Whitehall, July 14, 1915.

The KING was pleased, at Buckingham Palace, on Monday, the 12th instant, to present to Mr. Walter Russell Brown, Acting British Vice-Consul at Chungking, China, the Albert Medal of the Second Class for gallantry in saving life on land, as detailed below:—

On the 21st September, 1913, when fierce street fighting was raging in the City of Chungking, Mr. Brown, assisted by his French colleague, Monsieur Bodard, in response to a message from the Chamber of Commerce, acted as intermediary between the two forces, and succeeded in bringing about a suspension of the hostilities. Both the officers ran great risk, as they were frequently exposed to the firing of the troops, and but for their prompt intervention it is probable that the fighting would have resulted in one body of troops being exterminated and the City, which contains a popu-
