ARMY DEPARTMENT

CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD

St. James's Palace, London S.W.1.

24th February 1970.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased to give orders for the following appointment to the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire:

To be an Additional Officer of the Military Division of the said Most Excellent Order for Gallantry:

Lieutenant-Colonel John Patrick St. Clair BALLENDEN, M.C. (397804), The Light Infantry.

Lieutenant-Colonel Ballenden's battalion was flown from England to Northern Ireland on 14th August 1969, the day that the rioting in Belfast was at its height; two battalions had been committed to the streets that afternoon. His first company arrived at Aldergrove at 7.30 p.m.; by 1 o'clock in the morning it was holding the rival factions apart at the scene of the hardest fighting. By 4 p.m. the following day he had mounted a successful battalion operation and had control of an adjoining area of the city. For the next nine weeks, apart from one spell of eight days, when his battalion was supposed to be resting and in reserve and during which time he commanded two further battalion group operations with outstanding success, his soldiers were continuously on the streets and in action.

On the night of 11th October 1969 rioting broke out in the Shankill district and Lieutenant-Colonel Ballenden moved quickly with elements of his own battalion to hold the mob and to support the Royal Ulster Constabulary. Eventually the police were overwhelmed and asked for help. At this stage the hard core element of the mob became viciously and uncontrollably hostile and in addition to throwing petrol bombs, paving stones, bottles, darts and ball bearings from catapults, started shooting at both soldiers and police. This went on for about two hours, during which Lieutenant-Colonel Ballenden was conspicuous among the front line of his soldiers directing and encouraging them and showing utter disregard for his own safety.

During the course of the following six hours, Lieutenant-Colonel Ballenden's force was built up by companies from other battalions. Several hundred rounds were fired at the Security Forces and a prolonged battle was fought to move the rioters back about half a mile from the particularly sensitive area which they threatened. Two officers and twenty soldiers were wounded as were two policemen; one policeman was shot dead.

Throughout the whole of this action and the following day Lieutenant-Colonel Ballenden was never out of the front line. By his calm and resolute control of the operation, by his personal example of bravery, endurance and cheerfulness he inspired not only the soldiers but also the officers and constables of the Royal Ulster Constabulary who were by now acting under his instructions. It was a magnificently sustained effort of leadership and courage in an extremely dangerous situation, far in excess of the normal call of duty. Its impact on the morale of soldiers and police has been immense.

CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD

St. James's Palace, London S.W.1.

24th February 1970.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the George Medal to the under-mentioned:

24093584 Private Shawn JAMES, The Light Infantry.

On the night 11th/12th October 1969, rioting broke out in the Shankill district of Belfast. Elements of the Third Battalion The Light Infantry were moved quickly to hold a mob of some 1,500–2,000 persons and to support the Royal Ulster Constabulary. Shortly after they arrived, the police asked for help. For the next few hours the hard core element of the mob became vicious and hostile. They used automatic weapons against the soldiers and the police as well as throwing petrol bombs, paving stones, bottles, darts and ball bearings from catapults. Private James was detailed as one of three marksmen for the difficult and dangerous task of identifying persons shooting or throwing petrol bombs at the soldiers and police and neutralising the hostile fire under specific instructions. For a period of over four hours he remained constantly exposed to fire in an open and largely unprotected position, during which time the butt of his rifle was shot away. In spite of this he calmly sought a replacement and continued with his duties.

The performance of this young soldier was exemplary and in keeping with the highest traditions both of his Regiment and of the British Army. Throughout the whole of the action Private James showed outstanding courage and steadiness. His actions prevented the snipers from causing more casualties to his comrades, the police and the civil population. His conduct was far in excess of the normal call of duty and was an example to all who saw him.

CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD

St. James's Palace, London S.W.1.

24th February 1970.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the British Empire Medal for Gallantry (Military Division) to the undermentioned:

23734933 Sergeant William John POWER, The Light Infantry.

On the night 11th/12th October 1969, rioting broke out in the Shankill district of Belfast. Elements of the Third Battalion The Light Infantry were moved quickly to hold a mob of some 1,500–2,000 persons and to support the Royal Ulster Constabulary. Shortly after they arrived, the police asked for help. For the next few hours the hard core element of the mob became vicious and hostile. They used automatic weapons against the soldiers and police as well as throwing petrol bombs, paving stones, bottles, darts and ball bearings from catapults.

Sergeant Power was the non-commissioned officer in charge of a squad of men known as the baton squad. These men were unarmed except for short stout batons. Their primary task was to effect arrests of ringleaders of the rioting mob. The task was difficult and highly dangerous as the Shankill road was under continuous small arms fire from all sides. The squad was used to charge the leading elements of the mob after CS smoke had been used and to extricate the ringleaders.

Between about 2330 hours 11th October 1969 and 0430 hours 12th October 1969, Sergeant Power personally organised and led some fifteen charges at the rioting mob in the face of heavy fire. Frequently their charges took them within 15 yards of gunmen. Several members of the baton squad were wounded.

Sergeant Power, by his calm and resolute control of the baton squad, by his personal example of bravery and endurance inspired all the men under his command. His action led to the arrest of many ringleaders.

24th February 1970.
