, the track had to be made passable by the skill of engineer officers and sappers and by the willing labour of the troops.

3. During the first week of May I was detained at Dir. The Khan of Dir at this time wanted our constant support. He had, by capturing Sher Afzal and handing him over to me, done good service and simplified the political situation at Chitral, but the duty was a very unpleasant one for him, and he incurred a great deal of unpopularity amongst the people of his own country, in which he was not yet firmly established as ruler.

4. It is only right that I should here record the military services of the Khan of Dir during the advance of the Force, as it bears considerably on the main object of the expedition,—namely, the relief of Chitral Fort.

Mahomed Sharif Khan, the Khan of Dir, some years ago was dispossessed of the whole of his territory by Umra Khan, and at the time of the mobilisation of the Chitral Relief Force he was a refugee in Upper Swat. On hearing that the Government of India intended to send a force against Umra Khan, he joined me at the front, avowedly with the object of regaining his lost territory and position, but offering his services at the same time,—services which, as will be seen, were afterwards of great importance.

After the action of the 4th April, on the descent from the Malakand Pass to the Swat Valley, the Khan of Dir was sent on in advance across the Laram Pass into Dir territory, with orders to raise his tribes and recapture, if possible, all the forts in Dir territory then held by detachments of Umra Khan's men, and then to push men across the Lowarai Pass to the assistance of the besieged garrison of Chitral.

The delay to the advance of the Force caused by the floods in the Panjkora River, the washing away of the first bridge, and the necessity of building a suspension bridge, have been duly reported in my Despatch of which this is a continuation. At that time it was believed that the garrison of Chitral had food only till the 20th April, and, after the defeat of Umra Khan on the 17th, and his flight, it was clear that, using the utmost exertions, the leading troops could hardly reach Chitral before the 25th, and that the action of the Khan of Dir might have an important effect on the fate of the besieged garrison.

The Khan carried out his instructions most loyally, not only in capturing the different forts in Dir territory, in doing which, it may be said, he acted as much for himself as for us, but also in pushing forward men into the Chitral Valley, which is outside his territory, and which was done entirely in our interests.

He captured the Fort of Dir from Umra Khan's troops on the 12th April, with the loss of sixty of his own men, and he pushed forward men under his brother, who took and occupied the fort of Kila Drosh, the most important fort in the Chitral Valley, on the 18th April. Kila Drosh is two marches south of Chitral Fort, and on the same date Colonel Kelly's troops were two marches north of Chitral Fort, while Brigadier-General Gatacre's brigade had reached Barwa, five marches south of Kila Drosh. The siege of Chitral was raised that night, the garrison finding themselves free on the morning of the 19th April.

It is due to the Khan of Dir that the active part he took should be recognised, since, if he did nothing more, he heralded our arrival in the Chitral Valley.

5. Leaving Dir on the 9th of May, I marched to Chitral and reached it on the 16th. The troops were drawn up to receive me, and in front of them I met the British Agent, Surgeon-Major G. S. Robertson, C.S.I., and the provisional Mehtar, the boy Shujah-ul-Mulk.

The parade was made as impressive as possible, for the Chitralis had never seen British soldiers, and as a matter of fact did not believe that we had any. A portion of the garrison that had defended the fort during the siege, viz., one company of the 14th Sikhs, was in the centre, supported on the right by the Gilgit Field Force, consisting of the 32nd Pioneers and two guns of the Kashmir Mountain Battery, the whole under Lieutenant-Colonel J. G. Kelly, 32nd Pioneers; on the left were the troops of the 3rd Brigade, viz., the 1st Battalion of "The Buffs," No. 2 (Derajat) Mountain Battery, No. 4 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, a detachment of the 2nd Battalion, 4th Gurkha Rifles, and my escort of one company of the Seaforth Highlanders; the whole parade being under the command of Brigadier-General Gatacre, D.S.O. After inspecting the troops, I formed them into three sides of a square and, addressing them, pointed out that the parade was a very remarkable one, in that every man present had received the congratulations of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress; that the gallantry of the besieged garrison of Chitral was the pride and admiration of all their comrades in the army; as was also the determined march of Lieutenant-Colonel Kelly and his troops, who were the first to reach Chitral.

6. Prior to my departure from Chitral, the British Agent heard rumours of disturbances in Kohistan, and asked that the troops of this Force should hold the valley and relieve Lieutenant-Colonel Kelly's troops. This was sanctioned by Government, and Chitral was occupied by the 2nd Battalion, 4th Gurkha Rifles, and the whole line from Chitral to our frontier in India has since been held by the troops of this Force.

7. During the operations of the month of April the troops of the Force under my command advanced from our Indian frontier into Chitral territory, crossing five mountain passes, three of which—the Malakand (2,900 ft.), the Janbatai (7,400 ft.), and the Lowarai (10,200 ft.)—were of the most difficult character; and having also to throw bridges over two large rivers, the Swat and the Panjkora, besides innumerable smaller streams. The tracks across the mountains were so narrow and difficult that it is no exaggeration to say that the troops had to make them passable for baggage animals every yard of the way.

8. During the first advance of the Force the object was speed, and the labour of the troops was spent in making the mountain tracks passable. Since the 1st May the troops have been employed in improving these tracks into roads, over which the transport can work without exhaustion.

From the first the Gwalior and Jeypore transport rendered services which may honestly be described as invaluable at a time of great pressure, when sufficient transport had not yet been collected. They lifted a very large amount of commissariat stores from Nowshera to Dargai. After this, at the request of the General of Communications, they parked their carriages at Nowshera and brought their ponies up to Dir, where they undertook the daily convoy duties, working as pack transport. When no longer required at Dir they returned to the Nowshera-Dargai stage; and, finally, when the Chakdara suspension bridge was completed, they brought their carts over the Malakand Pass and worked between Khar and Sarai. Probably they are the first wheeled transport ever employed on this route. Thus wherever their services were most required they have always been to the front and eager to meet all requirements. The greatest credit is due to Captain Tate, of the Jeypore transport, and to Captain Edwards, of the Gwalior transport; for their thorough efficiency, and the native officers, non-commissioned officers and men deserve all that can be said in their praise, for their willingness and cheery good conduct.

9. The heat in the valleys has been intense during May and June, but posts have been found on or close to the line of communications for the British soldiers of the Force, namely, on the Laram, the Janbatai and Lowarai Passes, where they have had a comparatively cool climate.

10. The operations of the Force being throughout in a country which has hitherto been closed to us, has afforded special opportunities for certain branches of the service to earn distinction. This is notably the case as regards the Sappers and Miners and Pioneers. The rapid way in which almost impassable footpaths over mountain passes were converted into excellent mule and camel roads, testifies to the energy and zeal of the officers and the endurance and physique of the men of these branches of the service; while the hastily-constructed bridges over unfordable rivers and mountain torrents, with many of the gallery passages along bare cliffs built out from sheer precipices with cantilevers of beams, doors, &c., from the nearest villages, were marvels of ingenuity and resource.

11. The survey party with the Force has done most valuable work, which has principally consisted in triangulation, traversing, and large-scale surveys of country, and plans of various places. The extent of this work may be judged when I say that the area embraced by the triangulation has been upwards of 1,500 square miles; 60 miles have been traversed, while the country mapped at two inches, one inch, half an inch, and quarter inch to a mile scale has been respectively 40 square miles, 450 square miles, 100 square miles, and 1,200 square miles.

12. The Intelligence Branch also has lost no opportunity of adding to our knowledge of the country. Stage by stage as the Force advanced the officers of the Intelligence Department reconnoitred, sketched, and reported on the route to be followed by the troops in rear, the mileage of this alone being about 186 miles. In addition 600 miles of branch roads were sketched and reconnoitred as well as between 30 and 40 passes, and the whole country embraced by these reconnaissances was gazetted and much new information collected.

13. The different actions in which the troops of the Force have been engaged have already been reported, but I may now briefly refer to them with the view of bringing to His Excellency's notice the names of officers who have earned distinction.

At the storming of the Malakand Pass, the attack, as already reported, was made by seven battalions of the 1st and 2nd Brigades, two battalions, the 4th Sikhs and Guides Infantry, being sent up the highest peaks with orders to make a turning movement on reaching the crest, while the direct frontal attack on the enemy's main position was made by the King's Own Scottish Borderers and the Gordon Highlanders, supported on the left by the King's Royal Rifle Corps, and on the right by the Bedfordshire Regiment and the 37th Dogras. The action commenced at 8.45 A.M., and the pass was captured at 2 P.M. I attach a casualty return, Appendix A, which shows the losses on our side. The enemy numbered about 12,000, and afterwards admitted a loss of over 300 killed.

I would bring to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief the admirable manner in which the regiments above mentioned completed a very difficult task, and the able manner in which they were led. I would bring the following officers to His Excellency's notice in connection with this action:—

Lieutenant-Colonel H. H. Mathias, Commanding the Gordon Highlanders, who led the right of the frontal attack.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. G. Dixon, King's Own Scottish Borderers, who led the left of the frontal attack.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. McCall, King's Royal Rifle Corps, who, by skilfully using his opportunities, brought his battalion to the main position of the enemy and joined the King's Own Scottish Borderers in the final rush and capture of the main position.

Lieutenant-Colonel A. M. Paterson, Commanding the Bedfordshire Regiment, who conducted the pursuit of the enemy on the north side of the pass.

Lieutenant-Colonel C. Dempster, Commanding the 4th Sikh Infantry, who led his regiment up the highest peak and conducted a difficult operation with great determination and skill.

Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Battye, Commanding the Queen's Own Corps of Guides (since killed), who advanced on a parallel spur, leading his regiment with great judgment and gallantry.

Major J. Dacres Cunningham, Royal Artillery, who commanded the three batteries (16 guns) most skilfully, and by accurate firing largely contributed to the success of the day.

Captain O. S. W. Nugent, King's Royal Rifle Corps, displayed gallantry and presence of mind in rescuing a wounded man of his battalion. Captain Nugent was directed with a party of the battalion to occupy an adjoining empty sungar and endeavour to silence the fire of the enemy in a position from whence they had been causing loss of men to the advance. On occupying the sungar he found that one of his men was lying wounded outside and exposed to the enemy's fire, when he at once sprang out, together with No. 2664, Corporal W. H. Race, of the Bedfordshire Regiment (who was attached as a signaller), and brought the wounded man into a place of safety.

Lieutenant and Adjutant F. W. Kerr, Gordon Highlanders, who, after Captain Burney, of the same regiment, was wounded, collected the company and led the final rush of the party on the village at the top of the pass.

Captain F. Campbell, of the Queen's Own Corps of Guides, was detached with two companies and ascended the hill on a spur between the Guides Infantry and the 4th Sikhs, and rendered great service to the advance of both regiments by the skill with which he used his position and brought flanking fire from both sides on the enemy opposing the advance.

Lieutenant and Adjutant R. Harman, D.S.O., 4th Sikh Infantry, led a portion of the Dogra company of the regiment over some most difficult ground, and rendered great service to the advance until very severely wounded.

14. On the descent into the Swat Valley on the 4th April, the troops of the 1st Brigade were met by the advancing enemy. The troops held the eastern hills of the descent, while the baggage passed through the defile to the open in the Swat Valley. The brunt of the fighting fell on the 37th Dogras, supported by No. 4 Company of the Bengal Sappers and Miners, and by one company of the 15th Sikhs, who were ordered to hold a low hill which commanded the passage, and who repulsed repeated attacks of large bodies of the enemy; the final and most determined attempt being frustrated and enemy routed by a brilliant charge of the Guides Cavalry. I attach a statement (Appendix B) of our casualties on this occasion.

With reference to this action I would submit to His Excellency the names of the following officers:—

Lieutenant-Colonel A. McL. Mills, commanding 37th Dogras, who had the onerous duty of holding the position which was the main object of repeated attacks by the enemy in largely superior strength.

Major W. S. Marshall, 37th Dogras, who handled his men with great skill and coolness at a critical moment.

Major F. J. Aylmer, V.C., Royal Engineers, who covered the left flank of the 37th Dogras with his company (No. 4 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners).

Captain R. B. Adams, commanding the Guides Cavalry, who contributed largely to the final withdrawal of the enemy by boldly charging very superior numbers.

Lieutenant G. M. Baldwin, Guides Cavalry, who was in immediate command of the squadron, and who was wounded.

Subadar Gurdatt Singh, 15th Sikhs, who commanded one company of his regiment which had marched with No. 4 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, as a covering party, and handled his men with skill and coolness on the left of the 37th Dogras.

15. On the 7th April the enemy disputed the passage of the Swat River, which was effected by the advance of the 11th Bengal Lancers and Guides Cavalry to the river bank under cover of artillery and infantry fire, the crossing of the river by those regiments, and their brilliant charge and pursuit of the enemy for many miles, while the infantry forded the river and seized the positions of the enemy and Umra Khan's fort of Ramora. I attach a statement of our losses on that occasion (Appendix C), and would bring to His Excellency's notice the services of the following officers:—

Brigadier-General H. G. Waterfield, who by the able manner in which he directed the attack, secured the defeat of the enemy with heavy loss, together with the least possible loss to our troops.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. W. H. Scott, 11th Bengal Lancers, who led and directed the cavalry advance.

Major H. H. R. Heath, 11th Bengal Lancers, who led the right of the advancing attack of cavalry, which caught the enemy before they could reach the hills, committing great slaughter amongst them and pursuing as far as Uch.

Captain H. Wright, 11th Bengal Lancers, who commanded the squadron on the left, which, routing the footmen and riding through them, continued the pursuit of the enemy's cavalry up to the top of the Katgola Pass.

Jemadar Khushal Singh, 11th Bengal Lancers, who led the leading troop across the river under a heavy fire, and himself captured a standard from the enemy, killing many with his own hand.

16. The next action was that of the Guides Infantry at the Sado Ferry on the Panjkora River on the 13th April, which has already been described in detail, at the conclusion of which the regiment lost their commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Battye. The attack of the enemy continued during the night of 13th and till the morning of the 14th. I attach a casualty return (Appendix D) of our losses on the occasion, and would bring to His Excellency's notice the services of the following officers:—

Captain F. Campbell, who took command when Lieutenant-Colonel Battye fell, and who skilfully conducted the further retirement of the regiment.

Lieutenant F. A. Maxwell, Royal Sussex Regiment, a Probationer for the Staff Corps, attached to the Queen's Own Corps of Guides, for the gallantry he displayed in the removal of Lieutenant-Colonel Battye's body under fire.

Surgeon-Lieutenant D. W. Sutherland, Indian Medical Service, for the promptitude and coolness he displayed in attending on the wounded under short-range fire.

17. The three days following the above action, while full of anxiety regarding the rising of the Panjkora River in front and the Swat River in rear, were notable for the arrival in camp of Lieutenants Edwardes and Fowler, who had been prisoners in Umra Khan's hands; their safe arrival in camp being a great relief, as I had constant fears as to what their fate would be on my advancing into Umra Khan's territory.

18. I may record here an instance of the promptitude of Brigadier-General Gatacre, D.S.O., and the gallantry of Major Aylmer, V.C., Royal Engineers, which occurred on the 15th April. On that day I had only three rafts left, and in the last attempt to cross the Panjkora River one of these three rafts was overturned, having on it at the time two British soldiers, Private Hall and Private Ellwood, of the Maxim gun detachment of the Devonshire Regiment, one sepoy and one boatman. When the raft was overturned Brigadier-General Gatacre was standing on the bank, and, seeing that one of the British soldiers (Private Hall) and the sepoy and boatman had regained the raft, which was being carried down the stream bottom upwards, and knowing that the stream took a considerable bend before it came to the point where the suspension bridge was being built, galloped down to that point and informed Major Aylmer, who was superintending the construction of the bridge, of the accident. At that time there was no superstructure to the bridge—merely the standards and wire suspension ropes. Major Aylmer ordered a rope to be passed across to the right bank, but the slack was caught by the current, and the rope was carried away. At this moment the raft appeared in sight about 200 yards off, and Major Aylmer, seeing the urgency of the case, got into a sling cradle and was pulled to the centre of the stream. The raft immediately after passed under him, and he grasped Private Hall who left his hold on the raft, whereupon his extra weight immersed the cradle in the water, so that officer and man were in great danger of being swept away. However, Major Aylmer held on manfully, and with the assistance of No. 3189, Lance-Naick Sham Singh, of No. 4 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, who got down into the cradle to help Major Aylmer, the whole party were landed, though with much difficulty and danger.

19. The last action in which the force has been engaged was that of the 17th of April. In this fight the enemy did not make any stand, possibly owing to the able manner in which the attack was directed by Brigadier-General Gatacre; for the positions of the enemy were taken in flank from east to west, and they were abandoned one after the other as the troops advanced. I append (Appendix E) a casualty return of our losses on this occasion.

20. I cannot conclude this portion of my report without bringing to His Excellency's notice the passage of the Lowarai Pass by the troops of the 3rd Brigade under the direction of Brigadier-General W. F. Gatacre, D.S.O. At the time there was about three miles of ascent to be made over snow, and the same extent of snow on the descent. The pass was crossed in very bad weather, which added to the difficulties and to the time taken in crossing the mules and supplies. The time of year (early spring) necessitated the passage being, if possible, done in the very early morning while it was yet freezing and the snow was as sound as possible. The start, therefore, was made from Gujar at the foot of the snow at 1.30 A.M. by torch-light. A strong working party led the advance armed with improvised snow-ploughs to cut through drifts when necessary, but their main duty was to steadily tramp down a track all the way, which in this manner hardened sufficiently to bear the weight of the mules, while men with torches were left at turns and dangerous places; for if once a mule left the track, it at once sank into the adjoining snow and had to be unladen and lifted again on to the beaten path. In this way the top of the pass was reached in the middle of heavy rain and sleet at 7 A.M. The descent on the north side is very steep, never less than 1:4 and often 1:3, and the track had to be tramped down in zigzags. The laden mules found it almost impossible to control their movements, especially as the rain, freezing on the snow, had made the top layer into a sheet of ice, and large numbers of them were constantly slipping off, and, so to speak, "tobogganing" straight down the mountain. General Gatacre in his report says he saw as many as twenty at a time solemnly sliding down on their haunches for distances varying from 100 to 200 feet or more, when they turned complete somersaults into the snow, whence they could not move till dug out; and, as it was impossible to load them again there, the bags or boxes carried by them were sent sliding down the mountain, guided by ropes from party to party of men stationed on the descent, while the animals, replaced without loads on the path, found their way down the beaten track.

The column reached Ziarat, on the north side of the pass, below the snow line, by nightfall. I may add that the pass became more and more dangerous from this time till the snow melted sufficiently to admit of a summer road being made above the snow-covered torrent by the Pioneers. The only passage, until the snow melted sufficiently to admit of this being done, was up and down the centre of the snow-covered torrent, and for about ten days in the spring this becomes very dangerous, owing to the liability to sink through into the water beneath and to the avalanches of snow from the adjoining cliffs. Probably the best time to cross this and other passes of this nature is on a fine day at the latter end of winter when the snow is hard.

21. In conclusion, I have the honor to submit the following list of names of the officers whose services I would wish to bring to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India for his favourable consideration:

Major-General E. Stedman, C.B., joined the force in April as Second-in-Command and General of Communications. He was given immediate command of the troops in rear of the advance, from the base to Dir, where the advanced depot was situated; and had charge of all the supply, transport, ordnance, and medical arrangements by which the troops under him, and those of the advance force beyond Dir, were maintained. Up to this time I had had to deal directly with the Brigadiers behind me, and with the various heads of departments—a matter of extreme difficulty, as the telegraph line was often some distance in rear and was sometimes interrupted; so that the relief obtained when Major-General Stedman took up his duties was immediately apparent.

Major-General Stedman is an officer of wide experience and knowledge of field requirements; he possesses great powers of organization, and his forethought for the wants of the Force has been a marked feature of his administration of the departments on which the Force depended. His services have been conspicuous, and I confidently recommend him to the notice of His Excellency as an officer of exceptional ability and worthy of advancement.

Brigadier-General W. F. Gatacre, D.S.O., has commanded the 3rd Brigade, and is an officer of exceptional and inexhaustible energy. He conducted in a very able manner the action of the 17th April, and his advance from Miankileh across the Janbatai and Lowarai passes was an example of what troops can do when inspired by a leader ready to accept responsibility and devoted to his duty.

I commend Brigadier-General Gatacre to His Excellency's notice as an officer of great ability and exceptional power of inspiring troops under him with energy and devotion.

Brigadier-General H. G. Waterfield commanded the 2nd Brigade during the forcing of the Malakand Pass and in the action of the 7th April at the passage of the Swat River. On both occasions he exhibited a quick grasp of the situation, followed by determined action, which show him to be a commander of promise. He has sound judgment, and I found him a very valuable assistant in more than one difficult situation.

Brigadier-General A. G. Hammond, V.C., C.B., D.S.O., had charge of the line of communications up to the arrival of Major-General Stedman, C.B., and did good work under considerable difficulties. Afterwards he was appointed to command the 4th Brigade, and has exercised his command with ability and success.

Of the divisional staff I have first to bring to His Excellency's notice Brigadier-General B. Blood, C.B., my chief staff officer. I am deeply indebted to Brigadier-General Blood, who is an officer of exceptional ability, ever ready for active work in the field or for the larger questions of strategical importance. He has also been of invaluable assistance from his large former war experience and engineering knowledge. In conducting his arduous duties as Chief Staff Officer, he has exhibited tact, firmness, and courtesy to all, and I would especially bring him to His Excellency's notice as an officer whose advancement would be a benefit to the public service.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. S. Craigie, Assistant Adjutant-General, is an excellent staff officer. He possesses marked ability, together with a complete knowledge of both staff and regimental duties; he is active, a good rider, very hard-working, and always ready for anything that may be required of him; and his tact, patience, and temper are remarkable.

Lieutenant-Colonel G. H. C. Dyco, Assistant Quartermaster-General, is also an excellent staff officer; most able, energetic, and reliable. He is very active, a good rider, with great tact, and always cheerful and good tempered. He is remarkably quick and accurate in his work.

Captain J. E. Nixon, Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, Intelligence Branch, is a very promising officer, with great energy and marked ability. He is of very active habits, takes great interest in his work as Intelligence Officer, and has done very good service in obtaining information about the country in advance of the Force.

Lieutenant W. R. Robertson, 3rd Dragoon Guards, Field Intelligence Officer, is a very active and intelligent officer of exceptional promise.

Colonel W. W. Murdoch, Colonel on the Staff, Commanding Royal Artillery, is an officer of large experience and knowledge of artillery matters. He carried out his duties to my entire satisfaction.

The campaign has been remarkable for an exceptional amount of engineering work, and in carrying it out the services of Colonel H. P. Leach, D.S.O., have been of very great value. He is an officer of conspicuous ability, of wide experience, of great readiness of resource and of remarkable activity and energy; and I consider that his presence with the expedition contributed materially to its success.

Major C. C. Ellis, Royal Engineers, is a most hard-working and able officer, and has done valuable service.

Captain J. A. Tanner, D.S.O., Adjutant, Royal Engineers, is an excellent officer and his services have been of great value.

Major S. C. H. Monro, D.S.O., Seaforth Highlanders, was Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General of the Lines of Communications during the first phase of the campaign and was afterwards a Road Commandant. He carried out his duties most satisfactorily.

No body of officers or men in the Force had more exposure or more arduous duties to perform than the signallers, and great credit is due to Captain T. E. O'Leary, Royal Irish Fusiliers, Superintendent of Army Signalling, for the efficient way in which signalling was maintained throughout the operations.

Captain W. F. Shakspear, 6th Bengal Cavalry, has carried on the duties of Provost-Marshal in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

Major W. St. J. Richardson, Indian Staff Corps, Field Paymaster, has carried out his duties to my satisfaction.

Surgeon-Colonel T. Maunsell, Army Medical Staff, Principal Medical Officer with the Force, is an officer of ability and experience, and his management of the medical and sanitary arrangements connected with the Force have been most successful.

Captain W. J. Bythell, Royal Engineers, is an officer of marked ability and energy; he pushed on his survey operations with remarkable rapidity.

I would specially bring the services of Major H. A. Deane, Indian Staff Corps, Deputy Commissioner of Peshawar, and Chief Political Officer with the Force, to His Excellency's notice. He possesses an intimate knowledge of the frontier tribes and their language, together with a remarkable power of eliciting the truth from conflicting reports, and he has supplied me throughout the operations with much valuable information. It was largely due to his personal influence with the Khan of Dir that the Khan pushed forward his men, and captured Kila Drosh, thereby alarming the besiegers of Chitral for the safety of their retreat. Again, it was mainly due to Major Deane's influence that Sher Afzal and other important prisoners were captured. I commend Major Deane specially to His Excellency's notice.

I have also to bring to His Excellency's notice the services of my personal staff:—

Lieutenant R. B. Low, 9th Bengal Lancers, my Aide-de-Camp, is an officer of much promise; he is impervious to fatigue, an excellent rider, and a keen soldier who has seen much previous service, and has been invaluable to me.

Lieutenant A. A. Irvine, 3rd Bengal Infantry, my Orderly Officer, has been eager in doing his duty, very active, and of much assistance.

Ressaldar Nadir Khan, 9th Bengal Lancers, acted as my Native Aide-de-Camp, and was very useful.

I would further invite His Excellency's attention to the very valuable services of the late Captain A. L. Peebles, Devonshire Regiment. This talented and energetic officer commanded the Maxim detachment of his regiment, which was specially attached to the Force, and which he had brought to a state of admirable efficiency. He was mortally wounded on the 14th April by a chance shot, and died next day.

Besides the officers already named who came more especially under my personal notice, the following are very favourably mentioned by General Officers commanding brigades as having shown zeal and ability in carrying out their duties, and I accordingly recommend them to His Excellency's notice:—

First Brigade.

Major G. D. M. Nisbett, Bedfordshire Regiment.

Major G. G. Grimwood, King's Royal Rifle Corps.

Major R. C. Hadow, 15th Sikhs.

Lieutenant R. G. Brooke, 7th (Queen's Own) Hussars, Orderly Officer.

Fourth Brigade.

Captain G. J. Younghusband, Queen's Own Corps of Guides, Brigade-Major, who also served throughout the first phase of the campaign as Brigade-Major, Divisional Troops, showing himself to be a most smart, energetic, and promising staff officer.

Lieutenant E. B. C. Boddam, 2nd Sikh Infantry, Orderly Officer.

The General of Communications brings the following officers to notice, and I fully concur in the opinions of them which he expresses, and recommend them to His Excellency's considerations:—

Colonel I. S. M. Hamilton, D.S.O., Assistant-Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, Line of Communications, has had long staff experience, and possesses much skill in organization. His services have been most valuable.

Captain G. V. Kemball, Royal Artillery, Deputy-Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, Line of Communications, had immediate charge of the railway arrangements for the first concentration of the Force. His services throughout the campaign have been of great value.

Surgeon-Colonel G. Thomson, M.B., Indian

Medical Service, Principal Medical Officer, Line of Communications, an officer of judgment and experience, administered his department in a very satisfactory manner.

Major A. F. Barrow, C.M.G., 12th Bengal Infantry, as Base Commandant at Nowshera, has had very important duties to perform, especially at the beginning of the campaign. In their discharge he has shown great tact and organising ability.

Major F. S. Gwatkin, 18th Bengal Lancers, has been in charge of the first section as Road Commandant since the beginning of the campaign. His energy and tact have been conspicuous, and his services most valuable.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. T. Shone, D.S.O., the Commanding Royal Engineer of the Line of Communications, displayed unfailing energy and confidence, while directing the difficult operations entrusted to his charge. The great ability of this officer is well known, and he has shown it conspicuously during this campaign.

Lieutenant-Colonel A. G. Yaldwyn, Indian Staff Corps, Divisional Commissariat Officer, and Major C. M. FitzGerald, Indian Staff Corps, Divisional Transport Officer, both officers of experience, have administered their respective charges satisfactorily.

Major K. S. Dunsterville, Royal Artillery, Senior Ordnance Officer, an officer of exceptional qualifications in his own department, carried on his duties very satisfactorily.

Veterinary - Lieutenant - Colonel R. Poyser, Army Veterinary Department, Inspecting Veterinary Officer, who was ably seconded by Veterinary-Major G. J. R. Rayment and the other officers of his department with the Force, has done work of the greatest value.

Lieutenant H. W. F. Cooke, 24th Punjab Infantry, rendered excellent service in his capacity of Aide-de-Camp.

The good work performed by the Telegraph Department during the campaign, and the rapidity with which the wire was pushed on to Chitral, in spite of all difficulties, are sufficient evidences of the ability of Mr. F. E. Dempster, the Chief Telegraph Officer, and of the zeal and energy of his staff.

The postal arrangements were successfully carried out under the direction of Mr. A. F. Ryan, the Chief Postal Officer with the Force.

The Commanding Officers of Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers and the several heads of Departments with the Force have submitted the names of a large number of officers who have done exceptionally good work. From these lists I have selected the following officers, whom I strongly recommend for favourable consideration, in addition to those whose names have already been mentioned in this despatch, namely:—

Sha-bash that he such a gun for Bunnyah Malka did prepare in Jandoul!

In the times of the first Badshahs, the Khan of Jandoul was a great Bahadur against enemies;
also of great intellectual power. With cleverness and soft words he obtained possession of the whole world (the Valley of Jandoul): (as to the gun) there is no such gun which would cause the enemy's blood to flow.

Such an enormous gun was made by Yar Ahad
(or Ahmad,—might be either) of Jandoul. Sha-bash, oh, Khan, who art like the Egyptian Bad-shah to have done such work!
