3rd October, 1929.*

His Majesty The KING has been graciously pleased to confer the Decoration of the Albert Medal upon Andries Muller Heyns, of the district of George, Cape Province, South Africa.

The following is an account of the services in respect of which the Decoration has been conferred:—

On the 28th December, 1927, at Little Brak Beach, Mossel Bay, South Africa, a youth named Ockardus Johannes Heyns, aged 17, was bathing with a party of friends when suddenly he was attacked by a man-eating shark, which carried him some distance out to sea and bit off his left leg above the knee.

With the full realisation of the danger he was incurring one of the bathers, Andries

Muller Heyns, an uncle of Ockardus Heyns, immediately went out to the assistance of his nephew. The shark, meanwhile, had returned to the attack and had gripped Ockardus Heyns by the right foot and ankle. Andries Heyns got hold of his nephew and tried to free him from the shark; nevertheless the foot and ankle of Ockardus Heyns were severely crushed.

Andries Heyns succeeded in reaching the shore with his nephew, who soon became unconscious and died some hours later in Mossel Bay Hospital.
