

view of the enemy and approached by a single road, which was in very bad condition and was continually shelled, he personally organised every detail of the work under constant heavy fire and great difficulties. The success of the battery was due to this officer's untiring zeal, fearless example, and determination to succeed, which were worthy of the best traditions of the regiment.

Lt. (A./Capt.) William Hofmeyr Craib, R.F.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. With another officer he organised a party of infantry, and himself led a counter-attack which drove the enemy out of a village. He then advanced further, and came upon a party of the enemy at very close quarters. The other officer was wounded, but he maintained a determined resistance, and succeeded in driving back the enemy. It was entirely due to the efforts of these two officers that an advanced dressing-station was recaptured.

Lt. Thomas Henry Clifford Davis, M.C., R.F.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst reconnoitring a position for a forward observation post, accompanied only by an orderly, he encountered a party of sixteen of the enemy, all of whom he brought into our lines as prisoners. He continually showed the greatest gallantry and enterprise.

Capt. Richard Day, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He commanded his battery in the open during an attack. On the enemy opening a very heavy fire on the battery soon after the attack commenced he calmly walked from gun to gun, encouraging the men, with the result that the battery's rate of fire was maintained throughout the barrage. His great courage and magnificent example inspired his men during a very severe ordeal.

T./Capt. Harold Anthony Denison, M.C., K.R.R.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of three companies in an attack. When his men were losing direction he reorganised them and personally reconnoitred the line of advance under heavy fire. When the enemy counter-attacked and drove back some advanced posts, he ran forward to rally the men under heavy fire.

Capt. Eric Alfred Charles Fazan, M.C., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During very heavy fighting his aid post twice passed into the hands of the enemy. Although all communication with him by day was cut off for two days, he remained with his wounded, 235 of whom passed through his hands. It was due to his determination that every wounded man and all the personnel of his aid post were safely removed.

Lt. Oswald Spencer Francis, M.C., R. Berks. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He marked out the assembly positions for the whole brigade before an attack and guided forward companies of two battalions over very difficult ground and under heavy shell fire.

Lt. (T./Capt.) Arnold Fraser-Campbell, M.C., Arg. & Suth'd Highrs.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. After being in action for three days and having captured all his objectives, he went forward in a further attack, under a heavy hostile barrage and intense machine-gun fire. He showed splendid courage and determination.

T./Capt. (A./Maj.) Harry Percy Bright Gough, M.C., Welsh R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty throughout three days' fighting. He led the right of a successful counter-attack and succeeded in regaining a lost position. When his commanding officer was wounded he commanded the battalion with great ability and successfully brought them out of action.

Capt. John Frederick Hodges, M.C., R. Ir. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company with great courage and skill under heavy fire in an attack. His company was the first to reach the objective, and owing to his good leadership was largely responsible for the success of the attack.

Lt. (T./Capt.) Claud Mitchell Hughes-Games, M.C., Glouc. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst in command of the support company of the battalion he displayed wonderful energy and determination in checking the enemy advance, which had broken into our front line. He formed a block and organised its defence with machine guns until badly wounded by a sniper. His example of courageous coolness was responsible for holding up the hostile advance, and gave his battalion time to reorganise and take up a new defensive position.

Rev. Joseph Wellington Hunkin, M.C., A. Chapl. Dept.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He continually visited the aid posts and dressing stations, ministering to and assisting the wounded. His gallantry and utter disregard of personal danger in accompanying parties of stretcher-bearers on the most difficult and dangerous tasks, under intense shell and machine-gun fire, were an example and encouragement to all around him.

Lt. (A./Maj.) William Stewart Ironside, M.C., R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. On a report being received that the enemy were advancing on his flank, he immediately ran out his guns, sent an officer forward to observe, and brought effective fire to bear on the enemy as they advanced. Though the battery came under rifle and machine-gun fire, yet the enemy were largely checked by the fire from the battery, and his fine grasp of the situation and prompt
