One night in September, 1943, Flight Lieutenant Wright, and Pilot Officers Mackie and Matthews were pilot, navigator and air bomber respectively of an aircraft detailed to attack Mannheim. The operation demanded a high degree of skill and the success achieved reflects the greatest credit on the efforts of these members of aircraft crew who executed their task faultlessly. They have taken part in many previous operations and have always displayed courage, determination and devotion to duty of a high order.

On a recent occasion he flew in the leading aircraft of a formation detailed to attack troops on the beaches at Messina. During the operation, Flying Officer Bennett was severely wounded in the thigh. Displaying great fortitude he remained at his post and executed his duties until the engagement was concluded. Not until then did Flying Officer Bennett report his injury. His courageous and determined example was highly commendable.

Pilot Officer Robert Reginald George APPLEBY (145692), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 35 Squadron.

Pilot Officer Appleby is a captain of great merit. He has completed many sorties and has executed his tasks with a determination which has won high praise. Pilot Officer Appleby has invariably displayed great courage and devotion to duty.

Can/R.83451 Flight Sergeant John Frederick SMITH, Royal Canadian Air Force, No. 21 Squadron.

In August, 1943, this airman was wireless operator of one of a bomber force which attacked a target in Northern France. When crossing the enemy coast heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered. Flight Sergeant Smith was struck in the eye by a fragment of shrapnel which remained lodged. Displaying great fortitude and devotion to duty he refused attention until the target had been bombed. During the return flight, Flight Sergeant Smith continued to work at his wireless apparatus executing his duties with skill and coolness. This airman's courage and devotion to duty have been worthy of high praise.

Whilst over the target area the aircraft was hit by anti-aircraft fire and Sergeant Mehmed was wounded in the thigh.
