Hull, January 29.

THis Morning sailed hence one ship for Zirick seas, and nother for Lisbonne, the latter newly put in here from Holland, and four others intending for London. Here are arrived two ships from the Coasts of France, but without any advices of importance.

Plymouth, Jan. 30. Yesterday sailed hence the Dartmouth Fregate, with several ships which lay here bound to the Eastwards. This day put in here several ships intended for Burdeaux, some for the Streights, and others for the Barbado's.

Rorismouth, Jan. 31. The Mi ford has not yet been able to get out to sea, but waits onely for a favourable wind; as does also the Pearl intended for the Streights. The Portland is refitting her Masts, and may in few dayes be in readines to put to Sea. The Dartmouth is now riding at St. Ellens.

Tunis, Dec. 31. Some few days since was taken at sea by some ships belonging to this place, a French ship laden to a considerable value, and bound from Smirna to Legorn, which though fortify'd with a Pass from the Duke de Beaufort the French Admiral, was adjudged lawful prize, the Master being a Native of Massina, and was accordingly disposed of; about the same time they met also with a Dutch ship laden at Tripoli and bound for Venice, which after a sharp dispute they sunk, the men getting to Land in their boat.

Since this, a French Polack, laden at Alexandria, riding by a ship of this place, a quarrel accidentally rose between them, which grew to that height, that coming to blows, two or three persons were killed on each side, and several others wounded, but some other vessel of this place coming in, the French ship was in the end seized and brought in here; and since adjudged prize, as being suspected to have had a design to have surprized the other.

Ten men of War belonging to this Port, are ordered to be suddenly armed and fitted up for the service of the Grand Seignior, and may in little time be in readines to put to sea for the Levant.

Rome, Jan. 12. Yesterday arrived here three Ministers sent hither from the Catholick Cantons of Switzerland, who are lodged and honourably entertained upon the account of the Pope.

From Naples we are told, that the Vice-Roy of that Kingdom, is preparing to depart suddenly from thence with an extraordinary Train of his Nobility and Cavalry on his Embassy of obedience to the Pope, his Baggage to be carried by 70 Mules, all of them having large silver plates upon their heads, which they are to cast off at their entry upon the Papes Dominions.

Venice, Jan. 19. Since the loss of the ship called the Annuntiation in the Port of Malamocco, there is lately cast away by storm a rich Marilian, with her freight of Oyls and 1000 Crowns in moneys. The ill weather has of late deprived us of all opportunities of Advices from Candia, onely a small vessel with much difficulty arriying from the Isle of Corfu, informs us, that notwithstanding all the opposition made by the Garrison in Candia, and the inconveniences of the Winter season, the Turks continue the Siege with much eagerness and obstinacy, pressing much upon the Bastion of St. Andre; upon which they play hotly with their great Guns; by which the Sieur du Pre, Major to the Count de

St. Paul's Brigade; had his head taken off; and the Sieur de Chamilly and Lare received some hurt from the stones of the Parapet broken by the same Bullet: the Sieur de Marinussall of the same Brigade killed, the Chevalier de Meriville wounded by a Granado, and the Sieur de Sabloniere with an Arrow.

The Senate are with much hast dispatching a Convoy of 12 ships for the relief of that place; whereon they are lading all sorts of Ammunition and Provisions, with Arms and other Instruments of Warre, and a great quantity of Corn.

Here daily arrive fresh Companies of Foot of our new Levies, who are entred into pay and sent aboard the same Convoy; nor is their care less for the dispatch of Soldiers, and all sorts of necessaries for Dalmatia, from whence we have daily new advices of the Turks preparations to invade that Countrey, for which purpose they have already drawn a considerable force together in Bosnia.

Genova, Jan. 21. The 18th instant arrived the Ruby an English Fregat, and the next day the Montague came to an Anchor before this Port, intending for Legorn, and from thence to set sail for Cadix.

From Milan they write, that the Privy Council which since the death of the Marquis de Mortara their late Governour, has undertaken the management of that Government, till farther Order from the Court of Spain, has for the satisfaction of the people and the preservation of the publick peace, confirmed all Orders and Proclamations made not only by the Marquis their late Governour, but by his Predecessors also in that Charge; and are making several new Orders for the better Regulation of the People.

From Turin we are informed, that the Duke of Savoy being certainly informed that the Pope has been pleased to confirm the late Marriage of the Prince and Princess of Portugal, has resolved to dispatch a Gentleman of his Court as his Envoye to Lisbonne, to congratulate and complement them thereupon.

The Mines of Metals formerly discovered in that Countrey, are said to turn to a good account, of which have been lately founded several Pieces of Cannon, which have well endured the Trial.

Legorn, Jan. 21. A Merchant ship latly arriying here from the Coasts of Parbary, informs us, that a great part of the Countrey under the jurisdiction of the Grand Seignior, is in much apprehension of the intentions of the Tissifera's; fearing lest his great Victories and Success, may induce him to turn his Forces upon them: which obliges them to consult their own security, by reinforcing their Frontier Garrisons, and putting the Countrey into a posture of defence, and by frequent exercising them in Arms, to prepare them for service; that they may be the better enabled to make opposition upon any Invasion.

By the same ship we are farther advised, that three ships of Malta were lately set upon by four of the Corsairs of Algiers, who were returning homewards with two Christian ships which they had taken some dayes before and made prize; but that after a sharp fight of several hours, the Victory fell to the Malteses: who had the good fortune to sink two of the Corsairs, giving chase to the other two, and re-taking the Prizes, which they afterwards set at liberty.

Monsieul'es, Jan. 29. Letters of the 17th instant from Malta inform us, that the succors sent by the Grand Master for the assistance of Candia were there safely arrived; and that upon the 16th of December, the French volunteers had had with extraordinary courage made a fall upon the Turks, which though performed with great execution upon the Enemy, was not without considerable loss of many of their own which were killed upon the place, and several others wounded; adding farther, that the Turks had gained so much ground upon the City, that without an extraordinary succor it could not be able to make any long resistance.

Amsterdam, Feb. 1. This day was made an Election of Burgomasters for this City, the choice falling upon the Heer Cornelis Van Vlooswijk, Gerrit Hasselner, Nicholas Panxaras, and Coornard Van Beuningen.

From the Texel they tell us, that the seas being now pretty well cleared from the Ice, the Merchants ships begin again to appear, but by a late great storm at sea, several ships are said to have been cast away in the River of Ross; and others upon the English coasts; amongst many others we are particularly told of the loss of one ship of Hambourgh and another of Dort, with a considerable freight.

From Cadix we are told of the safe arrival there of the Convoy which parted from the Texel in November last, whereof five of that number were gone forwards, and were past the Streights on their way for Malaga; and that the Rotterdam Convoy was safely there arrived the 30th of December on Malaga, and intended in four or five days to put to sea in order to their voyage homewards.

Several ships belonging to Zealand were in their way to Malaga attended by the Corsairs of Barbary, and had run much hazard, had not the men of war, their Convoy, timely come up with them, upon whose appearance the Turks made off again to sea and left them, of which Convoy were arrived there the first past, the Orange branch, and Golden Lyon, and the rest daily expected.

Paris, Feb. 6. The Drums are already beating for Volunteers to serve under the Command of the Marschal de Bellefonds, who upon his own expence, intends to raise two thousand men for the assistance of the Republick of Venice, in the defence of Candia, he pretending not to enter upon that service as a Marshal of France, but as a Christian for the interest of Religion, on which account he will not be over scrupulous in receiving Orders from the Venetian General. Monsieur de Turenne intends also to raise a Regiment of two thousand for the same service, which with some other Companies may be joyned with 4000 of the Popes forces, which are now raising for the same employment.

From Wurzburg in Fraconia, we are advised, that the 24th past, 3000 of the Dukes of Lunenburg forces passed by that place on their way for Candia, intending so to order their march, as to arrive there within the space of one moneth.

His Majesty has been pleased to concur with the Duke of Lorraine's desires, upon the disbanding of the rest of his Army, to grant him the liberty of keeping still in Arms Twelve hundred Foot and Six hundred Horse for the guard of his person: that Duke has already disbanded the greatest part of his forces, but from Pont-a-Mousson we are told, that the German Regiments of Horse dismissed from his service, have committed many violencies in the Countrey, adventuring also to plunder some houses in the Town, whereof complaints being made to the Duke of Lorraine, he was pleased to send to the Marschal de Crequy, desiring him to order a party of his forces to advance towards them, to reduce them to better order.

Here is lately arrived a Courier from Rome, bringing with him to the Popes Nuncio, four Briefs, directed to the four Bishops, formerly interested upon the account of the Doctrines of Fansenius, ratifying and confirming all that had been done for the composition of those disputes.

Paris, Feb. 9. From Barcelona we are advised, that Don Juan d' Austria has received a Letter from the Council of Spain informing him of the Queens pleasure to give him a months time to resolve upon his return to Consuegra; threatening him with some severe resolution which will be taken against him, if in that space he comply not with her Will: That the Queen has made a great change in Catalonia and the adjacent Countreys, putting into all Places and Commands such Persons of whose Fidelity she is well assured. They farther inform us, that Don Juan is again returned towards Barcelona, and is frequently diverting himself in that City; but as yet tis uncertain what resolution he intends to take.

Several of the Fortes intended for the Countrey of Roussillon are already upon their march thither; where they are to form a body of an Army to be ready upon any occasion.

Here is lately arrived an Express dispatched the 22th of December last from Candia by the Duke de Roannez, by which we have the unpleasant report of the dangerous state of that place; they having little hopes left them of long preserving it from the hands of the Turks. However the Marschal de Bellefonds still continues his Levies, with a resolution to lead them into the service of the Republick of Venice, where they may be serviceable upon some other account; though they should probably arrive too late for the preservation of the City of Candia.

From Constantinople we are advised, that about the end of December last arrived at the Port of that City the three French ships sent thither to attend the Sieur de la Haye Ambassadour there from His Most Christian Majesty, who immediately upon the News of their arrival, made his Addresses to the Caymakan, demanding leave for his return, according to the Orders sent to him from the King his Master, with Pass-ports for his security in his passage, but was answered by that Minister, that he could not give license his Departure, without first acquainting the Grand Seigneur of his intentions, and receiving his Orders thereupon; but that he believed His Highness would hardly be induced to consent to it, till another Ambassadour were first arrived to supply his room.

From port Louis we have the news of the arrival of the good ship called the St. Job, from the East-Indies, laden with Spices and other rich Merchandises, to the value of Twelve hundred thousand Livers upon the account of the lately established Company for that Trade.

His Majesty has ordered a new Post to be setled from Paris to Brisach, for the more regular maintenance of a correspondence with Germany by the way of Alsatia, and has bestowed the profits and advantages which will arise upon this establishment upon Monsieur de Louvois.

We have little confidence of any good effect from the Negotiation of our Commissioners at Lille with those of Spain about the satisfaction of all pretensions, the Marschal de Harmaieres having taken notice of the care taken by the Spaniards in well fortifying their Towns, and that besides the forces they have in Garrison, they have about ten thousand Horse and sixteen thousand Foot in readiness to take the field, has desired His Majesty to give order for the supply of 7 or 8 thousand men for the reinforcement of his frontier Garrisons;

All the Cavalry belonging to His Majesties Household are returned, and the Regiment of Guards are in few days expected.

Kinsale, Jan. 22. On Saturday morning last was cast away upon these Coasts a Dutch ship of 360 Tuns, laden with Wine and Salt from France, intended for Dublin; the Master and 13 Men perishing with her.

Yarmouth, Feb. 1. There have lately within these two or three dayes past through this Road near 30 sail of ships from the Northwards, and this afternoon two vessels from Hull intended for the River: About 20 sail more are now at Anchor in these Roads bound for the Southwards, and several light ships for the North.

Portsmouth, Feb. 2. The ship which was thought to be the Dartmouth, riding in St. Ellens Road, proves to be a Dutch Man of War bound for the Streights, but prevented in her Voyage by contrary winds, is since come in to Spithead.

The Milford and Pearl are still at Spithead expecting a favourable wind. The Portland is refitting with all diligence, and may be ready to put to sea in two or three dayes.
