Air Ministry,

15th August, 1941.

ROYAL AIR FORCE.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards in recognition of gallantry displayed in flying operations against the enemy:—

Distinguished Service Order.

Acting Wing Commander Leslie Vero Everest ATKINSON, D.F.C. (39407), No. 82 Squadron.

In June, 1941, this officer carried out a low-flying attack on the Tripoli-Homs road demolishing a large factory. The following day he led a most determined attack on shipping in Tripoli harbour. As a result a 20,000 ton liner and a 12,500 ton motor vessel were severely damaged, while the complete harbour organisation was disrupted; all the remaining ships sailed away later in the day. Wing Commander Atkinson also led a successful attack on an aerodrome ten miles west of Tripoli causing large fires and explosions. Amongst other damage inflicted, five aircraft were destroyed on the ground. This officer has proved himself to be a fearless operational pilot and has been responsible for the destruction of many thousands of tons of enemy shipping. He is a magnificent leader whose courage and determination have been of the highest order.

Distinguished Service Order.

Acting Flight Lieutenant Thomas John WATKINS (44735), No. 82 Squadron.

Distinguished Flying Medal.

550557 Sergeant James Samuel SARGENT, No. 82 Squadron.

In June, 1941, Flight Lieutenant Watkins and Sergeant Sargent were pilot and observer respectively of an aircraft which participated in an attack on an enemy convoy off Lampedusa. Attacking a 6,000 ton merchant ship in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire, Flight Lieutenant Watkins was severely wounded in the legs during his run over the target. Nevertheless, he pressed home his attack, most high, scoring hits on the objective. Enemy fighters then engaged his aircraft but, by skilful manœuvring, he enabled his rear gunner to resist the attackers. On the return journey, Flight Lieutenant Watkins fell into a stupor as a result of his wounds and Sergeant Sargent, who was unable to call the air gunner as the intercommunication gear was out of order, removed the wounded pilot from his seat, took over the controls and flew the aircraft back to base. During this period, Flight Lieutenant Watkins had momentary periods of consciousness and, when informed that the aircraft was over base, insisted on taking control. Although in intense pain and very weak from loss of blood, by a supreme effort he regained his seat and made a landing without damaging the aircraft. Throughout Flight Lieutenant Watkins displayed the highest courage and devotion to duty while Sergeant Sargent displayed courage and resource in difficult circumstances.

Flight Lieutenant Christopher Smales BARTLETT (39928), No. 216 Squadron.

One night in May, 1941, this officer carried out a flight which necessitated transporting a party of Royal Engineers and landing them beside a highly strategical railway bridge which it was intended to destroy. Much of the complete success of this daring and difficult operation can be attributed to the skill displayed by this officer. Flight Lieutenant Bartlett has also executed eleven successful night raids.

Acting Flight Lieutenant William Alfred SHILLITTO (43142).

This officer has carried out many flights of a technical nature in which he has shown great devotion to duty. The majority of flights, undertaken in all forms of weather conditions, have been over the English Channel and towards enemy-occupied territory. On one occasion his aircraft was repeatedly attacked by a Messerschmitt 109F. After taking successful avoiding action Flight Lieutenant Shillitto succeeded in firing a long burst which damaged the Messerschmitt and the engagement was broken off. Flight Lieutenant Shillitto is a capable leader who has set a very high standard.

Flying Officer Clive Selwyn DAVIS (81380), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 38 Squadron.

One night in June, 1941, this officer carried out a successful attack on a target at Benghazi, afterwards flying on to Benina where, in spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire, he machine gunned aircraft on the ground from a low altitude. This officer has carried out 34 operational flights, and has at all times displayed exceptional keenness, skill and determination.

Flying Officer Leonard David Mostyn SCOTT (41873), No. 145 Squadron.

Flying Officer Scott has taken part in 32 sweeps over enemy territory and has displayed the utmost gallantry and unfailing cheerfulness throughout. He has destroyed two enemy aircraft.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Acting Squadron Leader Victor Bosanquet VERITY (42164), No. 96 Squadron.

Distinguished Flying Medal.

905920 Sergeant Frederick William WAKE, No. 96 Squadron.

Squadron Leader Verity has shown a fine example by the skill with which he has intercepted enemy aircraft at night and the determination he has displayed in his attacks. He has destroyed at least two and damaged two other hostile aircraft. In most of his combats, Squadron Leader Verity has been accompanied by Sergeant Wake who, as an air gunner, has displayed great skill, determination and courage.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Acting Flying Officer George Eric WALKER (84711), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 7 Squadron.

902479 Sergeant Bernard CAPEL, No. 7 Squadron.

In July, 1941, Flying Officer Walker and Sergeant Capel were navigator/bomb aimer and rear gunner respectively of an aircraft which attacked the battle cruiser Scharnhorst at La Pallice. Flying Officer Walker skillfully navigated the aircraft to the target and, in the face of intense anti-aircraft opposition, succeeded in scoring a direct hit on the battle cruiser with a heavy bomb. During the operation, the aircraft was engaged by six enemy fighters and Sergeant Capel, by accurate and well-controlled fire destroyed the first two of them which attempted to close the range. The remainder finally flew away. Flying Officer Walker, by his navigational and bombing skill contributed largely to the success of the operation, while Sergeant Capel displayed great coolness and accurate shooting when opposed by a superior number of enemy aircraft. Both have participated in many previous operational missions.

Bar to the Distinguished Flying Medal.

563359 Sergeant John ONIONS, D.F.M., No. 226 Squadron.

This airman has completed 186 sorties. In July, 1941, he was pilot of one of a formation of aircraft which carried out a low-level attack on a convoy in daylight off the coast of Nordeney. On sighting the convoy of seven merchant vessels escorted by Flak ships, the formation broke up and the pilots attacked individually. In the face of intense anti-aircraft fire, Sergeant Onions secured at least one direct hit from low level on a ship of about 3,000 tons. His aircraft was twice hit, two of his crew received injuries, the navigation instruments and maps were wrecked and the hydraulic system was put out of action. Despite all this, Sergeant Onions successfully led the formation back to base and landed his damaged aircraft, with its undercarriage retracted, without further injury to his crew. He has at all times displayed high courage and determination.

774062 Sergeant Vernon George HUDSON, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 11 Squadron.

This airman has carried out 15 operational flights in the Albanian, Syrian and Greek theatres of war. On one occasion, whilst attacking the outer defences at Kiswe, his aircraft was considerably damaged by anti-aircraft fire but with great skill, Sergeant Hudson succeeded in flying back to base and landing safely. On another occasion, he displayed great initiative while carrying out a flight to Larissa. Although attacked by an enemy fighter and encountering other difficulties, he successfully completed his mission. In April, 1941, whilst engaged in ferrying duties, Sergeant Hudson's aircraft was attacked by four Italian fighters. He eventually succeeded in shaking them off but later was compelled to alight on the sea owing to engine trouble. He was picked up by a passing enemy ammunition ship, which was heavily bombed, but before it exploded, Sergeant Hudson swam ashore and, although machine gunned whilst in the water, succeeded in making contact with our own forces. Throughout this airman has displayed great skill and courage.

N.Z.391331 Sergeant Geoffrey Edward MOORE, Royal New Zealand Air Force, No. 148 Squadron.

One night in June, 1941, this airman was the rear gunner of an aircraft which attacked a target at Benghazi. During the run up, the aircraft was engaged by three Italian fighters, one of which was shot down and the other two driven off by the determined and accurate shooting of Sergeant Moore. Altogether this airman has completed 46 operational flights and has at all times displayed great courage and a high standard of gunnery.

1253402 Sergeant Jack Cyril SAICH, No. 9 Squadron.

CAN/R.60902 Sergeant Leslie SMITTEN, Royal Canadian Air Force, No. 9 Squadron.

Sergeants Saich and Smitten were captain and navigator of an aircraft engaged in an attack on a target at Bremen one night in July. When over Bremen the aircraft was caught and held by a large concentration of searchlights and immediately subjected to most intense and accurate fire from the ground defences. One shell burst wounded the rear gunner and cut the hydraulic controls of the turret, and a second set fire to the fabric of the fuselage. In a few seconds the fire spread backwards to the tail fin. Sergeant Smitten endeavoured to reach the rear gunner but being driven back by the fire he attacked it with an extinguisher and successfully subdued it. He then succeeded, with difficulty, in releasing the injured rear gunner who was trapped in his damaged turret. During this time another shell splinter ignited the forced landing flares in the port mainplane but these burnt through and fell away from the aircraft. Despite all these hazards, Sergeant Saich successfully extricated his aircraft from this area and set course for home. In spite of the damage sustained he succeeded, with the skilful navigation of Sergeant Smitten, in reaching the shores of this country where he made a forced landing without further injury to the crew. Both airmen displayed great courage, coolness and determination.
