On the 15th April, 1930, the Minister referred to the High Court for decision the questions whether persons employed in the following circumstances were or were not employed persons within the meaning of the Act of 1920:—

(a) Stoker employed at a hospital in stoking steam boilers used for heating the premises, driving the laundry machinery and providing steam for steriliser and disinfector.

(b) Stoker employed at a hospital in stoking hot water boilers.

(c) Head stoker employed at a hospital in stoking hot water and steam boilers used for heating, hot water supply and supplying steam to steriliser and disinfector, in executing minor repairs, and in supervising three other stokers.

(d) Stoker employed at a hospital in stoking steam and hot water boilers used for heating, hot water supply and supplying steam to steriliser and disinfector, and in executing minor repairs.

(e) Engineering attendant in a Government Department employed in stoking high pressure steam boilers and hot water boilers used for heating the premises and hot water supply, in executing minor repairs, and as fitter's mate.

It was held by Mr. Justice Roche that the employment of the persons referred to in (a) to (f) inclusive, except as "fitter's mate", was employment in domestic service and was, accordingly, excepted under paragraph (b) of Part II of the First Schedule to the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1920, and that Unemployment Insurance contributions were not, therefore, payable.
