Prices and Incomes Act, 1966

Reference to the National Board for Prices and Incomes

London Weighting in the Non-Industrial Civil Service

Some 265,000 office staffs and other non-industrial civil servants working in London receive additions to the national rates of pay in the form of London weighting. The amounts of London weighting vary according to salary and also according to whether the staff work in Inner London (a radius of 4 miles from Charing Cross) or Outer London (a radius of 16 miles from Charing Cross). The current rates of London weighting took effect from 1st January 1964, and were to last for three years. These rates were due for review between the Official and Staff Sides of the National Whitley Council towards the end of 1966. Any new rates resulting from the review would take effect from 1st January 1967, if they could be reconciled with the criteria for increases during the period of severe restraint (Cmnd. 3150).

2. Civil Service agreements on London weighting have taken into account the London additions paid by other large employers of office staff. Nevertheless, since the Civil Service is the largest single employer of office staff in the London area, changes in rates of London weighting in the Civil Service have an important influence on movements in London weighting paid by other large employers of office staff, both in the public sector and in private sector employment such as banks.

3. In view of the foregoing, and having regard also to the shortage of staff which now exists both generally in office employments in the London area and particular in certain Civil Service grades in London, the Government consider it desirable that there should be an examination by the National Board for Prices and Incomes of the principles and considerations which should determine rates of London weighting in the non-industrial Civil Service. The Government would expect that similar principles might well, where appropriate, thereafter be adopted by other organisations employing, both in London and elsewhere, large numbers of comparable staff.

4. Accordingly in pursuance of their powers under section 2 of the Prices and Incomes Act, 1966, the First Secretary of State and the Chancellor of the Exchequer hereby refer to the National Board for Prices and Incomes for examination the question of London weighting in the non-industrial Civil Service.
