Messages for further transmission by the public telegraph system

30.—(1) A telex message may be sent from a sending station within the United Kingdom or the Isle of Man to the appropriate receiving station under the control of the Post Office or of a licensee of the Post Office for further transmission to the addressee as a written telegram.

(2) There shall be paid for this service:

(a) the charge payable under this Scheme for the call to the receiving station referred to in sub-paragraph (1) if that station is under the control of a licensee of the Post Office (but not otherwise), and

(b) all charges in respect of the telegram which are payable under the schemes applicable thereto.

(3) This facility shall be subject to the provisions of this Scheme and the schemes for the time being in force relating to written telegrams.

Messages for further transmission by telex

31.—(1) A telex message may be sent from a sending station within the United Kingdom or the Isle of Man to the appropriate receiving and sending station under the control of the Post Office for further transmission as a telex message to not less than four other receiving stations within the British Islands.

(2) There shall be paid for this service:

(a) the charges which would have been payable under this Scheme for the calls to the other receiving stations if the calls had been made directly thereto from the first mentioned sending station with the assistance of a telex exchange operator, and

(b) the sum specified in item 2 of Schedule 6;

but no charge shall be payable for the call to the receiving and sending station under the control of the Post Office.

Additional particulars of calls

32.—(1) Where the Post Office provides or has provided in or with a telex account rendered to a subscriber a statement of the charges for individual calls made with the assistance of the operator from the subscriber's installation the following conditions shall apply.

(2) The Post Office may, at the request of the subscriber, supply in such manner as it considers appropriate, either at the time the account is rendered or subsequently, additional particulars in relation to all or any of the calls or of such matters as it thinks fit.

(3) The subscriber shall pay (except where the Post Office determines that no charge shall be payable) in respect of the supply of additional particulars such charge as the Post Office may fix either generally or in relation to the particular case, provided that the charge shall not exceed the maximum charge specified in item 3 of Schedule 6.

PART VII

GENERAL CONDITIONS OF SERVICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

Application of Part VII

33. This part of this Scheme applies in respect of telex service provided by means of an installation, whether under this Scheme or under an agreement:

Provided that where any provision in this part of this Scheme is inconsistent with an agreement the agreement shall prevail.

General powers of the Post Office

34. Without prejudice to any other power or right of the Post Office it may at its discretion:

(a) refuse, or cease, in consequence of any difficulty in obtaining or maintaining on terms acceptable to the Post Office any wayleave for an appropriate telegraphic line, to provide under this Scheme or under an agreement any telex service which would involve or involves the use of that telegraphic line;

(b) disconnect an installation from one telex exchange and connect it with any other telex exchange;

(c) make any alteration in an installation;

(d) alter the telex number or the answer-back code allocated by the Post Office to an installation;

(e) use any part or parts of an installation provided for a subscriber under this Scheme or under an agreement for any purpose (including the provision of service to other persons) involving the carrying of electric currents over such part or parts of the installation at frequencies different from those used for the purpose of that subscriber's telex service.