These draft regulations amend the regulations made under the Supplementary Benefits Act 1976, as extensively amended by the Social Security Act 1980.

It is proposed to lay the regulations before Parliament in July with the object of securing their passage through Parliament before the summer recess and for them generally to come into effect immediately thereafter.

The regulations in the main seek to clarify existing provisions and to correct them where they do not achieve the intended policy. Certain of the other proposed amendments are consequential on Clause 38 of the Social Security and Housing Benefits Bill (removal of the requirement to register for unemployment except in specified cases). The regulations also contain a number of proposals for change, of which the most substantial are:

—provision for the withdrawal of a disabled person's heating addition, now paid automatically to all claimants who also receive mobility allowance, attendance allowance or constant attendance allowance, in the case of a claimant who is in hospital, Part III residential or board and lodging accommodation. This change is made on the grounds that all his heating needs are already met in the accommodation charge which is met in full in the supplementary benefit assessment. Implementation would coincide with the uprating in November, so as to minimise a claimant's actual drop in income. The regulations also provide for the qualifying categories for the automatic payment of the disabled person's heating allowance to be extended to include those claimants who opt to drive an invalid tricycle instead of receiving mobility allowance;

—changes in the system of calculating the extra heating addition payable where a claimant lives on an estate with a disproportionately costly heating system;

—provision for unemployed people to attend part-time courses of education or training of up to 21 hours of classroom instruction a week without prejudice to their benefit entitlement provided they have for a period of three months immediately before the commencement of the course been available for employment and in receipt of unemployment benefit or supplementary benefit.
