

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 20th day of March, 1905.

PRESENT,

The KING's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS by the Burial Act, 1855, it was, amongst other things, enacted that it should be lawful for His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, from time to time to postpone the time appointed by any Order in Council for the discontinuance of burials, or otherwise to vary any Order in Council made under any of the Acts recited in the said Act, or under the said Act (whether the time thereby appointed for the discontinuance of burials thereunder, or other operation of such Order, should or should not have arrived), as to His Majesty, with such advice as aforesaid, might seem fit:

And whereas an Order in Council was made on the nineteenth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, directing the discontinuance of burials in the Parish Church and churchyard of Cosby, in the county of Leicester:

And whereas it seems fit to His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, that the said Order be varied:

Now, therefore, His Majesty, by and with the advice aforesaid, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the said Order of the nineteenth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, be varied so that, notwithstanding anything therein, it shall be lawful to bury the body of William Armston, at his decease, in the Parish Churchyard of Cosby, in the county of Leicester, in a grave space in which no interment has heretofore taken place and which forms part of the space reserved and appropriated as a burial place for the Armston family, at or below the depth of five feet from the surface of the ground.
