AIR FORCE DEPARTMENT

Whitehall, London S.W.1.

9th September 1969.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards:

Air Force Medal

L4220201 Sergeant John Reginald GLANVILL, Royal Air Force.

On the night of the 18th May 1969, a tug towing two barges caught fire 20 miles east of Muharraq.

The duty Search and Rescue crew were alerted and despatched to the area to determine what assistance was required. Sergeant Glanvill was the winchman of the Wessex rescue helicopter. There was a 25-knot wind blowing and the sea had a six to seven foot swell. The helicopter crew located the vessel which was ablaze from stern to stern and the danger of explosion was imminent. The crew of the tug had been forced to abandon ship by using a rubber dinghy and had reached the first barge in the line of tow. However, because the burning tug was rapidly drifting closer to the barge and there was a very real danger of fire spreading to it, plus the fact that the nearest surface craft was several miles away, the tug's crew were in a desperate situation. With complete disregard for their own safety in the event of an explosion, in the face of appalling weather conditions and having only the glare of the burning tug and their own landing light for external reference and illumination, the helicopter crew decided to attempt an immediate rescue. Sergeant Glanvill was lowered initially on to the barge to assess the situation. He made this assessment rapidly and then set about the rescue with outstanding skill and determination, sometimes putting the rescue strap around the survivor and at others taking a survivor up with him using the double lift method. By a succession of single and double lifts, the entire tug's crew of nine, including an injured man, was expeditiously winched to the safety of the helicopter, which then returned to base. The whole operation was completed and the tug's crew landed safely at Muharraq within one hour from the time of take-off. By his judgment as to the most suitable method Sergeant Glanvill ensured that further injury did not occur to the tug's crew. To him fell the major physical part of the rescue in a very hazardous operation. With exceptional courage in the face of the imminent risk of explosion and the consequent risk to his life, he ensured that all the crew were winched to safety before leaving the barge himself on the final lift. Throughout the mission Sergeant Glanvill displayed skill, courage and determination of the highest order.

Queen's Commendation for Valuable Service in the Air

Flight Lieutenant Kenneth Frank LLOYD (4044388),
Royal Air Force.

In recognition of his services as navigator and winch operator of a Wessex rescue helicopter in a night rescue carried out over the sea, near Muharraq, under appalling weather conditions and with the danger of explosion. His directions to the pilot and his control of the winch and winchman were exemplary. With the scene illuminated only by the glare of the burning tug and the landing light of the helicopter, the nine-man crew of the tug, including an injured man, was winched to safety in a succession of single and double lifts, from the first barge in the line of tow, by then in danger from the burning tug.

Flying Officer Maurice James BENNÉE (608727),
Royal Air Force.

In recognition of his skill as captain and pilot of a Wessex rescue helicopter on his first operational rescue. This was carried out at night over the sea, near Muharraq, under appalling weather conditions and with the danger of explosion. With the scene illuminated only by the glare of the burning tug and the landing light of the helicopter, the nine-man crew of the tug, including an injured man, was winched to safety in a succession of single and double lifts, from the first barge in the line of tow, by then in danger from the burning tug.
