NATIONAL INSURANCE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

THE NATIONAL INSURANCE (GRADUATED
RETIREMENT BENEFIT AND CONSEQUENT TIAL PROVISIONS) REGULATIONS, 1961.

In accordance with section 77 of the National Insurance Act, 1946, the National Insurance Advisory Committee give notice that they have received from the Joint Authority (comprising the Minister of Pensions and National Insurance and the Minister of Labour and National Insurance for Northern Ireland) for consideration and report thereon the preliminary draft of regulations entitled the National Insurance (Graduated Retirement Benefit and Consequential Provisions) Regulations, 1961.

A short explanatory note on these regulations is appended to this notice.

Copies of the preliminary draft of these regulations may be purchased directly (price 9d.) from Her Majesty's Stationery Office at the addresses shown on the last page of this Gazette or through any bookseller.

The Committee will take into consideration any objection, made by or on behalf of persons affected, received by them not later than 10th March 1961.

Objections should be addressed to the Secretary, National Insurance Advisory Committee, 10 John Adam Street, London W.C.2.

Ifor Evans, Chairman.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

These Regulations provide that the right to graduated retirement benefit under the National Insurance Act, 1959, at less than a prescribed weekly rate, of a person who is not entitled to a retirement pension under the National Insurance Act, 1946, may be satisfied by a single payment; and prescribe the circumstances in which the provision is to apply and the amount of the single payment in relation to the age of the person.

The Regulations also prescribe that the conditions for a widow's entitlement to graduated retirement benefit in respect of a husband she married after attaining pensionable age shall be the same as those she is required to satisfy for entitlement to a retirement pension by virtue of his insurance, and enable a woman more than once married, who is entitled to graduated retirement benefit as a widow in respect of a second or subsequent husband, to retain her entitlement to such graduated retirement benefit in respect of a former husband as she has earned by deferring her own retirement from regular employment on attaining pensionable age. Provision is also made for treating graduated retirement benefit as an increase of widowed mother's allowance instead of as an increase of her retirement pension where this is equally or more beneficial to the widow.

The remaining provisions of the regulations make certain amendments to regulations under the National Insurance Act, 1946, required in consequence of the scheme of graduated retirement benefit introduced by the National Insurance Act, 1959.

PERFORMING RIGHT TRIBUNAL

24 Kingsway, London W.C.2.

THE REFERENCE OF BARRINGTON
ELECTRONICS LTD. (P.R.T. 5/60)Short particulars of the Decision

The Performing Right Society Limited have made a scheme which they call "Tariff for performances by means of coin-operated machines for playing recorded music, including those commonly known as juke boxes."

Barrington Electronics Limited, a private limited company, which operates approximately one hundred juke boxes almost all carrying only thirty records each, referred that scheme to the Tribunal. Their substantial objection was that the scheme was unfair in that it failed to charge less to operators of juke boxes carrying no more than thirty records as compared with the charges made to operators of larger machines carrying as many as one hundred records.

Further objections were also raised by Phonograph Operators Association Limited, which was joined in the reference as an "interested party." This association claims to represent between 60 and 70 per cent. of all the operators of juke boxes in the country. It complained that the fees prescribed in the tariff were excessive and arbitrarily assessed, that the prescribed differentiation of charges according to the charge made by the operator for each play was unreasonable, and that the discrepancy between the fees demanded by the Performing Right Society Limited and those separately required by another association for causing a sound recording to be heard in public was unjustifiable. The association, moreover, urged the adoption of counterproposals of its own. These were that the tariff should be scaled to the weekly cost of replacing a fixed number of records by applying to the basic figure so calculated the percentage laid down by statute (Copyright Act, 1956 section 8 (2)) as that to be applied to the retail cost of a gramophone record in arriving at the proper royalty payable to the owner of the copyright.

The Tribunal rejected each of the foregoing objections, and also the counterproposals.

As to the objection raised by Barrington Electronics Limited, the Tribunal found it impracticable to meet this by reason of the great diversity in the record-carrying capacity of machines in common use, and of the considerable variety of circumstances in which such machines are installed and operated. Furthermore, Barrington Electronics Limited, as operators of machines which are almost exclusively of a single and obsolescent type, presented an exceptional case which did not justify any adaptation of the scheme under consideration so as to meet their peculiar requirements.

The counterproposals of Phonograph Operators Association Limited were held to have been based on the fallacy that the weekly cost of replacing discs was the outstanding factor common to all operators, and also on a misapplication of the supposed analogy of the statutory percentage.

Similarly, the complaint that there was a serious discrepancy between the fees charged in respect of the performing rights in a musical work and those in sound recordings was held to be illfounded. In neither case had the owner of the copyright any say in the fees charged by the other, and there was accordingly no reason why the tariff of either should be binding on or affect the other's fees, which ought to be assessed on their independent merits.

In so assessing the fees, the Tribunal followed the principle which it had applied in the earlier reference of Scottish Ballroom Association Limited (P.R.T. 1/58), that is to say, that where there is evidence available of an agreement freely negotiated between a willing buyer of a performing right, regarded as a commodity, and a willing seller, the price so agreed amounts, as at the date of such agreement, to evidence of the proper value of that right.

The Tribunal found as a fact that such an agreement did exist. It had been made in or about March, 1958, between the Performing Right Society Limited and Phonograph Operators Association Limited. The Tribunal was satisfied that the agreement had been freely negotiated and that there had been no substantial change of circumstances since its date.

The agreement was substantially in the terms of the scheme before the Tribunal, which (subject to a minor variation designed to protect an operator withdrawing a machine from service during a licence year) was accordingly confirmed.

A copy of the Decision may be inspected at the offices of the Tribunal during office hours.
