The Mayors of Newport and Ryde, the Chairmen and Vice-Chairmen of the Isle of Wight Public Bodies, and the Deputy Lieutenants of the Isle of Wight, and the Royal Warrant Holders in the Island, were allotted a position inside the gates of Osborne House.

The roadway from the Queen's Gate to Trinity Pier was lined by Troops in close order.

These Troops remained in position until the minute guns from the Fleet commenced to fire.

On arrival at Trinity Pier the Massed Bands moved to a position outside Trinity Pier. The Bands ceased playing as the Coffin was drawn up at Trinity Pier, but the Drums continued the muffled roll.

On the departure of Her Majesty's Yacht "Alberta" the Bands played a Funeral March.

On the Gun Carriage being drawn up at Trinity Pier, the Coffin was removed from the Gun Carriage to the "Alberta" by Seamen of the Royal Yachts.

The Escort of The Queen's Company of Grenadier Guards formed a double line down the Gangway from the Gun Carriage to the "Alberta," and presented arms.
