Though he expended only a small amount of ammunition, the accuracy of his shooting appears to have put both engines of the enemy aircraft out of action and it effected a forced landing. Squadron Leader Farquhar also very actively engaged enemy aircraft in October, 1939, and has led his squadron with magnificent dash and courage on several occasions.

Awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal.

561516 Sergeant Frank Reginald CAREY.

During January, 1940, with his section leader, this airman engaged an enemy aircraft over the North Sea whilst it was attacking shipping. Again, in February, 1940, while leading a section of two aircraft, he engaged an enemy aircraft over the North Sea and shot it down. Low cloud was present during these engagements but Sergeant Carey's initiative, determination and skill prevented the enemy from taking cover in it and brought the engagements to a successful conclusion.
