

Distinguished Conduct Medals—Continued.

Regimental No.	Rank.	Name.	Corps.	Action for which commended.
7783	Acting Company Quartermaster - Serjeant	Mart, S.	2nd Battalion, Bedfordshire Regiment	For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty throughout the campaign, notably near Ypres on 23rd October, 1914, when he, at great personal risk, ran across an open space under heavy fire to give directions to a machine gun team.
991	Acting Serjeant	Martin, A.... ..	1st Battalion, Scots Guards	For conspicuous gallantry and resource throughout the campaign when in charge of the stretcher bearers. He has on many occasions picked up wounded men and carried messages under a heavy fire, and has shown the greatest devotion to duty.
2188	Private	Martin, C.	7th Battalion, Northumberland Fusiliers (T.F.)	For conspicuous gallantry during the attack on St. Jean, on 26th April, 1915, in carrying up a box of ammunition to the firing line, assisted by Private Burrell, across open ground and under a heavy fire. These men advanced entirely unsupported and were cheered by their comrades for their bravery.
6233	Company Serjeant-Major	Martin, E.	2nd Battalion, Lancashire Fusiliers	For conspicuous courage and ability displayed from the commencement of the campaign. Company Serjeant-Major Martin has shown great bravery under fire and has been most devoted to his duties.
57115	Bombardier	Martin, F. J.	29th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery	For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty while employed as telephonist. Bombardier Martin especially distinguished himself just before Christmas, 1914, during the attack on Ploegsteert Wood, when he continued going up and down the line under heavy fire and kept his battery in communication.
10499	Private	Martin, F. S.	1st Battalion, East Surrey Regiment	For conspicuous gallantry throughout the campaign, notably near Lorgies on a day in October, 1914, when, after repeated failure by other men, he got ammunition up to his machine gun under heavy rifle and shell fire.
9200	Corporal	Martin, G.	2nd Battalion, Durham Light Infantry	For great zeal and devotion to duty, and for excellent work in connection with transport.
42478	Driver	Mason, R. E.	4th "B" Reserve Brigade (formerly 146th Battery), Royal Field Artillery	For conspicuous gallantry in volunteering to bring water and driving his cart into Ypres three times a day along shell-swept roads. By his devotion to duty he provided many troops and wounded with water.
57958	Bombardier	Mayo, H. F.	365th Battery, Royal Field Artillery	For gallant conduct and devotion to duty under fire, especially on 14th March, 1915, when, after being blown over by the explosion of a shell, he finished the repairing work on which he was engaged before leaving the spot.
4438	Company Serjeant-Major	Mayston, A.	2nd Battalion, Worcestershire Regiment	For conspicuous gallantry and ability throughout the campaign. At Mons he brought in a wounded man under a heavy fire. On the 18th September, 1914, on the Aisne he, under a heavy fire, after digging out a soldier buried by a shell, applied artificial respiration, thereby saving his life, and on the 20th September, 1914, also on the Aisne, he collected, re-organised, and took the command of two Companies, all the Officers having been killed, and performed invaluable services.
