THE POTATO INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL (AMENDMENT) ORDER 1999

The Potato Industry Development Council (PIDC) Order, which established the British Potato Council (BPC), was passed by Parliament in 1997. It was created under the Industrial Organisation and Development Act 1947.

Changes were introduced by the Potato Industry Development Council (Amendment) Order, which received Parliamentary approval in May 1999. They will come into effect on 1st July 1999.

There will be no change to the way area levies are calculated. Tonnage levies will be charged every time a consignment of potatoes is moved. In effect, this means that purchasers are required to pay levies on the total tonnage they purchase.

Previously levies have been applied at first point of sale only. Producers' co-operatives and commission agents will no longer have a right under the Order to recover levies paid to the BPC from customers. Where the BPC believes, based on information in its possession, that a person should be registered under the new legislation, their name will be entered on the Council's Register, and they will be notified of this by 31st July 1999.

Any person who carries on business in the Industry and buys or takes delivery as an agent of 100 tonnes or more of potatoes per annum, and does not receive such notification, is required to apply to the BPC for registration, in writing, by 30th October 1999.

Persons who are registered with the BPC, as producers, purchasers, or both, are not required to take any action. Their registrations will remain unchanged.

Any producer or purchaser who commences business in the Industry after 1st July 1999 is required to apply for registration, in writing, within 30 days of commencing such business.

The PIDC Order provides for action against persons who fail to register and/or provide returns or other information, and against those who make false statements.

That entails criminal prosecutions through the Magistrates Courts in England and Wales and the Sheriffs Courts in Scotland.

Additional information can be obtained from the Secretary to the Council at 4300 Nash Court, John Smith Drive, Oxford Business Park South, Oxford OX4 2RT, telephone 01865-714455, fax 01865-782200.
