CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

St. James's Palace, S.W.1.

9 August, 1955.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the British Empire Medal, (Military Division) to the undermentioned, in recognition of brave conduct during a fire in Nairobi:

T/22204496 Sergeant Frederick Charles GREAVES, 92(MT) Company, East African Army Service Corps, Royal Army Service Corps.

In the early hours of the morning of the 23rd October, 1954, the apartment in Nairobi in which Sergeant and Mrs. Greaves were sleeping was set on fire as a result of Mau-Mau action. Unable to escape through the front door, as the verandahs of his and the adjoining dwelling were burning furiously, Sergeant Greaves broke through the metal protection of a window, thrust his wife through and then escaped himself.

In the adjoining apartment could be seen, trapped behind a window, a screaming ten year old girl. Others tried to get to the child but were driven back by the heat. With fine presence of mind and at great personal risk, Sergeant Greaves ran round, between the side of his own burning dwelling and a closely adjoining wall, to a small rear window of the room where the child was trapped. With bare hands he burst in the window and the protective metal screen which covered it, climbed into the room and some seconds later passed the child out into the arms of a second person who had followed him round. In performing this brave deed Sergeant Greaves received severe burns and cuts which caused much loss of blood. He was detained in hospital for ten days.

Had it not been for the quick thinking, determined action and gallantry of Sergeant Greaves, the child would, undoubtedly, have been burned to death.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in the context of public administration and financial management. The text highlights that without reliable records, it becomes difficult to track expenditures, assess performance, and ensure that resources are used efficiently and effectively.

2. The second part of the document focuses on the challenges associated with record-keeping in a complex and dynamic environment. It notes that the volume of data generated by various departments and agencies can be overwhelming, and the lack of standardized procedures can lead to inconsistencies and errors. Additionally, the document mentions that the rapid pace of technological change and the increasing reliance on digital systems pose significant challenges in ensuring the security and integrity of electronic records.

3. The third part of the document provides a detailed overview of the current state of record-keeping practices. It identifies key areas for improvement, such as the need for better training and education for staff, the implementation of robust data management systems, and the establishment of clear policies and procedures. The document also discusses the importance of regular audits and reviews to ensure that record-keeping practices remain up-to-date and effective.

4. The final part of the document offers recommendations and suggestions for addressing the identified challenges. It suggests that a comprehensive approach is needed, involving collaboration between all relevant stakeholders, including government officials, private sector experts, and academic researchers. The document concludes by emphasizing that while the task is challenging, the benefits of improved record-keeping are significant, leading to greater transparency, better decision-making, and ultimately, more effective public service delivery.
