His Majesty the KING has been graciously pleased to make the posthumous award of the Decoration of the Albert Medal in recognition of the gallantry displayed by Mr. Henry Hartley Wadsworth, Sixth Engineer of the s.s. "City of Cairo," of Liverpool.

The following is an account of the services in respect of which the Decoration has been awarded.

On the 5th November, 1933, an explosion occurred in the boiler room of the s.s. "City of Cairo" while she was in the Mediterranean Sea.

The Second Engineer, and Mr. Wadsworth, the Sixth Engineer, were in charge of the watch, and immediately the explosion occurred the Second Engineer rushed out of the stokehold and informed the First Engineer, who was off duty, of the mishap.

The First Engineer and the Second Engineer then went below. The Second Engineer went through the engine room and opened the door of the stokehold, but scalding steam drove him back. In returning he passed Mr. Wadsworth making his way towards the stokehold where it was known that some lascar firemen had been trapped at the time of the explosion. Mr. Wadsworth went into the stokehold; and when the steam had cleared away he was found dead in the port wing, close to the lascar firemen whom he had tried to rescue.

Mr. Wadsworth must have known that in entering the steam-filled stokehold in an endeavour to save the lascar firemen he was running a very great risk of losing his own life.
