St. James's December 3.

THE following Address was presented to his Majesty by Dr. William Daws the President, and the Fellows of the College of Physicians, introduced by his Grace the Duke of Shrewsbury, Chamberlain of his Majesty's Household.

To the KING's most excellent Majesty,

The Humble Address of the President, and College of Physicians, London.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE the President, Elects, Censors, Fellows and other Members of your Majesty's Royal College of Physicians, most humbly beg Leave, that among the rest of your loyal Subjects, We may, with Hearts full of Joy and Duty, present ourselves to your sacred Majesty, to congratulate your most auspicious and peaceable Accession to the imperial Crown of these Kingdoms.

Which we are more especially bound to do, as we are immediately under your Majesty's most gracious Protection, being Members of a Society, founded and continually favoured by your Majesty's Royal Progenitors.

Our Society had the Honour to be established about Two hundred Years ago, by your Majesty's Royal Predecessor King Henry the Eighth of Glorious Memory, for the better regulating the Practice of Physick in these great Cities where the Royal Family, the Nobility, and principal Gentry of the Nation do usually reside. And as our learned Predecessors, deservedly Famous throughout all Europe for their great Discoveries and Improvements in Physick, have in their several Ages abundantly acquitted themselves of the great Trust reposed in them, so we assure your Majesty, that it shall be our utmost Endeavour to tread in their Steps, and if possible, to exceed the great Example they have set us.

Your Majesty is a Prince of that consummate Wisdom Magnanimity and Goodness, that we doubt not but your Majesty will favour and protect a Society so useful to the Publick; and as it indispensably our Duty, we shall be ever ambitious to express the highest Regard to your Majesty's sacred Person and the most constant and steady Zeal for your Majesty's Service and Government.

May your Reign over us be long, prosperous, and glorious; Victory the inseparable Attendant of your Arms; May his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, with your Crown inherit your Virtues, and this People never want a continued Succession of Monarchs, descended from your Royal Loins, to fill the British Throne.

Given under our College Seal, the Seventh of October, 1714.

St James's December 3. The following Addresses have been presented to his Majesty.

An humble Address of the Protestant Dissenting Ministers of the several Denominations in the County of Wilts, in the Name of themselves and their respective Congregations; presented to his Majesty by Dr. Edmund Calamy, introduced by the Right Honourable Mr. Vice-Chamberlain.

An humble Address of the High Sheriff, Justices of the Peace, Grand Jury, Clergy, Gentlemen and Freeholders of the County of-Clare; presented to his Majesty by the Right Honourable the Earl of Sunderland, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland.

Both which Addresses his Majesty was pleas'd to receive very graciously.

Constantinople Oct. 7. O. S. The Apprehensions of a Rupture between this Court and the Republick of Venice have been renewed here, upon the Port's causing the Roads and Bridges to be repaired in the Country about Salonichi and Larissa, the erecting Magazines of Provisions and Ammunition there and at Negropont, (for transporting part of which Stores from hence several Vessels are employed) the ordering the Turkish Merchant Ships which use the Trade to Ægypt to be here this Winter, and the sending Orders for the Removal of nine or ten Chambers of Janisaries from Chockin to Negropont. Upon these Grounds 'tis conjectured, that the Sultan's Design is to attack the Morea the next Spring: Tho' some say the Grand Vizier is against a Rupture, and think the Port will hardly venture upon a War at this Juncture.

Venice, November 17. N. S. Letters from our Fleet give an Account, that Signior Delfino Providetore General, has taken a View of the Islands belonging to this Republick, and that he is also taking a View of the Towns and Forts, in order to the providing them with all things necessary for their Defence, in case they should be attacked. The extraordinary Preparations of the Turks by Sea and Land render this Precaution necessary; the rather because they are making great Magazines in divers Places of Romelia, Thessaly and Negropont. Men are kept at Work in our Arsenal with all possible Diligence, to finish several Ships of War of the Line which are on the Stocks. The Officers of the Land Forces are raising Recruits.

Stockholm, November 13. 'Tis advised from Careless-croon, that 5 or 6 Ships of the Squadron commanded by Admiral Watrang were come in thither to refit, having received much Damage in the late Tempestuous Weather; but that Admiral with five Men of War continues Cruising between Riga, Revel, and Gotland. The Squadron under Vice-Admiral Lillie continues still in its former Station, off Orgrund in the Bothnick Gulph, and is ordered to remain there as long as the Frosts will permit, to prevent any Attempt which the Enemy might make to land on that Coast: The last Letters from the said Squadron say, that by reason of the late stormy Weather, they had not been able to get any certain Intelligence whether there be still any Muscovite Troops on the Isle of Aland or not. General Meyerfeldt is not yet set out for Pomerania, because there is hitherto no Advice of his Majesty's being come into Germany: Tho' the
