CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

St. James's Palace, S.W.1,
10th December, 1946.

The KING has been graciously pleased to give orders for the following appointments to the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire:—

To be Additional Members of the Military Division of the said Most Excellent Order:—

Acting Squadron Leader Laurence REAVELL-CARTER (76017), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 49 Squadron.

This officer completed eight operational sorties as observer over a period extending from April, 1940, till 26th June, 1940. On that date, his aircraft was shot down during an attack on the Kiel Canal and Squadron Leader Reavell-Carter was taken prisoner. From January, 1941, until March, 1942, he was engaged in the construction of four escape tunnels, all of which were discovered by the Germans before they could be used. In June, 1943, Squadron Leader Reavell-Carter thought of a method of escape from the camp. He himself was too large to be able to take advantage of this scheme, but it was used by two other prisoners of war. This officer was one of a large party which escaped by a tunnel from Sagan camp in March, 1944. A member of his section was noticed by a sentry and Squadron Leader Reavell-Carter was forced to disclose his own position in order to prevent the guard from shooting. He served 21 days detention for this attempt. During most of his period of captivity, Squadron Leader Reavell-Carter obtained many escape aids from the Germans and organised a forgery party. He was liberated near Lubeck in May, 1945.

Flight Lieutenant Sidney Maurice GARLICK (137536), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 12 Squadron.

Flight Lieutenant Garlick was the navigator of a Lancaster aircraft, which was detailed to attack Mailly-le-Camp on the night of 2nd May, 1944. After the objective had been bombed, it was observed that the port wing of the aircraft was on fire and all efforts to extinguish the flames were of no avail. The Captain ordered the crew to leave by parachute and Flight Lieutenant Garlick made a successful jump but, during his descent, he fell across some high-tension cables.

This caused severe burns, partial paralysis of his lower limbs and rendered him unconscious. When he regained his senses, Flight Lieutenant Garlick was lying in a wheat field in the area north of Romilly. He was in great pain from his burns, unable to move and suffering badly from shock. Showing great presence of mind, he pulled his parachute canopy round him for warmth and lay still, trying to regain his strength by resting and eating a portion of his escape rations. When he was sufficiently rested, Flight Lieutenant Garlick rendered what first aid was possible to his burns and took stock of his position. He realised that soon some one would come to repair the damaged high-tension cables and that he must leave his present position if he was to evade capture. In the early morning of 4th May, 1944, showing great fortitude, he crawled away in a south easterly direction to a high embankment from which he was able to see the surrounding country. He saw a wood in which he decided to take refuge. It was about two miles away, and, although badly crippled by his burns, with no medical attention or food apart from his escape rations, and travelling only at night, he reached his objective on the morning of 6th May, 1944. Flight Lieutenant Garlick then saw that he must soon obtain help and food and made contact with a farmer who gave him some assistance. He discovered that he was at Troyes. On the evening of 7th May, 1944, he set out again, travelling by night, hobbling and crawling in a south westerly direction till the 14th May, 1944. During this period, Flight Lieutenant Garlick lived entirely off the land. His wounds were unattended and his condition was rapidly becoming critical. He reached Bucy, where he sighted what appeared to be a well-to-do farm. Flight Lieutenant Garlick decided to try to get help and got into touch with the farmer who proved to be connected with the Resistance Movement. As a consequence, Flight Lieutenant Garlick was now given proper food and medical attention. From the middle of May, 1944, until the middle of August, 1944, he was moved from house to house and village to village to avoid capture by the Gestapo. By that time he had so far recovered from his injuries that he was able to join the "Maquis"—which he did, showing great courage and complete disregard for his personal safety. He remained with the Maquis until he made contact with Allied Forces and was flown to England on 6th September, 1944.

Flight Lieutenant James Edwin THOMPSON (78536),
Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 58
Squadron.

Flight Lieutenant Thompson was a member of the crew of an aircraft which failed to return from an operational sortie over Germany on 11th September, 1940. He was captured by the Germans when he landed on the shores of the Baltic near Lubeck. A few weeks after capture, Flight Lieutenant Thompson escaped from a train at Stralsund station, while being transferred from Oberursel to Barth. He climbed out of the window, while the guard's attention was distracted, and crawled along the railway track. His absence was discovered however and he was recaptured after a very short time. In January, 1942, whilst at Stalag Luft I at Barth, this officer made his second attempt to escape, after studying the movements of the guards and the general layout of the camp for a period of months. He gained admission to the non-commissioned officers' compound to take part in a football match and remained in hiding in the barracks when the other officers left. Later that night he crawled under the double gate leading to the football field and climbed over the perimeter fence. The whole operation took nine hours, and, when he was eventually free, he made his way towards Stralsund. There he was recaptured three days later while waiting for a boat to Sweden. Subsequently, Flight Lieutenant Thompson took an active part in several tunnel digging operations, but all of these were discovered before completion. He was eventually repatriated in September, 1944. Throughout his captivity, this officer showed great determination in his efforts to escape and his enthusiasm was never shaken by his failures.

Warrant Officer Victor Rodney Jacob SLAUGHTER (958689), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 405 Squadron.

The aircraft in which this warrant officer was flying was shot down during an operational mission on 1st July, 1941, and he was forced to abandon it by parachute. He landed about 45 miles south east of Zwolle. Having disposed of his parachute, he immediately started walking in a south westerly direction but, shortly afterwards, was seen by a German sentry whom he shot and threw into a canal. Later in the day, he made contact with a Dutch farmer who offered him assistance. About 24 hours later, he was arrested by Dutch police. On 1st August, 1941, Warrant officer Slaughter jumped from a slowly moving train, whilst in transit from Frankfurt-am-Main to Bad Sulza. He then boarded a goods train travelling in the opposite direction, but was recaptured at Stuttgart, five days later, when the truck in which he was hiding was being shunted in the marshalling yard. On 20th March, 1942, this warrant officer, with a companion, hid in the wash rooms of the German officers' quarters at the camp and at nightfall walked out of the buildings and climbed over a ditch and wire fence which was not patrolled. Being equipped with civilian clothes, travel warrants and German money, they managed to reach Aachen before being recaptured by the German Field Police. On another occasion, in September, 1942, while imprisoned at Sagan, Warrant Officer Slaughter made a further effort to escape but was discovered in the process of cutting the wire fence. While at Heydekrug, a year later, in September, 1945, he helped in the digging of a tunnel and was the seventh to leave the camp by it. Equipped with passport, maps and civilian clothes, he was at liberty for 6 days before being recaptured south of Libau. In April, 1945, Warrant Officer Slaughter broke away from a marching column near Lunenburg but was recaptured two days later. In the same month he escaped from his billet at a farm with two companions but, as one of his friends developed malaria, all were forced to return to the farm. Finally, on the 26th April, 1945, Warrant Officer Slaughter, with two others, escaped from a stationary railway truck in which they were hiding and, with the aid of a Dutch family remained for four days before making contact with the 6th Airborne division at Schwannheide. Throughout his captivity, this warrant officer displayed unflinching determination to escape and set a fine example to his fellow prisoners.
