EXPLANATORY NOTES

The National Insurance (Contributions) Amendment (No. 3) Regulations, 1962

These Regulations amend the National Insurance (Contributions) Regulations, 1948.

Regulation 2 provides that, unless they elect otherwise, persons who on attaining pensionable age do not satisfy the contribution conditions for a retirement pension under the National Insurance Act, 1946, shall thereafter be excepted from liability to pay contributions. A woman who, on attaining pensionable age, is married and fails to satisfy the further condition specified in section 21 (5) of the Act, which relates to the number of contributions paid or credited since the date of her marriage, is similarly excepted.

Regulation 3 assimilates to that of widows the liability after pensionable age of certain women whose marriages have been terminated by divorce or have been annulled. It provides that, if such a woman is entitled to a retirement pension by virtue of her husband's insurance, she may elect to be excepted from liability to pay contributions as an employed or self-employed person.

Regulation 4 ensures that any contributions which are not paid until after their due date and which relate to weeks after a person has attained pensionable age shall be taken into account for certain purposes as from the date of payment.

Liability to pay graduated contributions under the National Insurance Act, 1959, is not affected by these Regulations.

The National Insurance (New Entrants Transitional) Amendment Regulations, 1962

These Regulations relate to persons who, under the National Insurance (New Entrants Transitional) Regulations, 1949, are excepted from liability to pay contributions after attaining the age of sixty-five (or, in the case of a woman, sixty) because they entered insurance too late to satisfy the contribution conditions for a retirement pension at that age. They provide that such a person may elect to pay contributions (other than graduated contributions under the National Insurance Act, 1959); if, however, he has already obtained, under regulation 4A (1) (ii) of those Regulations, a refund of that portion of his contributions which was attributable to widow's benefit and retirement pension, he must first repay the amount of that refund.
