Whitehall, July 17, 1925.

The following Address was presented to The KING on the occasion of the opening by His Majesty on the 13th instant of the new House of the British Medical Association, Tavistock Square, London, W.C.

BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

TO THEIR MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTIES THE KING AND QUEEN.

May it Please Your Majesties:—

On behalf of the members of the British Medical Association we offer our grateful thanks to Your Majesties for graciously consenting to perform the opening ceremony of the new House of the Association. We recall with pride and pleasure that His Majesty King Edward the Seventh in 1900, when Prince of Wales, graciously accepted the Honorary Membership of the Association; that on succeeding to the Throne he further honoured us by becoming Patron of the Association; and that Your Majesty did graciously consent to occupy that office on your accession to the Throne.

The British Medical Association was founded at Worcester in 1832 by Sir Charles Hastings, an eminent and public spirited physician, whose memory we desire piously to honour on this auspicious day. The Association from its beginning has had for its objects the promotion of the medical and allied sciences and the maintenance of the honour and interests of the
