

fought on till all the enemy aeroplanes were dispersed. On another occasion he bombed trains from a low altitude. He has done other fine work.

2nd Lt. (temp. Lt.) Bernard Peatfield, Lond. R.

For conspicuous gallantry during a raid on the enemy's trenches. Though wounded at the outset, he remained on the enemy's parapet directing operations till the raid ended. He then helped to rescue a wounded man. The success of the raid was largely due to his personal efforts.

Temp. Capt. Wellington Le Roy Pedlow, M.D., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during operations. He tended the wounded utterly regardless of the enemy's fire, and carried a severely wounded officer from a very exposed part of the captured position to the aid post, being fired at all the way.

Capt. Rudolph Albert Peters, M.B., R.A.M.C., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during operations. He tended the wounded the whole day and night under heavy shell fire and at night was instrumental in getting many wounded, who were lying out in the open.

2nd Lt. Fenton Ellis Stanley Phillips, Devon. R., Spec. Res. and R.F.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and skill. He has done fine contact patrol work. On one occasion he came down to a low altitude while making a report, and his machine was much damaged by rifle and machine gun fire, but he carried on and successfully put our artillery on to the enemy, who were massing for a counter-attack.

Temp. Lt. John Reginald Philpott, Gen. List and R.F.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and skill in descending to about 300 feet, under heavy fire of all descriptions, in order to bomb a train. Finding that Capt. Tyson had wrecked the train, he dropped his bombs on a station and then assisted him to beat off hostile machines. He then, with Capt. Tyson, attacked a machine which was endeavouring to leave the ground. He has previously displayed great gallantry.

Temp. Capt. Rees Frederick Phillips, D. of Corn. L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry during operations. He organised and directed carrying parties under heavy shell fire, and helped to bring back a badly wounded man.

2nd Lt. Guy Homfray Pinsent, R.F.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry. When the order was given for the detachments to be withdrawn owing to heavy shell fire, it was found that one detachment had been buried in the gun-pits. 2nd Lts. Coulesley and Pinsent at once collected a party, and, after half an hour's working under very heavy fire, they got the men out.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Charles Michael Price, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry during operations. He reconnoitred for positions for his trench guns in a very exposed area. Next night he and his men got the guns into position under heavy fire. During the attack that followed, the smoke barrage from these guns was largely instrumental in securing the success achieved. Though wounded and suffering great pain, he stuck to his post and refused to go to the dressing station till his work was completed and his men and guns brought successfully back.

2nd Lt. (temp. Lt.) Reginald George Pridmore, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry during operations. As F.O.O. he displayed great coolness under fire, notably on one occasion when his O.P. was very heavily shelled. Both he and his look-out man were partly buried, but he carried on and sent in valuable reports.

Temp. Capt. Edward Robert Seymour Prior, S. Lan. R.

For conspicuous gallantry during operations. For seven days his company held a point in the trenches under continuous shell-fire. The trench was repeatedly blown in, but he rebuilt it each time, and also captured hostile patrols consisting of an officer and six other ranks. He set a splendid example to his company under trying circumstances.

Capt. Theodore Beal Pritchett, R.F.A.

For conspicuous and consistent gallantry. He has commanded his battery with great ability at all times. On one occasion he carried out a useful reconnaissance under very heavy fire, and forwarded accurate and useful information.

Temp. Lt. Eugene Patrick Quigley, R. Dub. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry. Though wounded he brought a machine-gun into action against some enemy who were collecting to repel our attack. Not finding a suitable rest for one of his guns he had it placed on his shoulder, where it opened fire.

2nd Lt. Charles Netten Radcliffe, Lond. R.

For conspicuous gallantry during a raid on the enemy's trenches. He carried out the previous reconnaissances, and showed great determination during the raid, bringing back several enemy prisoners.

For conspicuous gallantry and good service. Prior to an attack he worked night after night, often under heavy shell-fire, repairing communications.

Temp. Capt. Nicol McNicoll Rankin, M.B., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in remaining at his post and attending to wounded after the regimental Aid Post had received three direct hits and he himself had been wounded in the face. For four hours he continued at duty, the area around his Aid Post being heavily shelled all the time.
