4. It will be noted that the description of the Trade, after enumerating in seven paragraphs processes or operations included in the scope of the Order, proceeds to enumerate certain exclusions. It may be convenient if the scope of Exclusion (i) is illustrated by the following examples:—

(a) A cabinet maker who manufactures his own fittings is outside the scope of the Order as regards the production of any fittings which are incorporated with or fitted to the cabinets made in his own establishment, but if any fittings (produced by the processes, etc., defined in paras. 1-6) are sold by him as fittings, then their manufacture is within the scope of the Order.

(b) The same remarks would apply to the manufacturer of made-up leather goods (attaché cases, etc.) making fittings for incorporation with his products.

(c) Similarly, these remarks would apply in the case of an umbrella maker who also manufactures fittings for the umbrellas he makes.

It should be carefully noted, however, that exclusion (i) is subject to provisos (a) and (b) thereof, which are self-explanatory.

5. In addition to exclusions covered by the general terms of Exclusion (i), note should be taken of the specific exclusions in paras. (ii) to (xv); these require no explanation.
