

handling his company, and set a splendid example of gallantry and devotion to duty to his officers and men.

(M.C. gazetted 26th July, 1918.)

T./Lt. Frank Wheatley Cowley, M.C., E. York. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When the line became considerably out of touch on the flank, he filled the gap from the supporting waves, and his coolness and skill were largely responsible for the success of the attack. When the objective was reached he went forward, in spite of heavy shelling from an enemy gun firing with open sights, to ascertain the condition of the bridges in front of our line. He set a fine example of courage.

(M.C. gazetted 17th September, 1917.)

T./Capt. James Gerald Foley, M.C., Gold Coast R. (Arty.), W.A.F.F., attd. K.A.R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst in charge of two Stokes guns he did most excellent work throughout the day. He several times conveyed valuable information about the situation to the officer commanding, and after dark, when his guns could not be used, was of great assistance in reorganising the line under very trying circumstances.

(M.C. gazetted 25th August, 1917.)

Capt. Charles Gibbens, M.C., D.C.M., D.L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an enemy attack. He handled and controlled his company so admirably that the enemy's attacks were easily beaten off by rifle fire. Throughout the battle he showed marked courage and powers of command.

(M.C. gazetted 17th September, 1917.)

Capt. Alastair Edward George Grant, M.C., Lrs.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During an attack he led his squadron with the greatest gallantry through and in front of the first wave of the infantry. Seeing the enemy infantry retreating, he charged in their direction under very heavy machine-gun fire, and rode over two enemy machine guns. He displayed great leadership, courage and dash the whole day, riding up into the most exposed positions.

(M.C. gazetted 26th July, 1918.)

T./Capt. John Charles Boileau Grant, M.C., M.B., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He attended to wounded men lying in the open under heavy fire, and subsequently for three days and nights, with little rest, he was constantly out with stretcher-bearers searching for and removing the wounded. He was undoubtedly the means of saving many lives, and his fine example was of the greatest value at a very trying time.

(M.C. gazetted 26th September, 1917.)

Lt. (A./Capt.) Charles Hackett, M.C., Worc. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. While visiting a standing patrol he located an enemy post. He got another officer to join him, and rushed the post, capturing two prisoners. He returned, and again went out with a small patrol, and brought back eleven prisoners and a machine gun, having killed one of the enemy with his revolver. He showed the greatest coolness and initiative.

(M.C. gazetted 18th June, 1917.)

T./Lt. (A./Capt.) Neville Clive Harrison, M.C., R. War. R.

For conspicuous ability in action. He made the arrangements for supporting the infantry in two most successful raids. He personally supervised the construction of emplacements, setting of fuses, and registration of guns, and worked night and day in order to complete the preparations. The success of the operations was very largely due to his splendid keenness and devotion to duty.

(M.C. gazetted 18th February, 1918.)

Capt. (A./Maj.) Lionel Denham Henderson, M.C., Sea. Highrs.

For conspicuous gallantry and good leadership. After his commanding officer had become a casualty and the battalion had suffered severely, he assumed command, reorganised the battalion, and established a line through a wood. Maintaining continual pressure on the enemy, he succeeded in making good progress through the difficult wooded country. He showed fine courage and powers of command.

(M.C. gazetted 3rd June, 1916.)

T./Capt. John Nelson Humphrey, M.C., M.B., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an enemy attack. As bearer officer he repeatedly led his men up to the front line under very heavy fire. When the normal line of evacuation was broken he carried out a reconnaissance in full view of the enemy, and established a new means of communication, himself assisting to remove a tree across a road which was being heavily shelled. By his courage and resource he contributed largely to the rapid evacuation of the wounded, and saved many lives.

(M.C. gazetted 1st January, 1918.)

T./Capt. Charles Clouston Irvine, M.C., R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When the shelter in which he was working received a direct hit from a shell, the explosion of which killed his serjeant and an orderly who were helping him, he was severely shaken but rallied himself and continued to attend to the wounded. A panic which might have ensued among the wounded and shell-shocked soldiers was averted by his courage and determination.

(M.C. gazetted 18th July, 1917.)

2nd/Lt. Thomas Gilmour Jenkins, M.C., R.G.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry during an attack. He went forward with the infantry and established an observation post in the new front line. In spite of heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he kept communications through all day, and sent back valuable information. Also, he and some others turned
