CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

*St. James's Palace, S.W.1.
25th February, 1941.*

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the George Medal to:—
956216 Aircraftman, 2nd Class, Horace Dews,
Royal Air Force.

During a heavy air raid an A.F.S. crew were endeavouring to release a woman and child who were pinned against the basement wall of a demolished building by an iron girder. Fire was raging at the time and the whole building had collapsed upon the basement, out of which therefore there was no exit. The woman and child could be plainly seen down the side cellar wall and frantic efforts were made to release them, as the heat was intense and the smoke suffocating. Numerous members of the A.F.S. had given valuable assistance, but the combination of the heat and smoke had caused them to become exhausted. At this point, Aircraftman Dews took up a position full length on the debris and dug away with his hands at the rubble surrounding the woman but could not make a very substantial hole as the way was blocked by a dead body, an iron girder and baulks of timber. It was evident that the only thing to do was to get into the hole which had been made and try to release, at least, the child, because the heat and smoke were becoming more intense.

Aircraftman Dews immediately volunteered. He forced his body, head foremost into the hole, but several times he had to extricate himself on account of the heat. This was overcome by playing the hose upon him actually as he was in the hole. At last he reached the child and crawled back with her in his arms. Dews then freed the woman, who was pulled out of the hole. Shortly after their release the fire spread to the spot where they had been trapped.

Air Ministry,

25th February, 1941.

ROYAL AIR FORCE.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards in recognition of gallantry displayed in flying operations against the enemy:—

Bar to the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Squadron Leader Albert GOLDING, D.F.C. (33027), No. 37 Squadron.

One night in February, 1941, this officer was detailed to attack the aerodromes at Maritza and Calathos, on Rhodes Island. The targets were located in spite of extremely adverse weather and Maritza was attacked from 4,500 feet, and Calathos from 1,500 feet. Although his aircraft was damaged, he was able to bring back vital information regarding the aerodromes attacked, also the number and type of aircraft dispersed on them. By his courage, skill and persistence Squadron Leader Golding, as captain of aircraft, contributed largely to the success of the operation. He has completed 30 raids since joining the squadron.

Flight Lieutenant William Neill PERIOLI, D.F.C. (39391), No. 148 Squadron.

This officer has carried out 30 operations over Germany and 15 over Italy. He has shown great courage and determination throughout, and has set a high standard to his flight. Flight Lieutenant Perioli has always volunteered for operational duties.

Acting Flight Lieutenant John Connell FREEBORN, D.F.C., No. 74 Squadron.

This officer has been continuously engaged on operations since the beginning of the war. He has destroyed at least 12 enemy aircraft and damaged many more. He is a keen and courageous leader.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Acting Flight Lieutenant Maurice James BAIRD-SMITH (70035), Reserve of Air Force Officers, No. 37 Squadron.

One night in February, 1941, this officer carried out a low level attack on the aerodrome at Calathos, Rhodes Island, in extremely difficult weather conditions. In spite of intense light anti-aircraft fire, Flight Lieutenant Baird-Smith dropped his bombs from 1,000 feet and descending to 200 feet carried out a machine gun attack on dispersed aircraft. Two large fires were started and at least two multi-engined aircraft were destroyed. Flight Lieutenant Baird-Smith's aircraft was damaged, both petrol tanks being pierced, but, despite this, he succeeded in flying back to base, returning with valuable information concerning the target. This officer has shown conspicuous courage, skill and devotion to duty throughout.

Captain John Everitt FROST, No. 3 Squadron, South African Air Force.

In February, 1941, whilst on a patrol covering a distance of 180 miles inside enemy territory, this officer attacked an enemy bomber on the ground, at Afmadu, and destroyed it. The next day, he intercepted a formation of three enemy bombers escorted by two fighters, which were attacking our ground forces. He immediately attacked the bombers, two of which lost height rapidly and crashed. Captain Frost was then himself engaged by the fighters. He destroyed one, drove the other off, and then shot down the remaining bomber. He displayed great courage, skill and determination against a superior number of enemy forces.

Flying Officer Andrew Francis Atterbury OSBORN (73033). Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 148 Squadron.

One night in January, 1941, this officer was the captain of an aircraft which carried out an attack on the aerodrome at Catania. Pressing home his attack with great determination, he dropped his bombs in the target area, in the face of intense and accurate anti-aircraft fire, and then descended to 400 feet, and machine gunned searchlights and anti-aircraft guns, several of which he put out of action. Although his aircraft was severely damaged, Flying Officer Osborn flew a distance of 140 miles before being compelled to alight on the sea. He placed his aircraft near a naval vessel, and supported an injured member of his crew for half an hour until rescued. This officer has completed 27 operational flights and has shown courage and determination throughout.

Pilot Officer John Herbert Morgan DAVIES (81377). Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 148 Squadron.

One night in January, 1941, this officer was the navigator of an aircraft which carried out an attack on the aerodrome at Catania, in the face of intense opposition. When he returned from his operations, he learned that an observer was required for another crew detailed to attack the same objective. Without hesitation, Pilot Officer Davies immediately undertook the duty and made a second flight to the target. This officer is the bombing leader of his squadron, and throughout the 19 missions in which he has participated he has set a high standard of keenness, determination and efficiency.
