

situation, and by personal reconnaissance discovered that the infantry were held up and were being enfiladed by machine guns from the left. Having sent back a runner, he awaited a strong enemy counter-attack and in the absence of the infantry officer took charge of the situation. He kept the enemy back by rifle fire at close range and prevented the attack from developing. Throughout operations he has shown a fine example of courage.

T./2nd Lt. Hugh Paterson Haddow, K.R.R.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and good leadership during operations. He led his platoon with great dash to the first objective, where he captured a strong point and killed several of the enemy. Later, when he was the only officer left alive in the three front companies, his quick appreciation of the situation and subsequent action were largely responsible for the success attained.

T./Lieut. Richard Charles Hall, M.G.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and initiative. During an advance he displayed great dash and initiative, reaching his objective successfully and consolidating his gun positions. He then took command and reorganised the infantry on a defensive line. His disregard of danger under heavy shelling was a fine example to all the men under his command.

Capt. (A./Maj.) Hugh Hannay, Suff. R., Spec. Res., attd. Tank Corps.

For marked gallantry in command of his company. Under heavy fire, he followed his Tanks closely into action until the final objectives were captured, afterwards rallying them and preparing for further action. Owing to his enterprise and perception he was of the greatest assistance to the infantry, and on one occasion launched his Tanks against the enemy just as they commenced to counter-attack, with the result that their offensive was broken up.

T./2nd Lt. Ivan Robert Sinclair Harrison, W. York. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and skill. By skilful manœuvring he was able to put out of action an enemy machine gun which was enfilading our line and causing casualties. Later, he attacked and drove in an enemy post that was holding up the attack, and thus greatly assisted our advance. Throughout the operations he showed fine courage and remarkable powers of leadership.

2nd Lt. James Harrowing, Dorset. R., attd. Tank Corps.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When carrying up mortars and bombs to the final objective he passed a Tank broken down. In spite of enemy sniping and shelling, he transferred the mortars and bombs from the broken-down Tank to a small cart, which he towed to the dumping point. Later, he went forward with his Tank and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy. In an encounter with an anti-Tank gun he completely demoralised the crew, who at once bolted.

T./Lt. William Daniel Hart, R. Marines.

For conspicuous gallantry in action. As section officer on duty at the guns he showed the greatest coolness and ability during heavy shelling from an enemy battery, and though wounded, saw to the extinguishing of a fire which had been started and to the hiding from aircraft of the damage done before reporting himself to the field dressing station. He has on all occasions set the best possible example to his men.

T./Lt. Sydney Thomas Harvey, K.R.R.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and resolution at a time when his company was suffering heavy losses from machine-gun fire. This officer personally took forward his two platoons, and so effectively dealt with the machine guns that most of the gunners were killed and the guns stopped firing. During the day he was twice wounded, but after having his wounds dressed he returned to his company and carried on until ordered to the dressing station.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Henry Haughey, R. Irish Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and initiative. He reconnoitred the ground previous to the attack with great care, and led his company forward with much spirit to the objective, which he reached successfully, and consolidated with skill and judgment. His cheerful courage and power of command greatly encouraged his men.

Lt. Edward Gerald Hawkesworth, G. Gds. (Spec. Res.).

For remarkable courage and quickness in a daylight raid. Selecting nine men, he rushed across "No Man's Land" into the enemy's trench. After working his way along for 250 yards he captured a double sentry post, which he evacuated to the rear. When his presence was discovered, and parties sent to cut him off, he withdrew to the point of entry, where he put up a desperate fight, and killed several of the enemy, finally bringing away his men without suffering a casualty.

T./Lt. Edward Hawthorn, Tank Corps.

For conspicuous gallantry when in command of a Tank carrying infantry. Most of the crew were wounded by two direct hits on the car, but he continued to fight to the end, destroying an anti-Tank gun and numerous machine-gun posts. His conduct was an inspiring example to all.

Lt. Atherton Henry Hayhurst-France, Hrs.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He galloped his patrol along the enemy front for about a mile and a half at a range of 800 yards, drawing a heavy fire from machine guns the whole way; valuable information as to the position and strength of the enemy was thus obtained. He showed an admirable example of courage and determination.
