H. 12232.

The Board of Trade have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch, dated September 7th, from His Majesty's Representative at Trieste, transmitting the following translation of a Circular, dated August 24th, issued by the Imperial and Royal Marine Board at Trieste, respecting sanitary precautions in case of cholera outbreak in the Austrian Littoral:—

Telegraphic instructions having been received from the Imperial and Royal Ministry for Commerce, dated August the 20th, 1910, No. 25466, respecting the eventual outbreak of cholera in the Littoral, the following regulations, with reference to the sanitary treatment of vessels navigating on the coast, are issued:—

Paragraph 1.

Should cases of cholera be officially ascertained within the limits of a port, and the danger of such a disease spreading, the following regulations will be put into force in the Littoral:

The period for which such regulations shall remain in force, shall be decided by the Marine Board, and at the same time all facilities granted during normal sanitary conditions, are suspended, with reference to the usual report of arrival, and to the sanitary Bill of Health.

Paragraph 2.

Port offices will have to be more strict with reference to port and police regulations of the port, and to the sanitary conditions of vessels and crew in the port itself.

Paragraph 3.

(1.) All localities of the ship must be kept constantly clean, the waterclosets must be washed with disinfectants.

(2.) Drinking water or water for personal use taken at some cholera-infected port, which has not been taken from a source declared healthy by the Authorities, must be boiled before use.

(3.) All prohibitions and special regulations issued by the Authorities in the interest of public health, in order to impede the spreading of the disease in question, must be applied also to the vessels.

(4.) All vessels must be provided with the principal medicines for cases of emergency, and this in sufficient quantity corresponding to the number of persons on board, and also be provided with sufficient means of disinfection.

Those vessels which are employed in the port navigation or in the neighbouring places, or fishing boats along the coast, are excepted, but the decision is left with the Port Authorities. All medicines and disinfectants must be completed. The Marine Board will prescribe the medicines and the disinfectants to be kept on board.

Paragraph 4.

The Marine Board may order, should they find it necessary, the medical visit of the vessels before their departure from ports where cases of cholera may have been verified. The result of such medical visit will have to be put on the Bill of Health.

Paragraph 5.

In case that an epidemical disease should be ascertained in more important commercial centres, or in case that vessels which are transporting passengers should touch ports where an epidemical disease has been officially ascertained, the Marine Board may order that the Companies should take medical men on board their vessels in order to watch over the state of the crew and of the passengers during the voyage.

Paragraph 6.

Prohibitions of import and export issued in consequence of outbreak of Cholera, are to be rigorously obeyed. Dirty linen of person and bed, used cloths, used rags and sacks, may be taken on board in ports where cases of Cholera have been officially ascertained only after having disinfected, but not if their exportation has been prohibited.

Paragraph 7.

Pleasure excursions, pilgrimages, and in general extraordinary journeys which would have as consequence the importation of the contagious disease, are prohibited.

Paragraph 8.

Persons belonging to the crew are bound to report to the Master every case of malady broken out on board which comes under their knowledge, and the Master himself will have to personally ascertain the state of the sick person. Should any suspected symptoms be verified, such as vomiting, cramps, diarrhoea, the sick person will have to be at once isolated. The vomit and excrement must be at once disinfected.

Paragraph 9.

If the vessel is in port, the cases must be reported at once to the port officials, and await their decision. Vessels which during the voyage have such sick persons on board must call at the nearest port (quarantine establishment) where the discharge and isolation of the sick person is possible.

The stations for medical visits and respectively for the discharge and isolation of the sick person, will be indicated at the moment of the outbreak of cholera in the Littoral.

Paragraph 10.

Should the vessel for any reason (nautical influence, great distance, unfavourable winds, &c.), not be able to reach a quarantine establishment, must call at the nearest harbour and await there further instructions from the Harbour Office with reference to the vessel being sent in quarantine.

Paragraph 11.

Vessels which before their departure from an infected port have undergone a medical visit and have a doctor on board and upon which during the voyage no suspicious case of illness has been verified, obtain usually the "free pratique." Vessels which have not undergone a medical visit at their departure from an infected port and have no doctor on board, can obtain "free pratique" only after a successful medical revision.

Paragraph 12.

Vessels, upon which a suspicious case of cholera has been medically verified, will be treated as follows:—First, the ill person must be taken on shore. The vessel's localities and effects, which, according to the doctor's opinion, have to be considered as infected, will have to be disinfected. The vessel, should the doctor esteem it necessary, will have to change all water on board before she can get "free pratique." Should these measures of precaution not be possible on the spot, the vessel will be brought to the quarantine station. Passengers are only allowed to land in such ports where it is possible for them to undergo a medical visit, and their effects will be disinfected.

Paragraph 13.

The Commander of the vessel is responsible for the carrying out of the measures ordered and the expenses are for the account of the vessel.

Paragraph 14.

The Port Offices must report to the Marine Board (Trieste), without loss of time, all cases which refer to the sanitary conditions of vessels and within the limits of the port itself, as well as with reference to the carrying out of such regulations.

From the Imperial and Royal Marine Board,
Trieste, August 24, 1910.

The President,
(Signed) DELLES.
