The channel from Farallon Light to Martin Garcia Island now used is that through San Juan Deep and to the east of Martin Garcia Island. This channel is marked by black spherical gas buoys on the port hand going up the river, and by red spherical gas buoys on the starboard hand. The depth of water on the 19 feet bar, 5 miles east of Martin Garcia Light, is signalled from a hulk with one mast, lying off Martin Garcia Island. Owing to the channels constantly changing, the buoys and beacons cannot be depended upon, and local assistance should be obtained before attempting to navigate the river. A note to this effect has been placed on the Chart, and all the buoys above Colonia expunged.

NOTE.—The character of the lights exhibited from the above buoys is not stated.

The channel west of Martin Garcia has now a least depth of 8 feet, and is only used by small vessels.
