Forestry and Plant Health

Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs

Charges for certain plant health and plant varieties and seeds services provided by the Department in England were suspended in 1999 whilst a review was conducted of the legislative bases for these services. Some animal health and additional plant varieties and seeds services charges were also subsequently suspended.

The review has now been completed and Defra has concluded that a number of the charges concerned should have a specific legislative base. The Department has therefore decided, in principle, to repay to the organisations and individuals concerned the money that was charged for these services during the six years prior to the suspension of charging. If you used the services listed below between the dates given you should receive a letter explaining what action you should take to claim a refund of the fees you paid. If you do not receive such a letter by 31 May, please write to the relevant contact for the services that you used, providing details of when you used the services and the fees paid, and your claim will be investigated.

The services affected are:

Plant Health (charges paid between 17 September 1993 and 16 September 1999)

Export certificates for plants and plant products
Seed potatoes: inspections for approved stock scheme

Following the review, legislation is in the process of being prepared where it is necessary to provide for charging for these services for the future. Industry contacts will be provided with further details of arrangements for the resumption of charging over the next few months. Parallel reviews were conducted by the administrations in Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland, and by the Forestry Commission for charging in respect of equivalent services. Separate announcements are being made on the outcome of these reviews.
