Air Ministry, 21st January, 1944.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards in recognition of gallantry displayed in flying operations against the enemy:—

Bar to Distinguished Flying Cross.

Squadron Leader Anthony Ives HOSTAGE LYNCH, D.F.C. (40180), No. 44 Squadron.

This officer was the pilot of an aircraft detailed to attack Berlin one night in December, 1943. On the bombing run the aircraft was hit by shrapnel and one of its engines was rendered useless. In spite of this, Squadron Leader Lynch made another run over the target. The aircraft was again hit. The greater part of the mid-upper turret cupola was torn away and other damage was sustained. Nevertheless, Squadron Leader Lynch pressed home his attack and afterwards flew the damaged bomber to base where he effected a masterly landing. This officer has completed very many sorties and has invariably displayed great skill, courage and resolution.

Bar to Distinguished Flying Cross.

Flight Lieutenant Howard CHARLES KELSEY, D.F.C. (112445), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 141 Squadron.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Flying Officer Edward Miles SMITH, D.F.M. (149151), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 141 Squadron.

As pilot and observer respectively, these officers have completed many sorties over enemy territory at night and have destroyed four enemy aircraft. They have displayed a high degree of skill, keenness and determination, setting a very fine example.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Squadron Leader Frank Cromwell GRIFFITHS, A.F.C. (37967), Reserve of Air Force Officers, No. 138 Squadron.

As captain of aircraft, Squadron Leader Griffiths has completed a large number of sorties. He has displayed great courage and determination and his skill as pilot has played a large part in the success achieved. His sterling qualities have proved an inspiration to the flight he commands.

Acting Squadron Leader Basil Silva JONES (40834), Reserve of Air Force Officers, No. 684 Squadron.

Flight Lieutenant Robert Copeland HAWSON (129909), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 684 Squadron.

As pilot and observer respectively, these officers recently completed a reconnaissance, involving a flight of 1,700 miles. They displayed great skill, determination and fortitude and obtained much valuable information.

Flight Lieutenant James Albert KING (45734), Royal Air Force.

This officer has completed a large number of reconnaissances, involving flights over mountainous country, often in adverse weather. On one occasion, when returning from a mission, engine trouble developed. Flight Lieutenant King landed safely at an emergency landing ground and, after effecting a temporary repair, took-off again and flew safely to base. He has displayed great skill, fortitude and determination.

Flying Officer Oswald Arthur DUPEE, D.F.M. (123298), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 684 Squadron.

Flying Officer Patrick Joseph McDONNELL (49646), Royal Air Force, No. 684 Squadron.

These officers, as pilot and observer respectively, have completed several long distance reconnaissance missions and have obtained excellent results. They have set a fine example of skill, determination and devotion to duty.

Pilot Officer Kenneth Frank CORNWELL (168642), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 166 Squadron.

Pilot Officer Joseph HORSLEY (161592), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 166 Squadron.

These officers were navigator and pilot respectively of an aircraft detailed to attack Berlin one night in December, 1943. Soon after crossing the enemy coast one of the aircraft's engines became useless. Pilot Officer Horsley continued his mission, however, being greatly assisted in reaching the target at the prescribed time by excellent navigation on the part of Pilot Officer Cornwell who, despite the fluctuations in height and speed displayed great accuracy. In spite of intense light anti-aircraft fire, Pilot Officer Horsley displayed great persistence and made three runs over the target before releasing his bombs. Considerable height had been lost and one of the starboard engines was hit and caught fire; the artificial horizon and the directional gyro were also rendered useless. Two engines were now unserviceable. Nevertheless, Pilot Officer Horsley flew the damaged aircraft to base. On the homeward flight, Pilot Officer Cornwell proved his skill in extremely difficult circumstances and his faultless navigation contributed materially to the safe return of the bomber. These officers, who have completed many sorties, have invariably displayed a high degree of skill, courage and devotion to duty.

Pilot Officer John GLOVER (158029), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 9 Squadron.

One night in December, 1943, this officer was the pilot of an aircraft detailed to attack Leipzig. When nearing the target area the aircraft was attacked by a fighter. Bullets from the enemy hit the bomber from stem to stern. One engine caught fire, the intercommunication system was put out of action and the rear turret was badly damaged; some important equipment was also rendered useless. Soon afterwards, the bomber was again attacked and sustained further damage. The windscreen was shattered. Two petrol tanks were pierced. Two members of the crew were wounded. Undeterred, Pilot Officer Glover went on to the target and executed a successful attack and afterwards flew the damaged aircraft to base. His example of skill, courage and resolution in the face of harassing circumstances was worthy of high praise.

Pilot Officer Edward Henri Joseph SUAREZ (Can/J.18830), Royal Canadian Air Force, No. 576 Squadron.

One night in December, 1943, this officer was the navigator of an aircraft detailed to attack Berlin. Whilst over the target area the aircraft was struck by shrapnel. The whole electrical circuit was fused, while Pilot Officer Suarez had his oxygen tube severed by a fragment. He resourcefully repaired the damage to his tube by means of his handkerchief and was able to obtain light to continue his navigational task by tying the engineer's lamp to his forehead. Later on, Pilot Officer Suarez lost all his equipment. Despite this he navigated the aircraft to base. In difficult circumstances his skill, coolness and initiative were highly commendable. Pilot Officer Suarez has participated in many attacks on important targets and has invariably displayed praiseworthy determination and devotion to duty.

Warrant Officer Thomas John BASSETT (Aus.412097), Royal Australian Air Force, No. 576 Squadron.

One night in December, 1943, Warrant Officer Bassett was the pilot of an aircraft detailed to attack Berlin. Whilst crossing the North Sea, the rear gunner complained of the lack of oxygen. The cause could not be ascertained. To afford the gunner some relief, Warrant Officer Bassett came down to a lower altitude and continued on his course. When nearing the target area, one of the bomber's engines became unserviceable and had to be feathered. Nevertheless, Warrant Officer Bassett persisted in his mission and successfully attacked the target. He is a most determined and resourceful captain, whose example has greatly inspired his crew.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Warrant Officer Ernest Armitage BROWN (1294659), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 77 Squadron.

Distinguished Flying Medal.

945704 Sergeant Philip DAVISON, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 77 Squadron.

1433707 Sergeant Michael TARPEY, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 77 Squadron.

Warrant Officer Brown and Sergeants Davison and Tarpey were pilot, flight engineer and air bomber respectively of an aircraft detailed to attack Frankfurt one night in December, 1943. Some 40 miles from the target the aircraft was attacked by a fighter, being repeatedly hit by the enemy's bullets. The mid-upper gunner and the flight engineer were wounded. The aircraft sustained much damage and went into a spiral dive and considerable height was lost before Warrant Officer Brown regained control. The intercommunication system and the mid-upper turret were unserviceable and some important equipment was useless. Nevertheless, Warrant Officer Brown went on to the target and afterwards flew the aircraft back to base. In spite of difficulties, Sergeant Tarpey and his wounded comrade, Sergeant Davison, fulfilled their tasks with skill and resolution, rendering valuable assistance to their pilot on the homeward flight. In harassing circumstances, these 3 members of aircraft crew displayed courage, coolness and determination of a high order.

Distinguished Flying Medal.

927917 Flight Sergeant William James Thomas GRANFIELD, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 166 Squadron.

As air bomber this airman has taken part in a large number of sorties and has displayed skill, determination and devotion to duty of a high standard. In December, 1943, he took part in an attack on Leipzig. When nearing the target area, the aircraft was hit by anti-aircraft fire and, a little later, was attacked by a fighter. Damage was sustained and a fire commenced. In spite of the flames and the fumes, Flight Sergeant Granfield coolly directed his pilot to the target and released his bombs. His conduct in the face of imminent danger was most praiseworthy.

1430138 Flight Sergeant Robert Alastair KEMP, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 166 Squadron.

One night in December, 1943, this airman was the navigator of an aircraft detailed to attack Leipzig. Whilst over the target area, the aircraft was repeatedly hit by bullets from an enemy fighter. One member of the crew was killed and another seriously wounded. The bomber caught fire. In spite of the fumes, Flight Sergeant Kemp coolly and skilfully guided his pilot to the target and released the bombs. This airman, who has participated in a large number of sorties, has invariably displayed courage and determination of a high order.

Air Ministry, 21st January, 1944.
