ORDER of the Postmaster-General under Section 3, Sub-section (5), of the Telegraph Act, 1899.

WHEREAS it is enacted by section 3, sub-section (5), of the Telegraph Act, 1899, that if the licence of an existing Company (hereinafter referred to as "the Company") is under the provisions of section 3 of the said Act extended in respect of any exchange area for a period of not less than eight years the Company shall, at the request of any other licensee of the Postmaster-General providing public telephonic communication in the whole or any part of that exchange area (which other licensee is hereinafter referred to as "the new licensee") and under such circumstances and on such terms and conditions as within six months from the passing of this Act may be prescribed by an order of the Postmaster-General made with the approval of the Treasury, afford all proper facilities for the transmission of telephonic messages between persons using the system of the Company (either in the whole or in part of the exchange area, as the Postmaster-General may prescribe) and persons using the system of such other licensee, provided that the licensee so requiring inter-communication shall in any such case afford similar facilities:

Now, therefore, I, Henry, Duke of Norfolk, Her Majesty's Postmaster-General, by virtue of the powers vested in me for that purpose as aforesaid, and of all other powers vested in me in that behalf, do, with the approval of the Treasury, order as follows:—

1. When the subscribers of the new licensee at the date when inter-communication is requested equal or exceed in number one-fourth of those of the Company at that date, in the area specified in the new licence, or number 500, whichever first happens, but not before, mutual inter-communication shall be afforded by the Company and the new licensee between their respective subscribers and other persons using their respective systems in the area specified in the new licence only. Such inter-communication as aforesaid is hereinafter referred to as "restricted inter-communication."

2. In any case in which the Company's exchange area, as defined by agreement with the Postmaster-General, exceeds in extent the area specified in the new licence, then, when the subscribers of the new licensee at the date when inter-communication is requested equal or exceed in number one-fourth of those of the Company throughout the whole exchange area of the Company, at that date, but not before, mutual inter-communication shall be afforded by the Company and the new licensee between their respective subscribers and other persons using their respective systems throughout the whole exchange area of the Company. Such inter-communication as last aforesaid is hereinafter referred to as "unrestricted inter-communication."

3. The fact that restricted inter-communication exists with reference to the system of any new licensee shall not prejudice that licensee in requesting unrestricted inter-communication, and the two kinds of inter-communication may exist side by side on different terms.

4. The Company and the new licensee may make terminal charges not exceeding the following:—

In the case of restricted inter-communication—
Per call.

- (a.) When the subscribers of the new licensee at the date when inter-communication is requested number 500, but are less than one-fourth in number of the Company's subscribers at that date in the area specified in the new licence ... 1½d.
- (b.) When the subscribers of the new licensee equal or exceed in number one-fourth (but do not equal in number one-half) of the Company's subscribers for the time being in the area specified in the new licence ... 1d.
- (c.) When the subscribers of the new licensee equal or exceed in number one-half of the Company's subscribers for the time being in the area specified in the new licence ... Nil.

In the case of unrestricted inter-communication—
Per call.

(a.) When the subscribers of the new licensee at the date when inter-communication is requested equal or exceed in number one-fourth (but do not equal in number one-half) of those of the Company at that date in the whole of the Company's exchange area,—in respect of inter-communication with the subscribers of the Company and other persons using the system of the Company in the portion of the Company's exchange area which is not included in the area specified in the new licence ... .. 1d.

(b.) When the subscribers of the new licensee equal or exceed in number one-half of those of the Company for the time being in the whole exchange area,—in respect of such inter-communication as last aforesaid ... Nil.

5. Any new licensee requesting facilities for inter-communication shall satisfy the Postmaster-General that such licensee possesses the required number of bona fide subscribers actually working.

6. When inter-communication has once been established—

(a.) it shall be maintained, notwithstanding that the number (actual or relative) of the subscribers to one or other of the inter-communicating systems may subsequently fall below the number which would entitle a new licensee to request inter-communication, and

(b.) no terminal charge shall be increased because the number (actual or relative) of the subscribers to one or other of the inter-communicating systems may fall below the number which first justified such charge, and

(c.) if terminal charges have ceased, they shall not under any circumstances be reimposed.

7. The term "subscriber" means any person with whom the Company, or the new licensee (as the case may be) has entered into an agreement for at least one year, for the purpose of enabling such person to communicate from time to time with other persons through the medium of an exchange, and does not include persons using call offices on an exchange.

8. This Order may be cited as the Telegraph (Telephonic Inter-communication) Order, 1899.

Given under my Seal of Office this twentieth day of September, 1899.

THE Roani Bank was surveyed by Captain Vidal in 1837, and is marked on his chart as having 7 fathoms over it. In 1870, a vague report was received that the depth on this bank was 6 feet, and it was so marked on the Admiralty Chart. This 6 feet was searched for in 1873 by Her Majesty's ship "Argus," and in 1881 by Her Majesty's ship "Firefly," but the shoalest water found on both occasions was 6 $\frac{3}{4}$  fathoms. As it is evident that did a 6-feet shoal exist here its locality would be often indicated by breakers (the Sherbro Bank, close to, of 19 feet is known to break), and as no breakers have ever been reported, it is considered most probable that 6 fathoms was meant and not 6 feet by the officer who made the report in 1870. Consequently the 6-feet sounding has been erased from the Admiralty Chart and 6 fathoms substituted.
