The Diseases of Animals (Waste Foods) Order, 1957.
(Made 9th April, 1957.)

Waste foods may, if not boiled for one hour, spread foot-and-mouth and other diseases. This Order, which comes into operation on 1st June, 1957, prohibits the feeding of unboiled waste foods to certain animals or to poultry. It also provides that, where a person has collected from the premises of other persons onto his own premises any waste foods for feeding to animals or poultry, the waste foods shall not be used on or moved from his premises unless they have first been boiled for one hour in a plant licensed by the local authority. But if no animals or poultry are kept on the collector's premises, the unboiled waste foods may be moved from those premises, either by another collector for boiling in his own licensed plant, or to a plant operated by a local authority, or by a small stock-keeper to his premises for feeding, after boiling, to his own pigs or poultry. The Order also prohibits the carriage of animals, poultry or feedingstuffs in a vehicle that is carrying unboiled waste foods; and it requires the disinfection of vehicles and containers after each occasion on which they are used for the carriage of unboiled waste foods before they are again used for the carriage of animals, poultry or feedingstuffs.
