

to take up a forward position and to carry out accurate registration, although he himself was badly wounded.

T./2nd Lt. Cecil Dannatt, York & Lan. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. On three successive days he rendered most valuable service as Battalion Intelligence Officer, making frequent reconnaissances under heavy fire and displaying great coolness and devotion to duty throughout. His information was both accurate and valuable.

2nd Lt. Denison Giles Daubeny, Rif. Brig., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. In spite of heavy machine-gun fire he sent in most valuable information. Later, he rallied the survivors of his company and continued to hold a very exposed position under heavy fire until relieved.

2nd Lt. Paul Davenport, Lond. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When the officer commanding his company was killed he took command, and by his resource and fearlessness successfully captured the objective, and held it in spite of intense artillery fire.

2nd Lt. Arthur Lloyd Davies, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. While his battery was being replenished with ammunition a wagon containing charges was set on fire by a shell. He immediately went to the rescue and rendered great assistance in unhooking the horses, regardless of other shells. His coolness under fire has at all times been most conspicuous.

Rev. Arthur William Davies, Temp. C.F., 4th Class, attd. Welsh R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He displayed the greatest courage and devotion in organising the stretcher-bearers, and collecting and attending to the wounded at great personal risk under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

2nd Lt. (A./Capt.) Harry Tudor Davies, R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in lining out and in superintending the digging of trenches under constant heavy trench mortar fire. He was twice gassed, but his energy and devotion to duty carried him through. On many previous occasions he has successfully carried out work of a similar nature.

2nd Lt. George Eastlake Davis, R. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his platoon with great determination and courage under heavy machine-gun fire against a dug-out containing forty of the enemy, killing and capturing the whole party. Although wounded in two places he remained in command until the following night, setting a splendid example of gallantry and endurance.

2nd Lt. (T./Lt.) Harold Blakesborough Dawson, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When acting as F.O.O. he sent back most valuable information, and when all other communication failed he volunteered to carry an important message back. This he succeeded in doing, passing through a most severe barrage.

T./Capt. Joseph Dawson, Bord. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During an attack he led his company with great coolness and courage through heavy shell and machine-gun fire to its final objective, skilfully clearing out strong hostile pickets that barred the way. His services were invaluable to his commanding officer in re-organizing the battalion and consolidating the captured position.

T./Lt. Herbert Victor Dean, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When forward observation officer he continued to observe and send back information under heavy fire, during which he was blown down by one shell and half buried by another. His fearlessness in observing under difficulties has at all times been most marked.

T./Capt. (A./Maj.) Geoffrey Price Denton, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of his battery under particularly trying and severe conditions. In the midst of exploding ammunition dumps and very heavy casualties caused by hostile shell and gas shell fire he showed splendid resource and coolness in re-organizing his men and dealing with a very critical situation.

Capt. Francis Deverell, Lond. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. As transport officer he was indefatigable in convoying supplies to the front, frequently under heavy shell fire. He showed marked ability in making the necessary arrangements and thereby saving many casualties.

T./Capt. Alexander Dick, M.B., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion when in medical charge of the regiment during an attack. He was forced to establish his aid post in an open trench, where he carried out his duties for two days and one night under heavy shell fire and in terrible weather. He never left his post, except to attend to wounded, who could not be brought in, and it was owing to his energy and heroism that the wounded were safely removed from the battlefield.

Lt. Joseph William Edmund Dickson, Sea. Highrs., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry in action. He led his company with great dash into the enemy's front trenches. Later, he advanced his company, and succeeded in occupying an enemy strong point, and by holding his position throughout the day he materially
