Weymouth, July 14.

THe 10th instant, the sea was observed betwixt 6 and 9 of the Clock in the morning to ebb and flowe seven times 3 of which the greate notice was taken, In that the weather was at that time fair and calm, and without any considerable wind, and that this happened at the time when the Tydes were low, the like accident having never been observed here but once only about three years since.

Plymouth, July 16. This evening arrived here His Excellency the Lord Henry Howard, and may in little time embark himself upon the Mary-Rose, one of His Majesties Fregats which attends in this Port for his transportation into Affrick, on his Embassie to the Emperour of Morocco.

Madrid, July 10. Sir William Godolphin, His Majesty of Great Brittain's Resident arriving here the 20th past, has not yet been admitted to his publick Audience; but attends only the recovery of the Queen Regent, who has for 4 or 5 days been confined to her chamber by a violent pain in her head.

Lisbonne, June 24. The 13 instant the Prince Regent conferred the charge of Secretary of State upon his Tutor Francisco Correa de la Cerda.

We have not yet any news of the Kings arrival at the Receira.

Innsbruck, June 25. The 20th of this Moneth a little after noon, happened a very violent Tempest, with extraordinary Rain, Hail, Thunder and Lightning, accompanied with an Earthquake, which had such violent effects at Schwarz, a Town about three Leagues distant from this place, where the Emperour has some silver Mines, that the River which runs through its overflowings, drowned all the adjacent fields, driving down and destroying above 30 houses, endamaging many more, and drowned above 300 people.

Warsaw, June 28. Since the Election, the Grand Marshal of this Kingdom, with the Marshal of the Diet, as also the Grand Chancellor, the Bishop of Cracovia, and others who had protested against the said Election, have been all of them to wait upon the King, though as yet ill satisfied to see the authority of the Senate so much overpowered by the Nobles.

About four days since the Grand Captors or Court of Justice which was made choice of during the Interregnum, was Assembled, pretending that their authority was to continue till the Coronations (which will not be performed till the end of September) but the Prince Lubomirski doubting the consequence thereof, went immediately with a Train of the Nobles; to those of the Palatinates which were already upon their motion to return home; who returned again to Kolo, the place of the election, and with some Menaces put an end to their power.

The Senators are generally retired, but not without first holding several private conferences, by that means administering cause of jealousies, lest somewhat may be set on foot to disturb the publick peace.

The King has been lately indisposed, falling into violent vomittings, since which he is again recovered, though much oppressed at present with melancholly.

Logorn, July 8. The first instant arrived here the Madonna del Rosario from the Steighs telling us that the French are fitting up more of their Gallies and Ships for the Sacket of Candia, and that four ships are equipping at Thoulon to embark soldiers for that service, and several other ships were expected there from the other ports of France. The same day came in here the Concord, and Tunis Merchant from England, and the Helena from Amsterdam and Genova.

The 4th instant arrived the Janifine and the Anne and Elizabeth in 7 days from Tunis, having left behind them three French ships lacing there for Marseilles, they advise us that in 30 days of their stay in that Port, no Prize had been brought in thither, but onely that four of their ships were come in, with a small ship belonging to Captain Rogliano, and one little Bark, but that they were fitting up four ships for the Grand Seigniors service, which might be ready to put to sea within a week after the departure of those English ships, and that four of their Gallies were already gone out upon the same service, also that some weeks before, 10 ships passed by the Port from Algiers to joyn with the Turkish Fleet.

The same day came in the Peter in 16 days from Algiers, where he left behind one French Bark, one of this place, and one English ship taking in Goods, and 8 Corsairs belonging to the Port, and that as many more are cruising abroad; but had not sent in above one Prize which was a Portuguese vessel laden with Corn, but the men had the fortune to escape.

The 5th instant arrived the Turky Merchant, the Zante Fregates, and the George and Martha from Scanderoon, Cyprus and Nessina, and at this day putting to sea with the Bristol Merchant on their way home; they tell us that the French Merchants have deserted the Isle of Cyprus, having (as it seems) received some dissatisfaction upon the account of the 5 solz pieces.

Rome, July 6. A Burgundian lately arriving here, and boasting of several persons killed by him in his own Country, and two of his Comrades by the way threatening the death of several persons in this City and so asking some reasonable words against His most Christian Majesty, upon Monsieur Bauri monts application to the Governour, has been committed to prison till far her Order from France for his examination.

The Venetian Ambassador has lately received Letters by the way of Otranto from Candia, dated June 9. informing him of the taking of the Bastio de St. Andre by the Turks, but that the besieged have made considerable reinforcements, and expect the speedy assistance of the Auxiliary forces.

The Duke de Beaufort has by Letters of the 17th of June from La Sapienza, a viled the Pope, that he hoped within three days to arrive at Candia, where he intended to land 10 thousand men, which he had aboard his Fleet, all of them courageous and desirous to experiment their valour against the common Enemy, that he had not one sick man aboard his whole Fleet, and that he hoped to give His Holiness a speedy and happy account of his engagement.

Venice, July 12. On Saturday last arrived here a Countier from Otranto with Letters from Candia, bearing date the 17th of the last moneth which confirm to us the extraordinary diligence of the Turks to try the utmost of their skill and force upon the Town, if possible to render themselves Masters of it before the arrival of the great succors which they fear may be fatal to their design; that the number of able men exceed not 20 thousand, who have with so much assiduity applyed themselves to the Bulwark St. Andre, that by their Mines, Batteries and Storms, they have
