

T./Capt. Charles Dickson, M.D., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of an advanced dressing station. Under an intense high-explosive and gas-shell bombardment the building was partially wrecked, and the patients were in danger of death from gas poisoning. He at once personally organised a working party to replace the anti-gas screens and take other precautions for the safety of the wounded; this necessitated working in the open under extremely heavy fire, during which his total disregard of safety set a most inspiring example to his men. By his energy and devotion the lives of many badly wounded men were saved.

T./Lt. (T./Capt.) Edward John Quayle Dickson, R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on two occasions, in entering a dug-out which had been wrecked by hostile shell fire, extricating the victims and carrying them to the dressing station, three hundred yards away, under heavy and continuous shell fire. By this prompt and gallant action he and his N.C.O. were the direct means of saving many lives, as the place was again hit directly after his work was completed. He has frequently proved himself an extremely gallant officer, with an utter disregard for danger when assisting others.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in leading a wiring party to consolidate the front of a captured village. He displayed the greatest courage and determination under heavy shell fire, so inspiring his men by his disregard of danger that the work was successfully accomplished under most trying and dangerous conditions.

2nd Lt. Thomas Dodd, Durh. L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty as brigade signalling officer. He organised and maintained all communications during an attack with most exceptional skill and ability, establishing connection with each battalion as soon as their objectives had been gained. He moved about all day, and, though thoroughly exhausted, continued to supervise the communications with admirable zeal and devotion to duty.

Capt. (A./Maj.) Wallace Henry Glydd Drake-Brockman, R.G.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at a time when his billets and gun positions were for several hours under very heavy shell fire. His example of coolness and courage, together with his personal efforts, were responsible for a very large quantity of ammunition being saved after it had been set alight by enemy shell fire. He kept his guns in action during a period of particularly intense fire, and throughout displayed conduct of the highest standard of gallantry.

Lt. Michael Falcon Dudgeon, Dns.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during a successful raid on enemy trenches. He fought his way down a trench full of the enemy, inspiring all ranks with confidence and admiration by his bold leading. He kept in touch with what was going on and continued to send back full and accurate information.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty, in holding his men together during the construction of a post under intense hostile bombardment. He displayed similar gallantry and powers of control the following night under heavy enemy barrage.

T./Capt. Charles Dundee, M.B., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He worked for three days, bandaging the wounded under fire, and successfully evacuating every case in his battalion almost as soon as they occurred. Over five hundred cases passed through his hands, and he displayed a splendid spirit of energy and devotion.

T./2nd Lt. David Morris Edwards, R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in commanding two subsections of trench mortars with untiring zeal and skill, and complete indifference to danger, under an intense enemy bombardment. He continually reorganised and led his men, when severe casualties were occurring, and directed the fire of his guns with precision and coolness. His splendid example on this, as on many other occasions, mainly contributed towards the great success of the operations.

T./2nd Lt. Griffith Oliver Edwards, North'd Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in commanding two platoons during an attack. His coolness and cheerfulness under heavy shell fire steadied his men, and later, when sent up to reinforce, he did so with great promptness and exactitude.

2nd Lt. Thomas Maddock Edwards, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. His battery came under heavy shell fire whilst going into action, and a number of casualties ensued, amongst those wounded being himself. In spite of this, he mounted a horse and took command, as his captain having also been severely wounded was unable to carry on. He brought up four guns, and then returned for the remaining two, refusing to have his wounds attended to until he had done his duty. He had been hit in several places, and his coolness and splendid devotion to duty were beyond all praise.

T./Lt. Alfred Thomas Eggington, R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of mortars. Though wounded and badly gassed, he remained at his post successfully directing a smoke barrage, which was to protect part of our assault. Shortly afterwards he was completely overcome by the gas, and had to be evacuated, having set an example of tenacity and devotion which inspired all ranks, and
