11723/0164	Sanofi Winthrop Limited (v/a Sterwin Medicines)	Allopurinol Tablets BP 100 mg BP	Allopurinol BP 100 mg	1. Conditions of excess body urate including gout. Allopurinol is used to reduce urate levels in the body when these levels are excessive (serum is theoretically saturated with urate at a concentration between 0.38-0.42 mmol (6.4-7.0 mg %)). The higher levels seen in practice may be accounted for by (a) the formation of supersaturated solutions; (b) protein binding of urate. Excess body urate may be indicated by hyperuricaemia and/or hyperuricosuria. It may lead to deposition of urate in the tissues or it may be present with no obvious signs or symptoms. The main clinical manifestations of urate deposition are gouty arthritis, skin tophi and/or renal involvement. Excess body urate is frequently of idiopathic origin but may also be found in association with other conditions including the following: neoplastic disease and its treatment; certain enzyme disorders (in particular Lesch Nyhan syndrome); renal failure; renal calculus formation; diuretic therapy and psoriasis. 2. Calcium renal lithiasis: Allopurinol is of benefit in the prophylaxis and treatment of calcium renal lithiasis in patients with raised serum or urinary uric acid. POM	30th September 1994

6464/0246	Waymade Plc	Diprosalic Ointment 30 g	Betamethasone Dipropionate 0.06 w/w (equivalent to Betamethasone 0.05 w/w) Salicylic Acid 3.0 w/w	Betamethasone Dipropionate is synthetic fluorinated corticosteroids. It is active topically and produces a rapid and sustained response in those inflammatory dermatoses that are normally responsive to topical corticosteroid therapy, and it is also effective in the less responsive conditions such as psoriasis of the scalp and chronic plaque psoriasis of the hands and feet but excluding widespread plaque psoriasis. Topical salicylic acid softens keratin, loosens cornified epithelium and desquamates the epidermis. Diprosalic presentations are therefore indicated for the treatment of hyperkeratotic and dry corticosteroid-responsive dermatoses where the cornified epithelium may resist penetration of the steroid. The salicylic acid constituent of Diprosalic preparation, as a result of its descaling action, allows access of the dermis more rapidly than by applying steroid alone. POM	23rd August 1994
