STATE INTELLIGENCE

HONOURS AND AWARDS

CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD

St. James's Palace, London S.W.1.
16th June 1961.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased, on the advice of Her Majesty's Australian Ministers, to approve the award of the British Empire Medal for Gallantry (Military Division) to the undermentioned:

Chief Engine Room Artificer Raymond George BUTLER, O.N. R.27424, Royal Australian Navy.
Radio Operator Francis Edmund THOMPSON, O.N. R.50981, Royal Australian Navy.

On the 10th October 1960, H.M.A.S. WOOMERA, a wooden ship of 580 tons, was engaged in dumping overage ammunition in the sea 23 miles south-east of Sidney Heads when a fire started in the hold and spread to a stack of flares and ammunition. The ship herself quickly caught fire and after explosions sank within an hour.

Chief Engine Room Artificer Butler took a leading part in the attempts to extinguish the fire. When the fire extinguishers were exhausted he got a fearnought suit with the intention of throwing drums of foam down the hold. However due to the intense heat he could not get at the drums. He then obtained another fire extinguisher and played it on the fire in the hold. He left H.M.A.S. WOOMERA only when ordered to abandon ship by his Captain.

Radio Operator Thompson was ordered by the Captain to contact any ship in the vicinity and send an S.O.S. signal. The wireless office, a wooden structure erected on the boat deck, filled with smoke and caught fire but Radio Operator Thompson remained at his post until he heard that H.M.A.S. QUICKMATCH had received his signal correctly and was aware of H.M.A.S. WOOMERA's position. He then left the wireless office, climbed on top of the structure which was on fire, passed down a number of lifebelts to the personnel remaining on board, and left H.M.A.S. WOOMERA only when ordered to abandon ship by his Captain.
