ROYAL AIR FORCE.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards in recognition of gallantry displayed in flying operations against the enemy:—

Distinguished Service Order.

Flight Lieutenant Robert Edgar Guy VAN DER KISTE (39248), No. 210 Squadron.

In April, 1941, this officer was the captain of an aircraft which carried out a reconnaissance of the Norwegian coast from Hammerfest to Harstad, entailing a flight of many hours. The greater part of the reconnaissance had to be carried out at a height of less than 2,000 feet owing to low cloud, but Flight Lieutenant Van Der Kiste made such skilful use of the low cloud and the topographical features of the country, that very little opposition from the ground was encountered. At Harstad, where there was no cloud, he approached the town flying just above the water level and, despite heavy and light anti-aircraft fire, flew right in and completed his reconnaissance. By skilful low flying among the fiords he was able to avoid any damage to his aircraft. On a previous occasion, Flight Lieutenant Van Der Kiste carried out a reconnaissance at a low altitude under extremely trying conditions. Although his aircraft was damaged by enemy fire he completed his mission and skilfully flew back to base. He has displayed high qualities of leadership and has contributed materially to the efficiency and high standard of morale obtaining in his Squadron.

Captain Kenneth Arthur QUIRK (102625), No. 1 Squadron, South African Air Force.

In May, 1941, Captain Quirk, with complete disregard for his own safety, landed near Acroma and rescued another officer who had been forced to land his fighter through enemy action. After burning this aircraft Captain Quirk flew off with the pilot in his own fighter in the face of fire from the enemy. He displayed great courage and devotion to duty in rescuing his comrade and in preventing the aircraft falling into enemy hands.

Bar to the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Wing Commander Thomas Geoffrey PIKE, D.F.C. (16202), No. 219 Squadron.

This officer has displayed outstanding skill and keenness in his efforts to seek and destroy the enemy at night. One night recently while his aerodrome was being bombed, he took off to engage the attackers when the aerodrome was illuminated by the glare from a large number of incendiary bombs.

Acting Squadron Leader Thomas Frederick Dalton MORGAN, D.F.C. (37415), No. 43 Squadron.

This officer has displayed exceptional skill both as a squadron commander and an individual fighter. During two consecutive nights in May, 1941, he destroyed three enemy aircraft bringing his total victories to 13. Squadron Leader Morgan has contributed in a large measure to the high standard of operational efficiency of the squadron.

Acting Squadron Leader John William Charles SIMPSON, D.F.C. (37642), No. 245 Squadron.

This officer has displayed great skill and initiative both as a squadron commander and an individual fighter. He has destroyed 12 enemy aircraft, of which two have been shot down at night.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Wing Commander James Owen WILLIS (32059), No. 45 Squadron.

This officer has displayed the utmost determination in action against the enemy. In May, 1941, he led a force of fighter aircraft in an attack against a moving transport column of some 100 vehicles, the majority of which were either destroyed or damaged. His leadership has been of a high order.

Acting Squadron Leader Richard Edgar Peter BROOKER (39931), No. 1 Squadron.

This officer led his flight with considerable skill and ability over a long period, during which he destroyed a number of enemy aircraft. Since taking command of the squadron, he has greatly assisted in the brilliant work performed by the squadron. Throughout Squadron Leader Brooker has set an excellent example.

Acting Squadron Leader Edward Chatham WOLFE (37705), Reserve of Air Force Officers, No. 141 Squadron.

This officer has displayed great determination as a night fighter pilot. During a patrol one night in May, 1941, he observed an enemy aircraft and closed in with great skill before ordering his air gunner to open fire. The aircraft which was still carrying a full load of bombs crashed to the ground and burst into flames. Squadron Leader Wolfe assumed command of the squadron in September, 1940, and since then he has undertaken numerous night operational flights. He has at all times displayed great courage and leadership.

Flight Lieutenant Bertie Rex O'Bryen HOARE (37858), No. 23 Squadron.

Since January, 1941, this officer has carried out many night operational missions. His bombing attacks have been delivered with great skill often in the face of severe opposition from ground defences, and, despite the hazardous nature of these sorties, he seldom returns without valuable information. Flight Lieutenant Hoare has destroyed at least two enemy aircraft and certainly damaged others. He has shown great enthusiasm and gallantry throughout.

Flying Officer Robert Frederick LEAVITT (42238).

In April, 1941, this officer was detailed to carry out an extensive reconnaissance off the Norwegian coast. He made a successful reconnaissance of two towns, but later his aircraft was hit by anti-aircraft fire and damaged. The aircraft immediately went into a spin but after losing height of about 5,000 feet, Flying Officer Leavitt regained control and, although the engine was running intermittently and the blind flying instruments were useless, he carried out a visual reconnaissance of a third town. In spite of the damage to his engine Flying Officer Leavitt succeeded in maintaining height above cloud in order that it might be possible to glide to land should the engine fail completely. He eventually succeeded in regaining his base returning with much valuable information. Flying Officer Leavitt was subsequently found to be suffering from concussion and an injured skull. He displayed great fortitude and devotion to duty throughout.

Pilot Officer Andrew Henry HUMPHREY (33543), No. 266 Squadron.

This officer has performed splendid work as a night fighter pilot. One night in May, 1941, he pursued an enemy bomber at a height of 20,000 feet and finally shot it down in the vicinity of an aerodrome off the Dutch or Belgian coast. Shortly afterwards, he observed another enemy aircraft taking off from the aerodrome and, diving down to 50 feet, he destroyed it. Although heavily attacked by the ground defences, Pilot Officer Humphrey succeeded in flying clear and later attacked an enemy fighter. He was compelled to break off this engagement after one attack as his ammunition was expended. Two nights previously, he destroyed an enemy bomber from close range. He has displayed great keenness on all occasions.

Flight Lieutenant Edward Christopher DEANESLEY (90251), Auxiliary Air Force, No. 256 Squadron.

Distinguished Flying Medal.

N.Z. 40283 Sergeant William Jack SCOTT, Royal New Zealand Air Force, No. 256 Squadron.

Flight Lieutenant Deanesley and Sergeant Scott, as pilot and air gunner respectively, have achieved conspicuous success during recent night fighting operations. One night in April, 1941, a Heinkel 111 was encountered and destroyed and since then a further three enemy aircraft have been destroyed, of which two were shot down during the same patrol. During these operations both Flight Lieutenant Deanesley and Sergeant Scott have displayed great skill and determination.

Distinguished Flying Medal.

628391 Flight Sergeant Charles STANSFIELD, No. 149 Squadron.

One night in May, 1941, this airman was the first wireless operator of an aircraft detailed to carry out an attack against Berlin. Owing to unforeseen weather conditions the aircraft passed its objective by a considerable distance and was faced with the prospect of having insufficient petrol to complete the return flight part of which would have to be made over enemy territory in daylight. Sergeant Stansfield proceeded to give his captain and navigator the utmost aid by means of wireless communication. With great skill he made contact with his base and kept the authorities informed as to position, height, speed and state of fuel. The aircraft eventually landed safely in this country with completely empty petrol tanks. Sergeant Stansfield displayed exceptional skill and coolness under extremely difficult conditions and was largely responsible for the safe return of his aircraft.

518345 Flight Sergeant Gwilym Trevor WILLIAMS, No. 219 Squadron.

This airman has been employed with the squadron since May, 1940. He has completed many hours of operational night flying and his keenness and ability have been of great benefit in the training of others. He has assisted his pilot in the destruction of three enemy aircraft at night.

903071 Sergeant Sydney AUSTIN, No. 219 Squadron.

This airman has performed a large number of flying hours on night fighting operations during which he has assisted in the destruction of three enemy aircraft. He has displayed considerable ability and efficiency throughout.

519573 Sergeant James GILLIES, No. 91 Squadron.

In April, 1941, this airman, as pilot of an aircraft on a reconnaissance patrol, observed a Heinkel 115 seaplane being towed by an enemy tender of 800 tons near the coast off Gris Nez. He returned to base and reported the incident and later escorted a section of our fighters to the target. Despite poor visibility, he located the objective and participated in an attack which resulted in the destruction of the seaplane and inflicted great damage to the tender. Returning from this operation he engaged and shot down a Messerschmitt 109. Sergeant Gillies has displayed exceptional skill as a reconnaissance pilot and, since October, 1940, has completed 150 sorties, during the course of which he has destroyed two enemy aircraft. On four other occasions, he has attacked enemy aerodromes and troops.

518381 Sergeant George LAURENCE, No. 141 Squadron.

When returning from a patrol one night in May, 1941, this airman observed an enemy aircraft within 20 miles of his base. Although his petrol was nearly exhausted he immediately closed to the attack and enabled his air gunner to open fire. Sergeant Laurence followed the enemy down to 3,000 feet firing five more bursts. The enemy aircraft subsequently crashed. On a previous occasion, Sergeant Laurence destroyed a Junkers 88 at night. He has shown great courage and devotion to duty throughout the many night operational flights in which he has participated.

630959 Sergeant Arthur Alexander O'LEARY, No. 604 Squadron.

One night in May, 1941, this airman was one of the crew of a fighter aircraft engaged in night-flying operations. His pilot was closing in to attack a hostile aircraft when the enemy fired a burst, which severely wounded Sergeant O'Leary. In spite of his wounds, Sergeant O'Leary rendered valuable assistance to his pilot which enabled him to bring the aircraft safely back to base. Sergeant O'Leary displayed great courage and fortitude throughout.

745744 Sergeant John Blenkin RAFFELS, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 23 Squadron, 968409 Sergeant Leonard LANGLEY, No. 23 Squadron.

Sergeant Raffels and Sergeant Langley have performed excellent work as pilot and air gunner respectively in an aircraft engaged on night fighting operations. By their splendid teamwork they have destroyed three enemy aircraft and caused much damage to enemy aerodromes. Both have displayed great enthusiasm and efficiency.
