

Lt. (A./Capt.) Clifford Hislop Pettigrew, Durh. L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of a daylight raid on the enemy's trenches. He led his men to the enemy's third line, showing the greatest gallantry and disregard of danger. He was the last to leave the enemy's lines, and remained in "No Man's Land" under heavy machine-gun fire until satisfied that all the wounded had been brought in.

T./Capt. Hugh Thomas Pilgrim, R. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Though wounded at the beginning of the attack, he led his company forward with great judgment and skill. He captured his objective and organised the defence of the position, setting a splendid example of courage and endurance.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Alfred Strode Pim, R. Ir. Regt.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company with the greatest dash and determination in an attack, and captured all his objectives. His example of courage and initiative was an inspiration to his company, and contributed largely to the success of the operation.

T./2nd Lt. Reginald George Pluckrose, Oxf. & Bucks. L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of a company in an attack. When the advance was held up by a party of the enemy he went forward and bombed the enemy out of their position, thereby enabling the advance to be continued at a critical period.

2nd Lt. Harold Joseph Plunkett, Lond. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during a hostile attack, when he was in command of two platoons. His position was repeatedly attacked, being at times surrounded by the enemy, but he maintained it until he was relieved six days later. The maintenance of this position was of the highest importance to his own battalion and the flank battalion of the next division.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Frederick Pocock, R.G.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. While passing over an exposed piece of ground another officer who was with him was seriously wounded by a sniper. He at once went back to him and dragged him to cover, displaying an utter disregard for his own safety.

Capt. Alexander John Loft Pritchard, S. Staff. R., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an enemy attack. He made repeated bombing attacks and succeeded in driving the enemy back 200 yards. He then established a block and held it for twenty-four hours under heavy fire and against several attacks by the enemy. He also took command of scattered men of other units and organised the defence with the greatest determination and energy.

2nd Lt. Cyril Henry Wallace Pugh, Shrops. L.I., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of a platoon in an attack. When the advance was checked he reinforced the leading wave on his own initiative and enabled the advance to continue. He led his men to the final objective with great vigour, and twice assisted another platoon by covering their advance with Lewis gun fire when they were held up. He showed splendid leadership and initiative.

2nd Lt. (A./Capt.) Neville Phillips Proctor, Midd'x R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He showed great courage and ability while in command of a most important post, and inspired his men with confidence by his splendid example under heavy fire.

T./2nd Lt. Frank Granger Quigley, Gen. List and R.F.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when engaging hostile aircraft. On one occasion, while on patrol, he attacked an enemy two-seater, which, after close fighting and skilful manœuvring, he crashed to the ground. He has within a short period destroyed, or driven down out of control, seven other enemy machines, and on all occasions has displayed high courage and a fine fighting spirit.

2nd Lt. George William Radford, Glouc. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When the enemy attacked under cover of a heavy bombardment he led a bombing party forward from the support position and assisted in driving the enemy back. His quick grasp of the situation and gallant leadership were invaluable at a critical time.

T./2nd Lt. Justin Rees, Welsh R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. While a large quantity of grenades were being removed from a dump, five grenades exploded, causing several casualties. With great coolness and disregard of danger he carried away the box in which the explosion had taken place from the dump and buried it some distance away, thereby preventing the possibility of further casualties and the destruction of a large quantity of grenades.

T./2nd Lt. Henry Houston Hanhart Reeve, R. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. On making his way to his gun under an intense barrage, he rallied some infantry who were temporarily disorganised, and manned the trench with them. Finding that his gun detachment had been captured, he with the aid of his orderly got the gun into action, and continued to keep up a steady fire upon the enemy in the portion of the trenches then held by them, until all his ammunition was expended. His gallant action assisted greatly in breaking up the attack.

T./Lt. Thomas William Renn, W. York. R., and M.G. Corps.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He went forward with one man under heavy close range machine gun fire, and recovered a machine gun which had been temporarily lost.
