

Distinguished Conduct Medals—Continued.

Regimental No.	Rank.	Name.	Corps.	Action for which commended.
9136	Company Serjeant-Major	Brannan, T. ...	1st Battalion, Royal Scots (Lothian Regiment)	For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty near St. Eloi on 24th February, 1915, on a moonlight night while our trenches were being relieved, and the enemy were pouring in a heavy fire, in attending to wounded in the open. On the 11th March, 1915, while attending a mortally wounded man in an unfinished trench, Company Serjeant-Major Brannan was himself wounded in the head, but, displaying great fortitude, would only leave the trench after being ordered by his Company Commander.
8445	Serjeant ...	Breach, P. ...	2nd Battalion, Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire Light Infantry	For gallant conduct and ability, as a Scout Serjeant, chiefly on the Aisne, and in front of Festubert, when, acting mainly at night, he brought in most useful information, and showed throughout the greatest zeal, energy and devotion to duty.
12242	Sapper ...	Brett, W. H. ...	9th Field Company, Royal Engineers	For conspicuous gallantry on the 9th April, 1915, at Givenchy, when, engaged in erecting wire entanglements in front of the trenches, after dark, he assisted in rescuing, under a heavy fire, one of the covering party who had been wounded.
8462	Private ...	Briggs, C. ...	2nd Battalion, Lincolnshire Regiment	For gallant conduct and devotion to duty while employed with Brigade Signal Section, especially at Neuve Chapelle during 10th-14th March, 1915, when, singlehanded, he continued to work his station for many hours after the rest of the men at the station had either been killed or wounded.
9105	Private ...	Brooks, C. J. ...	1st Battalion, Royal Scots Fusiliers	For devotion to duty as a stretcher bearer. He has carried out his duties, often of a most arduous and dangerous nature, in a most praiseworthy manner.
8044	Serjeant ...	Brooks, J. ...	2nd Battalion, Royal Munster Fusiliers	For conspicuous gallantry in the vicinity of Festubert between the 21st and 23rd December, 1914, when he carried a message back from the Officer commanding the Battalion, who was wounded, which greatly assisted in enabling the dispositions of the Battalion to be located. Subsequently, on various occasions, he displayed great gallantry and initiative in leading a scouting party, and in the collection and rescue of wounded men, being the whole time under a very heavy fire.
8021	Company Serjeant-Major	Brown, A. ...	1st Battalion, East Kent Regiment	For conspicuous zeal and devotion to duty. By his untiring energy and his example throughout the campaign Company Serjeant-Major Brown has done much to keep up the spirit of the men of his company. He was severely wounded while repairing a breach made by shells in the parapet.
22623	Sapper ...	Brown, A. C. ...	11th Field Company, Royal Engineers	For conspicuous gallantry on the 6th February, 1915, at Cuinchy, in assisting a wounded man under heavy fire. On the 14th February 1915, near La Bassee, being left to guard the entrance to a trench, he remained there until his Officer returned, although subjected to a heavy fire.
8310	Serjeant ...	Brown, A. S. ...	2nd Battalion, Bedfordshire Regiment	For conspicuous gallantry at Ypres on 23rd October, 1914, when he carried back two wounded men to his trench under heavy rifle fire; although wounded himself in doing so, he continued to command his trench till nightfall, when he was ordered back to a dressing station.
