For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the attempt to relieve the garrison of Rowanduz, August 28th to 30th, 1920. Lt. Littledale, with one British subordinate, two Levy officers, and 20 Sowars, started from Erbil for Rowanduz on the 28th August. On the 30th August he was joined by another party of 15 Sowars and 62 infantry. With this party he gallantly attacked Batas, but met with great opposition. The greater part of his men were forced to retire, but one Arab officer and four men stood by Lt. Littledale, and with these he kept off the insurgents and covered the extrication of his force. Subsequently, although attacked from all sides by a force estimated at 400 rifles, he brought the majority of his party safely back to Erbil.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in action east of Saidgi, N.W. Frontier, India, on the 13th June, 1921. Pte. Fry was a reserve driver of an armoured car which had broken down about three miles east of Saidgi. The enemy had rushed the car and climbed on top of it, and attempted to kill the crew. The driver of the car was killed. The crew succeeded in driving off the enemy, who retired and took up a position under cover and continued to shoot at the car. Communication to Saidgi was impossible. The serjeant in charge of the car asked for a volunteer to get out of the car and proceed to Saidgi to report the situation. Pte. Fry volunteered for this duty, and under heavy fire left the car and proceeded to Saidgi, where he arrived in a very exhausted state. The information which he brought in did much to clear up the situation.
