OFFICE OF FAIR TRADING

Registration of Restrictive Trading Agreements

The Director General of Fair Trading has laid before Parliament new Regulations* under the Restrictive Trading Practices Act 1976.

The Regulations alter the arrangement for providing details of restrictive trading agreements. They replace those made in 1976†. The principle changes are that:

- A single clarified certificate will cover all the circumstances in which details of restrictive trading agreements are sent to the Office of Fair Trading. This replaces the four separate certificates currently in use.
- The number of copies of documents needed is reduced from three to two.
- There is a new address to which the certificates are to be sent.

The Regulations will come into force on 18th April 1984. From that date the new certificate should be used in all cases. Supplies of the new certificate are available free from the Office of Fair Trading, Chancery House, 53 Chancery Lane, London WC2A 1SP, by post from the Distribution Unit or on personal application at the Public Room 517.
