

of great assistance to the counter-attack, which was entirely successful.

(M.C. gazetted 4th March, 1918.)

2nd Lt. (T./Capt.) Douglas John Bell, M.C., R.F.C., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He has led his formation with great skill and has destroyed three enemy aeroplanes and driven down two others, one of which was seen to be completely out of control. The high state of efficiency which his flight has attained is due to his splendid example and fearless leadership.

(M.C. gazetted 18th June, 1917.)

T./Capt. Francis Rainalt Abbott Glanville, M.C., Gen. List, attd. T.M. By.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When the enemy had gained a footing in our trenches, and an immediate counter-attack had failed to eject them, he, regardless of all danger, made a reconnaissance of the position. Later, he rendered the greatest assistance in organising a counter-attack, which finally cleared the enemy out of the trenches, during which period he himself worked a trench mortar, silencing a hostile machine gun. By his skilful dispositions and determination he very materially contributed to the success of the operation.

(M.C. gazetted 18th July, 1917.)

T./2nd Lt. William Stanhope Hutchinson, M.C., North'd Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During a raid on the enemy trenches, he captured an enemy officer and man, the remainder of the hostile garrison being killed. He led his platoon with the greatest fearlessness and coolness, and through his dash and enterprise a most valuable identification was secured.

(M.C. gazetted 17th December, 1917.)

Lt. (A./Maj.) James Charles Jack, M.C., R.F.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During a daylight raid on the enemy's trenches he went forward to observe and report on the artillery barrage and the progress of the raiding party. He remained at his post with great coolness and determination under an intense enemy barrage until he was severely wounded. He has always set a splendid example to all ranks.

(M.C. gazetted 26th September, 1916.)

Capt. William Spurrett Fielding Johnson, M.C., Yeo. and R.F.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst escorting machines of another squadron which were engaged in bombing work with one other officer he attacked ten enemy scouts. He destroyed two of them and forced another to land. On another occasion, when leading a patrol of six machines, he attacked ten enemy scouts. He destroyed one, and his patrol accounted for three others. A few minutes later, in conjunction with another officer, he destroyed an enemy two-seater machine of a new type. As a flight commander he showed great skill and by his daring and good leadership set a splendid example to the officers of his flight.

(M.C. gazetted 3rd July, 1915.)

Lt. Sidney Stevenson Jones, M.C., S. Lan. R. and R.F.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty as an observer. He took part in two long distance bombing raids and in raids on enemy aerodromes. He carried out several long distance reconnaissances over the enemy's lines, taking a large number of photographs, from which valuable information was obtained. On one occasion, when his machine caught fire, at a height of 4,000 feet, and was wrecked on landing, he showed great promptitude and presence of mind in extricating the pilot and extinguishing his clothes, which were on fire. He always showed great skill and gallantry, and set an excellent example to the observers of his squadron.

(M.C. gazetted 1st January, 1917.)

Lt. John Kyle, M.C., R.F.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty as forward observation officer. Though wounded early in the day he observed from the front line during a heavy bombardment, which continued throughout the day until the enemy attacked towards evening. The telephone wire was continually cut, and he several times went out and repaired it under heavy fire. Finding it impossible to maintain the line, he went backwards and forwards to the nearest point of the buried cable, and thereby maintained a valuable supply of information. On each occasion he crossed some 500 yards of open ground under heavy fire. When the observation post was damaged by a shell he continued to observe from a shell hole during the day and the following night. It was due to his splendid courage and resource that group headquarters were kept supplied with valuable information.

(M.C. gazetted 1st January, 1917.)

T./Capt. Reginald Charles Penfold, M.C., R. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst commanding his company during a counter-attack, he led his men up to the assembly position in the darkness with great skill. After the delivery of the counter-attack, which was entirely successful, he consolidated the position and put out posts under heavy fire. The cheerfulness which he displayed throughout was most remarkable, and proved a fine example to all ranks.

(M.C. gazetted 1st January, 1917.)

T./Capt. Frank Granger Quigley, M.C., Gen. List and R.F.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in aerial combats. He destroyed five enemy machines and one balloon, and drove down four enemy machines out of control. He showed splendid courage and initiative.

(M.C. gazetted 18th February, 1918.)

T./Lt. Norman Latimer Roberts, M.C., R.E. (2nd Lt., R.F.A., Spec. Res.)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He succeeded in establishing fifteen trench mortars and a quantity of ammunition in a village, part of which was held by the
