(1) If an employer at any time after the commencement of the Act satisfies the Minister that any person in respect of whom he is, or is about to become, liable to pay contributions under the general provisions of the Act has not delivered or caused to be delivered to him an unemployment book in accordance with those Regulations, the employer may, on furnishing the name and occupation of such person to a Local Office, obtain an emergency book, and for the purpose of the provisions of these Regulations relating to the stamping of books and to deductions from wages in respect of stamps affixed by employers (but not for any other purpose) an emergency book shall be deemed to be an unemployment book within the meaning of these Regulations.

(2) An emergency book shall be in such form as the Minister directs and shall be current during such period, not exceeding six weeks from the date of the issue thereof, as may be specified thereon, and shall at the end of such period or on the previous termination of the aforesaid person's employment be returned by the employer to the Local Office from which it was issued.

Provided that if the aforesaid person before such date delivers or causes to be delivered to the employer an unemployment book in accordance with these Regulations, the employer shall deliver the emergency book to the aforesaid person in exchange for the unemployment book.

(3) Notwithstanding that contributions have been paid in respect of any such person by the affixing of stamps to an emergency book, he shall not be entitled to obtain unemployment benefit without first obtaining an unemployment book.

(i) Where he pays to the insured contributor wages or other pecuniary remuneration in respect of the employment of such insured contributor he shall, before paying to the insured contributor the wages or remuneration in respect of the period for which contributions are payable, affix to the book of the insured contributor a stamp or stamps in payment of the contributions due in respect of that period:

(ii) Where he does not pay to the insured contributor wages or other pecuniary remuneration in respect of the employment, he shall, on the first day of employment in each calendar week, affix to the book of the insured contributor a stamp in payment of the contribution in respect of that week.

(iii) In the case of a man of the Naval Reserves, or of the Army Reserve, or of the Air Force Reserve, or of the Territorial Force, who is for the time being by reason of sub-section (2) of Section 40 of the Act deemed to be an employed person in the service of the Crown, the time for affixing stamps to the book of the employed person in payment of contributions due under the general provisions of the Act shall, where the period of currency of the book expires during any period of training, be any time before the expiration of the period of currency, and where the period of currency does not so expire, be any time before the termination of the training.

(3) It shall be the duty of the employer, in addition to his obligation to comply with any other requirement of the Act or the Regulations thereunder in regard to the payment of contributions,

(a) on the termination of the employment whether or not any wages are then paid,

(b) within six days after the expiration of the period of currency of the book, to affix to the book of the insured contributor a stamp or stamps in payment of all the weekly contributions due from him but still outstanding in respect of the period ending at the date of such termination or expiration.

(4) It shall further be the duty of the employer, on being so required by any duly appointed Officer of the Ministry of Labour, to affix to an arrears book a stamp or stamps in payment of all the weekly contributions due from him but still outstanding in respect of any insured contributor who is or has been in his employment and to forward the arrears book when stamped to the person or address indicated thereon.

(5) Where the employer employs a substantial number of insured contributors regularly he may deposit with the Minister a sum equal to the estimated amount of the contributions payable by him during a period of twenty-seven weeks or such less period as may be agreed between him and the Minister in respect of those insured contributors both on his own behalf and on behalf of those insured contributors.

On making such a deposit the obligation of the employer to stamp the books of those insured contributors on the occasions or at the intervals hereinbefore specified shall cease, and in lieu thereof he shall be liable as follows:—

(i) In case the employment of any of those insured contributors terminates before the expiration of any period of twenty-seven weeks or such less period as may be agreed, the employer shall be liable on such termination to stamp the book of the insured contributor whose employment so terminates; and

(ii) In the case of any insured contributor whose employment does not so terminate the employer shall be liable either to stamp the book of that insured contributor at intervals of twenty-seven weeks or such less period as may be agreed or, if the Minister so permits, to pay the contributions payable in respect of that insured contributor through the Minister at intervals of twenty-seven weeks or such less period as may be agreed in such manner as the Minister may direct.

Where a deposit has been made under the foregoing provision the employer, for the purpose of deducting from wages the amount of the insured contributor's contribution, shall be deemed to have duly affixed the necessary stamps to the book of the insured contributor at the several dates on which he would have been bound to affix them if no such deposit had been made.

If the Minister thinks fit, he may allow any sum which is to be deposited under the foregoing provisions to be paid to him at weekly or other intervals during the period for which the deposit is to be made instead of being paid to him in one sum at the commencement of the period.

(6) No stamp shall be affixed to or impressed upon a book otherwise than in respect of insurable employment and any stamp affixed or impressed otherwise shall not be deemed to be a payment of a contribution except for the purpose of Section 28 (1) of the Act.

(7) (1) An employer shall immediately after affixing any stamp to a book cancel the stamp by writing in ink, or stamping with a metallic die with black indelible ink or composition, across the face of the stamp the date upon which it is affixed and not otherwise, but save as expressly provided in Regulations made under the Act or as directed by the Minister no other writing or mark shall be made at any time upon the book or stamp.

(1) An employer may, if he thinks fit, inscribe upon the book of any insured contributor employed by him, but only in such manner as to be easily erased or removed, the number of that person upon the pay-list or in the books of the employer.

(8) No person shall affix to a book a stamp which has been cancelled or defaced.

Exceptional Cases

Employment by Two or More Employers.

10. (1) Where any insured contributors are ordinarily employed by two or more employers in a week, the employers or any class or group of the employers of those persons may, if they think fit, submit to the Minister an arrangement for the payment of contributions under the Act in respect of those persons.

(2) Where the Minister is satisfied that any arrangement so submitted to him is such as to secure the due payment of the contributions payable under the Act in respect of every insured contributor to whom the arrangement applies for every week during any part of which he is employed by any employer who is a party to the arrangement, he may, if he thinks fit, approve the arrangement.

(3) Any such arrangement may make such modifications in these Regulations as may be necessary to give effect to the terms of the arrangement.

(4) Where an arrangement has been approved by the Minister the parties to the arrangement who have employed any insured contributors to whom the arrangement applies in the course of a week shall in respect of that week be deemed jointly to be the employer of that insured contributor for the purposes of the provisions of the Act relating to the payment of contributions.

Employment as Agent by Two or More Employers.

11 In the case of an insured contributor employed as an agent by two or more employers and paid by commission or fees or a share of the profits, or partly in one and partly in another of those ways, the employer in the employment on which the insured contributor is mainly dependent for his livelihood shall be deemed to be the employer of the insured contributor for the purposes of the provisions of the Act relating to the payment of contributions.

First Employer During Week.

12. Where an insured contributor is employed by two or more employers in any week and no one of these employers is the first person employing him in that week within the meaning of the Act, then, unless the case is one for which other provision is expressly made by these Regulations, that one of the employers who first makes a money payment to the insured contributor in respect of his employment in that week shall be deemed to be the employer of that insured contributor for the purpose of the provisions of the Act relating to the payment of contributions.

Provided that in Scotland the employer for the purpose aforesaid shall be deemed to be that one of the employers for whom the insured contributor first renders services in that week and, if no services are rendered during that week by the insured contributor for any of the employers, that one of the employers who first makes a money payment to the insured contributor in respect of his employment in that week.

Agreement by Grouped Employers

13.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in these Regulations, where any one insured contributor is ordinarily employed by more than one employer in the week, the employers of that insured contributor may enter into an agreement for the payment of contributions in respect of that insured contributor in such form as the Minister may approve, and where any such agreement is entered into between any such employers the following provisions shall have effect —

(a) Where in any week the insured contributor in respect of whom the agreement is made is, before any contribution has been paid in respect of him for that week, employed by an employer who is not a party to the agreement, that employer shall, for the purposes of the provisions of the Act relating to the payment of contributions, be deemed to be the employer of that insured contributor for that week;

(b) If in any week a contribution is payable by the employers who are parties to the agreement or by any of them, that contribution shall in the first such week be paid by that one of the parties to the agreement employing the insured contributor during that week whose signature to the agreement appears first in order, and in any subsequent week by that one of the parties to the agreement employing the assured contributor during that week whose signature to the agreement is next in succession to that of the person who paid the last weekly contribution payable by the parties to the agreement, and for this purpose the signatures of the parties shall be read in rotation, the first signature being deemed to be the next in succession to the last, and the signature of any person who does not employ the insured contributor during that week being disregarded.

(c) The employer whose duty it is to pay the contribution for any week shall be deemed to be the employer of the insured contributor for the purpose of the provisions of the Act relating to the payment of contributions;

(d) Any one of the parties to the agreement may immediately after paying a contribution, but not at any other time, strike out his signature to the agreement, and write his initials with the date opposite his signature, and upon doing so he shall cease to be a party to the agreement, and the insured contributor may, upon ceasing to be employed by any person who is a party to the agreement strike out from the agreement the signature of that person, and on so doing shall write his own initials with the date opposite the signature so struck out;

(e) If at any time any other person employing or about to employ the insured contributor desires to become a party to the agreement, he may, subject as hereinafter provided, affix his signature, with the date at the end of the signatures appended to the agreement, and this Regulation shall henceforth apply to him in like manner as if he had been an original party to the agreement;

Provided that where a contribution would be payable in any week in respect of the insured contributor by any such other person if that person did not become a party to the agreement, that person shall not be entitled to affix his signature as aforesaid unless and until he pays the contribution so payable.

(2) Employers desiring to enter into an agreement for the purposes of this Regulation shall enter their names and addresses in a book to be issued for the purpose by the Minister, and every such book shall be signed in each week by the employer paying the contribution in respect of that week.

(3) Upon the termination of the period specified in any such book, the agreement shall cease to be binding on the employers, and any person having possession of the book shall forthwith return it to the Minister.

Insured Contributors Employed by One Person for Purpose of Business of Another.

14. Where an insured contributor works under the general control and management of some person who is not his immediate employer, that person (in this Regulation referred to as the substantial employer) shall be deemed to be the employer for the purpose of the provisions of the Act and Regulations thereunder relating to the payment of contributions if he would be so deemed under the Regulations made in that behalf under the National Health Insurance Acts, 1911 to 1920, and the aforesaid provisions of the Act and Regulations shall in that case be construed and have effect as if the substantial employer were the immediate employer of the insured contributor.

Provided that the substantial employer may deduct from any payments due from him to the immediate employer any sums paid by him as contributions on behalf of the insured contributor and the immediate employer may deduct from the insured contributor's wages or from any other payments due from him to the insured contributor any sums which the substantial employer would be entitled to deduct were he the immediate employer.

Miscellaneous.

Persons Employed by Same Employer Partly as Employed Persons and Partly in an Excepted Occupation.

15. Where during any period an insured contributor has been employed by one employer partly in an occupation employment in which makes him an employed person and partly in some other occupation, and contributions have by arrangement between the employer and the insured contributor been paid as if he were wholly engaged in the first-mentioned occupation, those contributions shall be deemed to have been duly paid under the general provisions of the Act.

Fractions of Contributions to be Disregarded in Certain Circumstances.

16. On any occasion on which the number of contributions paid in respect of an insured contributor is recorded, any fraction of a contribution, whether arising by reason of the affixing of stamps of the wrong kind or of the wrong denomination to an Unemployment Book or otherwise, may be disregarded.

Unemployment Books not to be Assigned, etc.

17. No person shall assign or charge or agree to assign or charge any book, and any sale, transfer or assignment of, or any charge on, any book shall be void and of no effect, and no person shall deface or destroy a book or alter or amend any of the figures or particulars (other than his address) therein contained.

Signed by order of the Minister of Labour this twenty-sixth day of October, 1920.

Secretary of the Ministry of Labour.
