

near Catillon. He kept in close touch throughout the day with the advancing infantry. On learning that they were held up by machine-gun fire, he obtained observation of the nest of machine guns, and by means of visual communication he brought accurate fire to bear, and effectively silenced them, thus enabling the advance to continue.

T./Lt. Ernest Lewis Moody, 11th Bn., R. Fus.

For gallantry and devotion to duty on 24th October, 1918, near Bousies. Shortly after the start of the attack he found himself in charge of three companies, the officers of two companies having become casualties. He did fine work under fire in reorganising them when held up, and afterwards in consolidation. In the evening he took charge of the battle patrols going forward, and succeeded in gaining a considerable amount of ground.

Lt. Frank Leonard Moore, 1/1st Mon. R.

For great gallantry and devotion to duty. During operations at Ramiecourt, on the 3rd/4th October, 1918, he went out from Battalion Headquarters, under heavy fire, to locate position of "C" Company, who were somewhere in front of Ramiecourt. He remained out for over two hours. Later on same day he, with the assistance of stretcher-bearers, brought in a wounded officer under shell fire.

2nd Lt. Marcus Moore, 5th Bn., Bord. R., T.F., attd. 7th Bn.

For conspicuous gallantry and skilful leadership during the attack on the Forêt de Mormal on 4th November, 1918. He was in command of the directing platoon of his company. In the face of heavy enemy machine-gun fire, and in spite of the dense and thickly wooded country, he successfully led his men and maintained direction and touch with the division on his flank, materially assisting the success of the operation.

2nd Lt. (A./Capt.) John Moran, Leins. R., Spec. Res., attd. 2nd Bn.

He commanded his company with most conspicuous success on the 14th October, 1918, near Ledeghem. He filled a gap on the right, cleared several strong posts, and effected the capture of field guns which were holding up the advance. He later collected elements of his own and other regiments which had been lost in the fog, and reached the objective. Throughout he showed great gallantry and powers of leadership.

Lt. Percy Albert Morfev, 1/1st Hunts. Cyc. Bn., attd. 1/5th Bn., Glouc. R., T.F.

For conspicuous gallantry at Beaufort, on 5th-10th October, 1918, in leading his company to the attack. On 9th October, at Marez, he personally led parties clearing up enemy snipers and machine guns on the far edge of the village. His example of courage and devotion to duty inspired all ranks in his company.

Lt. Edgar Morgan, Brecknock Bn., S.W. Bord., attd. 23rd Bn., Ches. R., T.F.

East of Warcoing, on 31st October, 1918, he organised and took out a daylight patrol across the River l'Escaut. He skilfully surprised a machine-gun post, capturing four prisoners and a light machine gun, and, in face of intense machine-gun fire, obtained most valuable information of the enemy's positions. His courage and able leadership throughout were conspicuous, and his skill in a dangerous situation was most marked. He carried a wounded prisoner across a narrow plank bridge over the river in spite of machine-gun fire.

Lt. Francis Arthur Morgan, 5th Bn., attd. 1/6th Bn., S. Staff. R., T.F.

For marked gallantry and determined leadership. In the attack on Bellenglise on 29th September, 1918, when all the other officers in his company had been wounded in the first few minutes of the attack, he led his company on and captured his objective after overcoming all resistance in the village.

T./2nd Lt. Frank Crossley Morgan, 1st Bn., Lanc. Fus.

Near Ledeghem, during operations of 14th/15th October, 1918, he, who was in charge of the battalion snipers, showed a splendid example to all by his great gallantry and coolness, moving about at all times through the heaviest fire. By his action several machine guns were outflanked and the advance of the battalion greatly assisted.

Lt. Geoffrey William Morkill, R.F.A. (Spec. Res., attd. B/104th Bde.

When in command of a forward section, on 6th Nov., 1918, east of Noyelles, he did very excellent work, and, despite all obstacles and enemy fire, gave great assistance to the infantry during the advance. The gallant and able work of this officer and his section were of great value.

2nd Lt. Bernard Fred Morris, 4th Bn., Shrops. L.I., T.F., attd. 1st Bn., Ches. R.

During the attack on Beaurain, north of Le Cateau, on the 23rd Oct., 1918, when the enemy barrage fell upon the company, he laboured indefatigably and exposed himself unsparingly. Later, when the right flank of the battalion was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, although severely wounded, he continued to direct operations from a shell-hole, and by his fine example of courage inspired his men.

T./Capt. (A./Maj.) Lyndon Henry Morris, 1st Bn., Shrops. L.I.

He commanded his battalion during the attacks of 18th to 24th Sept., 1918, near Fresnoy, and showed coolness and judgment in dealing with situations. When the attack was held up he went forward, under machine-gun and shell fire, to reconnoitre, and by his presence inspired the men with confidence. The battalion eventually not only gained its objective, but also assisted the brigade on its left to reach its objective.

2nd Lt. Robert Moses, Shrops. L.I., Spec. Res., attd. 1/1st Bn., Hereford R.

Near Moen, on 25th Oct., 1918, as battalion signalling officer, he showed conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty under shell and machine-gun fire. He ran his wire out to the most advanced
